GRAF ZEPPELIN TAKES OFF FOR TWO AMERICAS

Murky Sky Greets Craft as She Starts on 18,000-Mile Hop.

TOWNS ALONG RHONE REPORT HER PASSING

64 PERSONS ABOARD; 22 ARE PASSENGERS

Ship Will Head North From Brazil to Havana and Lakehurst, N. J.

Valence, France, May 18 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, speeding down the Rhone Valley to the Mediterranean, passed over this city at 11:55 p. m. (5:55 p. m., Eastern Standard time) today. She was flying rapidly at a height of about 1,000 feet.

Lyons, France, May 18 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, making for the Mediterranean on her way to Seville, passed over this city at 11:15 p. m. (5:15 p. m. E. S. T.), and headed down the Rhone Valley. She was flying at an altitude of 1,800 feet and traveling rapidly.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 18 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, bound for Seville, Spain, on the first leg of her South American flight, wirelessed tonight at 9:30 p. m. (3:30 p. m. E. S. T.) that she was approaching Besancon, France.

The message said that the Graf was flying "quietly and pleasantly" against a strong head wind. The passengers were dining "in the best of humor" on meat-stew and omelets.

Due in Seville This Afternoon.

Under a glowering, murky sky the giant German dirigible sailed from here late this afternoon on an 18,000-mile cruise which will take it twice across the Atlantic and, for the first time, south of the equator.

The ground crew, releasing the big craft at 5:18 p. m. (11:18 a. m. E. S. T.) started it on its way on the first lap of its flight, to Seville, Spain, where it expects to arrive Monday evening between 5 and 6 p. m. It will moor there for the night, and take off Tuesday morning on the long 5,000-mile trip to Pernambuco and Rio Janeiro, Brazil.

There were 64 persons aboard at the take-off, 22 passengers, and 42 officers and crew. Dr. Hugo Eckener, who has piloted the craft on every one of its major cruises save one, was in command. Of the passengers four are Americans and four are women. Six of the pasengers are booked as far as Seville only, others to be taken aboard there will complete the passenger complement to South America.

Will Follow Mediterranean Coast.

Dr. Eckener, leaving his office for the hangar shortly before the ship's take-off, announced that as far as he could determine the course would be by way of Neuchatel, in the Swiss Juras, and thereafter, depending on the weathr, by way of Geneva or Pontarlier. Although he said beyond that he could not prognosticate it was understood the craft probably would head down the Rhone Valley toward Marseilles, where it would follow the Mediterranean Coast toward Gibraltar and Seville.

Start of the craft was delayed somewhat when Dr. Eckener found that atmospheric conditions had made it too heavy. He ordered half a ton of weight taken off, half of it in oil and half in water ballast. The auxiliary engine, upon which the gyroscope compass and radio are dependent, then had to be cooled with compressed air, since it had been tuned up two hours before the start and was in danger of overheating.

Band Plays at Take-off.

Lady Grace Drummond-Hay was the first of the passengers to arrive at the hangar. She carried some evening dresses on hangers underneath her arm, and went immediately to her stateroom. Others arrived thereafter and stood about as the band played for the crowd of well-wishers who had gathered for the take-off. Frau Eckener, smiling, presented her husband with two red carnations which she said would bring him luck.

As the Graf rose the crowd roared its bon voyage and the band played "Deutschland Uber Alles."

Although weather reports for the start of the trip once Lake Constance was crossed were favorable conditions here were anything but pleasant. The sky was hazy and cloud covered, with a threat of rain. There was very little wind.

Ice Supply Carried.

Besides passengers and crew, the Graf Zeppelin carried with it today six tons of gasoline, 2,000 kilograms of oil, 75,000 cubic meters of hydrogen gas, 25,000 cubic meters of Blau gas, used for fuel, and nearly two

2,000 ADVERTISERS ARRIVE FOR MEETING

Pan-American Union Visited by Federation During Early Session.

POTOMAC TRIP FEATURE

More than 2,000 leaders in their field throughout the United States had arrived in Washington last night to attend the twenty-sixth annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America, which starts at the Willard Hotel today.

In a preliminary program yesterday, the delegates representing 125 advertising clubs and 25 groups of national advertising interests enjoyed a concert at the Willard by the Drum and Bugle Corps of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which was followed by a visit to the Pan-American Union.

There the advertisers were greeted by Dr. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Union, who said in part:

"Viewed in its broadest aspects your work contributes much to the larger purposes of better international acquaintance and understanding. There are two distinct aspects of the work of the Pan-American Union. There is what might be called its strictly official work, which involves the development of closer cooperation between the governments of the American republics in every field of national endeavor.

"On the other hand, and equally important, is the unofficial work in which the Pan-American Union devotes itself to establishing closer relations and better understanding between the peoples of this continent. Serving as it does as a great center of information, it is constantly giving detailed information relative to the cultural, industrial and commercial activities of the United States.

"It is in this aspect of its work that the interest and cooperation of your great organization is of much significance and importance. On the character of advertising of American products which you place in the newspapers of Latin America depends to a very considerable extent their faith in the trustworthiness and honesty of our merchants and manufacturers. Your record in this respect does honor to your federation and has meant a real service to the international relations of the United States."

In response Charles C. Youngreen, president of the Advertising Federation of America, said in part: "The aim and purpose of organized

16 LIVES TAKEN WHEN TORNADO HITS ARKANSAS

Southwest Section of State Is Menaced by Flood Waters.

11 KILLED AS TWISTER STRIKES PLANTATION

Damage to Oil Fields by Inundation Estimated at $1,000,000.

THREE DIE IN HEAVY STORM NEAR DALLAS

Relief by Red Cross Rushed to Hundreds Homeless; Epidemic Feared.

Little Rock, Ark., May 18 (A.P.).—A tornado striking in East Arkansas early today killed at least 16 persons, all Negroes, and injured perhaps 100, while flood waters swept over a vast area in southwest Arkansas, making hundreds homeless in the oil fields section and causing huge property damage.

The tornado fatalities were in the Town of Elaine, near Helena, and on the levee-inclosed Lambrook Plantation, owned by Gerard B. Lambert, a St. Louis pharmaceutical manufacturer. Eleven Negroes were killed on the Lambrook Plantation, on which virtually all buildings were demolished; two were killed at Elaine; two were killed on the Howe brothers' rice farm, 2 miles west of Wabash, and one on a plantation between the rice farm and Elaine.

Smackover Creek overflowed in the oil field section near Eldorado, which, together with a flood from the Red River, brought one of the most serious flood situations southwest Arkansas ever has known.

Oil Field Towns Inundated.

Many persons were reported marooned and rescue parties were searching the flood waters in boats.

The oil field towns of Kenova, Griffin and Louann were under water and the residents were being taken to Smackover, which was partially inundated, and to Eldorado.

The American Red Cross began rescue and relief work, establishing headquarters in the city hall at Smackover. Midwestern headquarters of the Red Cross at St. Louis were rushing relief workers to the section.

A company of the Arkansas National Guard at Eldorado also was assisting in rescue and relief work. Many persons were brought to hospitals in Eldorado suffering from exposure.

Typhoid Outbreak Feared.

Damager to the oil industry in the Eldorado section was estimated at $1,000,000 by Col. W. C. O'Ferrall, production superintendent of the Standard Oil Co. there, who took charge of relief work at Smackover.

Measles already has broken out in the refugee camp at Smackover, and fear of an outbreak of typhoid resulted in a hurried call for serum.

The Red River was on a rampage in southwest Arkansas and northeast Texas, demoralizing rail and highway traffic.

Hundreds of persons north of Texarkana in Arkansas were moving out of the lowlands, many of them taking household goods with them. Rescue work is under way also in that section. No loss of life was reported either in the Eldorado or Texarkana flood sections.

Tornado in Tennessee.

HIS FOES RIOT

PRESIDENT MACHADO.

FOUR SLAIN AS CUBA NATIONALISTS CLASH

Artemisa Mass Meeting of Machado Foes Turns Into Furious Riot.

THREE SOLDIERS KILLED

Artemisa, Cuba, May 18 (A.P.).—Four persons were killed today and 20 others severely injured when soldiers broke up a Nationalist mass meeting. Shots were exchanged between the troops and the Nationalistas, who are opponents of President Machado.

Those killed were Lieut. Alberto de Silva and Corpl. Leon, of the army, Manuel Arozamena, retired captain of aviation, and Miguel Serra, a concession owner.

The injured were rushed to hospitals here and in other parts of Pinar del Rio province. A few suffering from machete cuts and slight bullet wounds were taken to Havana hospitals.

The rioting started shortly after Col. Carlos Mendieta, leader of the Nationalista organization arrived at the meeting. The crowd was assembling around the speakers' platform to hear a speech, when Lieut. Silva leaped on the stand. He warned the orator not to mention the name of Julio Mella, Cuban student, who was killed in January, 1919, at Mexico City, and then took a place among the listeners.

A quarrel broke out and a captain of the rural guards came through the crowds with a troop of 26 men. A sudden burst of fire, said to have come from the belfry of a nearby church, then threw the massed men and women into panic.

Soldiers then rode through the Nacionalistas, wielding machetes in an attempt to disperse them. Other shots were fired and both soldiers and Nacionalistas began dropping.

Order was restored after half an hour of furious rioting, and troops patroled the streets to prevent any further outbreak.

A hasty check-up of the injured failed to show any women's names in the list, and Col. Mendieta, although in the center of the melee, escaped injury.

PENNSYLVANIA VOTERS IGNORE HOOVER ISSUE

Great Party Questions Disregarded in Davis and Grundy Fight.

MACHINE POLITICS WILL BE INFLUENCE

Senator's Forces Aided by Powerful Eastern Tariff Men.

ATTERBURY LOOMS AS COMING POWER

Regardless of Winning Side, Inquiry Seems Certain in Pennsylvania.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 18.—If Senator Joseph R. Grundy is nominated in Tuesday's Pennsylvania primary, and it is believed, although this is a most confused state of political affairs, that he will be, it will be interpreted far and wide as a slap at President Hoover's administration.

And this is not exactly as it should be, because Mr. Hoover is not the issue that is being made. No one hears his name from the political stump. Not once has his name entered into the campaign save for Secretary of Labor Davis' claim, abstractly made, that he is the administration candidate.

The millions of Keystone people who will go to the polls on Tuesday will be influenced by their ward leaders, by the machine politics of the State, by the high-calibered composition of the uncertain wet ticket, by the negative nature of Mr. Davis' campaign and by other things.

Tariff Backers Interested.

That it is a battle between forces that will bear on the destiny of the Republican party they have not at all in mind. They are that sort of mechanical figures in the great national game.

One is impressed when he first enters the State by the appearance that Mr. Grundy is arrayed against the rest of Republicanism, not only a strong and powerful faction in this State, but the political element of the party of the country by and large. That observation stands out in one's mind until he runs into the fact that Mr. Grundy is being assisted by powerful tariff influences from all over the East. In other words, just as there will be men out in the Middle West interested in the outcome of Tuesday's vote, so will there be big financial influences of the East.

History is really being made, and in such a haphazard, reckless political way. Those who are making the story have little idea of what it is all about. A thousand persons in such and such a ward will vote for Mr. Davis or for Mr. Grundy because their

AUTHORITIES TO ASK SANITY HEARING FOR BAKER CASE SUSPECT

PRIVATE HOWARD L. BREWSTER.

Soldier Again Confesses and Denies That He Slew Girl.

FIVE HOURS' GRILLING BARREN OF RESULTS

Formal Charges to Await Decision by Medical Examining Board.

ANOTHER ARMY MAN SUBJECTED TO QUIZ

Hunt Through Brewster's Effects Fails to Reveal Any Letters.

Military authorities today will request a sanity hearing to determine the mental responsibility of Private Harold L. Brewster, whose alternate admissions and denials of the murder of Mary Baker have placed authorities in a dilemma as mystifying as the slaying.

This decision was reached yesterday afternoon by Capt. A. R. Bolling, in charge of Headquarters Company, to which Brewster is attached. Capt. Bolling today will ask his superiors to designate an examining board to conduct the inquiry.

Brewster was grilled for five hours yesterday by Army officials and Detectives Walter Fowler and John Flaherty, of the District headquarters. Brewster was taken from the guard house to Capt. Bolling's office in the company barracks at Eighteenth and C streets northwest.

Denies, Reaffirms Story.

After a continuous interrogation for two hours he was permitted a brief respite and was returned to the inquisition chamber in the afternoon, where he was questioned until 5 o'clock. In the questioning, it was learned, Brewster affirmed his guilt only to deny and reaffirm his story that the killed the Navy Department clerk.

Capt. Bolling and District detectives also questioned a private in the Headquarters Company who is assigned to take care of the stables with Brewster. Their object was to discover, if possible, corroboration of the suspect's story that he was in the vicinity of Seventeenth and B streets on April 11.

The private could not assist the officers in any way. Detectives are striving to learn Brewster's circle of friends and to determine his financial circumstances. Late yesterday none had been found who could aid them.

Kept Largely to Himself.

Other soldiers in the company said that Brewster was inclined to keep to himself and was not on intimate terms with any of the company soldiers.

Operatives began a search for two women who were said to have been in Brewster's company a few weeks ago. One of the soldiers at the barracks told questioners yesterday that he had seen Brewster, another soldier and two women in a ballroom in this city three weeks ago.

There was no indication last night that a murder warrant would be sworn out against Brewster. If the medical board finds that the man is sane authorities intimated that a murder charge may be placed against him.

Among the numerous stories told by Brewster yesterday is that he placed the girl's body in the culvert but did not fire the shots into her body. He said that he struck the gearshift lever while punching the girl, while earlier he had told authorities that he was not in the car when he struck her.

Search Fails to Reveal Gun.

On the strength of Brewster's statement that he threw the gun from the window of the automobile before the culvert was reached, police searched the underbrush on the north side of

CAPITAL TURF MAN DIES IN AUTO CRASH

RETURNING FROM DANCE

Collinsville, Ill., May 18 (A.P.).—Jimmy Shelton, 23, veteran jockey at Fairmount Race Track; James Eaton, 25, an exercise boy, and Randall Smallwood, 37, a jockey's agent, were burned to death early today when their automobile caught fire after crashing into a concrete abutment on a road 3 miles northeast of here.

Apparently stunned by the crash and trapped in the car, the three men burned to death before help could reach them. Their bodies were not removed from the twisted wreckage of the car until 5 a. m. today.

Shelton resided at Flora, Ill.; Eaton at Mattoon, Ill., and Smallwood lived at Washington, D. C. The three were returning from a dance hall near Troy, Ill., when the accident occurred.

Smallwood was driving. He apparently failed to make a turn at the bottom of a hill and struck the abutment. Shelton had been riding at Fairmount and other Western race tracks for many years. Last Thursday he rode a winner in a race at Fairmount. Eaton and Smallwood worked at the Fairmount track.

Although Randall Smallwood was born in Markham, Va., he was well known in Washington racing circles. His family spent many years here and he stayed in this city during race meetings at nearby tracks. Two of his brothers were also known to Washington racing fans. One of them, Edward, has ridden for E. C. Winsby, a New York Turfman. Another brother, Raymond Smallwood, is also a jockey.

Smallwood is survived by another brother, Jennings, an officer in the merchant marine, and by four sisters. They are Miss Gaynel Small-

DRY LAWS BRANDED AS UNENFORCEABLE

Senator Wheeler Declares Backing of Community Not Given Law.

GRAFT TRAIL DEPLORED

Prohibition is not being enforced for the reason that no law can be enforced unless it has the moral backing of the community, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana told members of the Citizens' Service Association at Calvary Baptist Church last night.

This assertion came almost immediately after the Rev. William S. Abernethy, D. D., pastor of the church, had concluded his introduction of Senator Wheeler with the challenge that:

"The forces of dampness and darkness are hereby warned that the powers of temperance are enlisted for the duration of the war, and will not quit until the liquor evil is abolished."

Senator Wheeler cited the actions of various States recently, particularly Montana, in repealing their local prohibition laws, and declared this was being done "because the poeple are disgusted with the conditions which prohibition has created. Unless these conditions are overcome promptly," he asserted, "prohibition is doomed."

In explaining the failure to enforce prohibition, Senator Wheeler pointed out that "unless the people are in favor of a law, it is almost impossible to enforce that law. The sentiment of the people finds its way into the jury box."

Declaring that he was present "neither as an ardent dry nor as a wet," Senator Wheeler pointed out that "we must talk about prohibition because, although I regret to say it, it is the overshadowing issue in political fields today.

"Prohibition has not brought the millennium, nor can it ever accom-

Small Gain in Census May Lead to Recount

Check Through Capital Agencies Suggested When Official Count Falls Below Estimates In City and Phone Directories.

Expressions of surprise at the failure of the official District census, as announced by the newspapers yesterday, to enumerate a larger population for Washington were voiced by civic leaders. While there was no criticism of the Census Bureau, suggestions were offered that it might be advisable to check the 485,716 total with another count conducted by local agencies.

That many persons living in the District were not enumerated by the Census Bureau is apparent from complaints made to The Post by residents who, for one reason or another, were not reached by the enumerators. It was learned on good authority, for instance, that two city blocks in an outlying section of the city were not canvassed.

It was recalled also that the publication of blanks in The Post and other Washington newspapers for the use of those who had not been counted brought in several hundred additional names to the bureau.

The failure of the District tabulation to pass the half million mark was considered especially surprising, it was pointed out, in view of the estimates made in the City Directory issued this spring and by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Compilers of the city directory placed the District's population at 591,616. This was based, it was said, "on the number of individuals' names in the alphabetical section of the directory with due allowance for children and women whose names are not listed separate from those of their husbands." The telephone company estimate was "well over a half-million."

The preliminary report of the bureau gave the District a gain of only slightly over 11 per cent over the 437,571 population of a decade ago. It was pointed out, though, by J. Sterling Moran, supervisor, that the popularity of the automobile had enabled an increasing number of persons who have their business in Washington to live in nearby Maryland or Virginia.

"I was surprised that the population was not greater" Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner, admitted, "but, then, I think we have the quality if not the quantity we expected."

A similar opinion was expressed by Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, chairman of the District Commissioners, but he said that he had based his optimism merely on the published estimates that preceded the official tabulation.

"It is very surprising, indeed," commented Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, while explaining that he had no criticism to make of the Census Bureau, he suggested that another count by the police the first of next year might be advisable.

Charles W. Darr, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said, "The

Hoover Returns to Capital After Chilly Visit to Camp

Stop Made in Warrenton; President Leaves Again Tonight, Going to Hampton Roads to Review Fleet Off Virginia Capes Tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

Riding most of the way over wet roads, President Hoover arrived early last night at the White House after his week-end trip to the presidential camp in Virginia.

In the car with the Chief Executive on the three-hour drive from the camp were Senator Fess, of Ohio; Representatives Blackburn, of Kentucy, and Free, of California, all Republicans.

Three others of the thirteen guests who went on the fishing trip, Secretary Stimson, Attorney General Mitchell and Senator Capper, of Kansas, left thte camp ahead of the rest of the party because of dinner engagements in the Capital.

The President retired early to get a good rest before he leaves lat tonight for Hampton Roads to review the United States fleet off the Virginia Capes tomorrow.

He is to go by special train to Old Point Comfort, Va, spending the night on the train. He will board the cruiser Salt Lake City early Tuesday. The review is to take place about two hours' cruise from land.

On the return trip from the camp the presidential car, followed by the secret service car, outstripped the others in the early stages of the journey.

At Warrenton, Va., the President ordered a stop in the residential section to permit the other cars to catch up. He stepped out and walked up and down beside the car, while inhabitants of the little Virginia town gathered in their front yards to see the Chief Executive.

Orange, Va., May 18 (A.P.).—Persistent chilly rains kept President Hoover and a party of friends grouped around a blazing log fire today in the communal hall of the presidential camp on the Rapidan River.

After the brisk mountain air of the President's retreat had been

Fearing Suspicion in Dodge Case, Poiret Aid Ends Life

Paris Firm Bookkeeper Leaves Note Protesting Innocence of Having Informed U. S. Agents of Purchases by Woman Fined in New York.

Paris, May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The chief bookkeeper of the famous Paris dressmaking firm of Paul Poiret, a man named Bray, committed suicide yesterday because he believed he was suspected of having furnished t- American Treasury agents information relative to purchases from his employer by Mrs. Robert L. Dodge, of Mill Neck, Long Island, which led to search and seizure of her baggage on her arrival in New York from France and subsequent payment of a fine of more than $200,000.

At the time of this seizure great indignation was aroused in Paris by reports that the informer who had "tipped off" the customs authorities had received a commission of $50,000. Mrs. Dodge had only admitted the charges against her, it was brought out, when confronted with actual photographs of her account with Poiret.

Poiret lodged a complaint with the Paris police against the unknown person who had placed at the disposal of the American Treasury agents confidential information relating to hi- business.

Although enjoying an excellent reputation and the full confidence of his employers, Bray left a letter declaring himself innocent, but explaining that he realized the impossibility of averting suspicion from himself.

The fine of $213,286 imposed upon Mrs. Dodge for failure to declare gowns and jewelry brought into the United States by her and for undervaluation of some articles declared is said to be the heaviest customs fine ever imposed at New York.

Mrs. Dodge is owner and president of Harriet Hubbard Ayer, Inc., manufacturers of cosmetics.

Cemetery road. Nothing was found. The foliage is very dense at this point.

R. W. Epler, who lives at 501 Brown street, Clarendon, yesterday came to headquarters with a handkerchief which he said he found in Arlington Cemetery two weeks ago. Police attached little significance to his find although they showed interest in his story that he had seen a coupe, bearing Maryland license tags, near the culvert on several occasions.

Epler had traversed the road almost daily since last February. Each afternoon between 4:45 and 5:15 he said he saw this automobile parked alongside the culvert. He did not note the number of the license tags.

Story Held Fantastic.

Investigators frankly admit that the man tells so many conflicting stories that they believe him to be suffering mental aberrrations. "Yet," says Inspector Williiam S. Shelby, "although his story seems fantastic, it is full of elements of fact which have not been heretofore revealed."

Further examination yesterday of Brewster's effects failed to reveal anything that would connect him with the murder. No correspondence was found in his quarters. All that authorities have which fits the description of the man seen beating Miss Baker is a gray cap and a gray suit.

Lee Masters, of Clarendon, and Francis Rice, who have partially identified the man, have by their acts added some substance to the man's confession.

Witness Tells of Hearing Shots.

An incident that tends to support the police theory that the murder occurred between 6 and 7 o'clock was made known yesterday when a witness was uncovered who said he heard shots near the culvert at 6:30 o'clock on the evening of April 11.

Thomas Allison, who lives a few hundred yards west of the culvert, told Sheriff Howard B. Fields yesterday that just before dusk on that night he heard a single shot as an automobile sped east on Cemetery road. Allison went to the window of his home but could not get a good view of the machine. It was obscured in a cloud of dust and he could not determine its make.

Allison's story coincides with that of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Masters, who saw a man running from the direction of the place where the car was abandoned.

The couple witnessed the flight of the man near Maine mast in Arlington Cemetery about 7 o'clock. Before they entered the cemetery they saw an automobile parked near the place where Miss Baker's car was found on April 12.

Choice Liquors Seized In New York Dry Raids

New York, May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A burst of activity from Federal prohibition agents under the direction of Maj. Maurice Campbell resulted in a series of eight raids in upper Manhattan and the Bronx which ended early today in the Kitty Kat Inn, a night club in Negro Harlem. They acted on warrants issued by a United States commissioner after having made purchases of liquor in many of the places raided, and arrested nine persons.

Their biggest haul was in the Metropolitan Restaurant on Amsterdam avenue, where they took twenty cases of assorted liquors valued at $1,000, seized a capping and corking machine and arrested James Costigan, 30.

Ship Carrying Embassy Rum Grounds; Floated

Woods Hole, Mass., May 18 (A.P.).—The U. S. Shipping Board freighter Kearny, which went ashore on rocks off Nobska Point in Vineyard Sound early yesterday, was floated at high tide today and proceeded under her own steam for Baltimore.

The ship's watertight compartments were reported to be confining the intake of water from the hole in the vessel's starboard bow to the immediate compartment damaged. The Kearny called at Boston after a passage from Liverpool. The ship's cargo includes a consignment of choice liquor for the embassies at Washington.

POLICE ARREST 400 IN INDIA SALT RAIDS

Nationalists Loot Depots as Officers Turn Backs; Violence Avoided.

NEW VOLUNTEERS COME

Bombay, India, May 18 (A.P.).—Elaborate police precautions failed today to prevent desultory raiding by Nationalist volunteers on the salt depots at both Dharasana and Wadala. Four hundred Hindus were arrested at Wadala alone by the officers. Others were taken into custody at Dharasana.

At Dharasana a strange struggle occurred between the constabulary and the Nationalists. The latter, crowding to the small town from every part of Gujerat, waited passively until the attention of police was engaged elsewhere, and then stepped in to loot the government salt bins.

During the night the Nationalists discovered the police had left unguarded a small path leading to the salt depot, and immediately small batches of them pressed into the barbed wire fence surrounding the salt pans. The police rounded them up quickly and released them outside the clearing. However, when the officers returned they found 100 other volunteers sitting silently in front of the fence.

Trains Bring Hundreds More.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, who since the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi and Abbas Tyabji is in charge of the civil disobedience movement, declared the volunteers at Dharasana have "imprisoned the police behind their own bars."

Every train brings hundreds of Satyagrahis, as the Nationalist volunteers are called, to the little village, where the silent, bloodless battle with the police is being waged.

A similar situation prevailed near the salt depot at Wadala. A group of volunteers who spent the night at the public gardens at Matunga, a half mile away, awoke to find themselves surrounded by police. The volunteers were herded into police vans when it was discovered that 75 raiders had slipped away in the direction of Wadala.

Raid Made at Main Gate.

Commissioner Healy, in charge of the police, ordered the leader of the volunteers to bring them back. The leader complied and left for Wadala. Meanwhile, those who had escaped had reached the salt depot and made a raid at the main gate, where a large police force received them.

A group of twenty men then marched to Antop Hill, where they tried to force entrance to the salt depot, but were frustrated by police who got there first. The raiders sat on the ground to await developments. The police finally took them into custody.

Meanwhile, small batches of volunteers, appearing apparently from nowhere, evaded vigilance and ran up to the salt pans and seized handfuls of salt. They were overtaken before they escaped and taken to a salt shed, where the salt was taken from them before they were removed to the detention camp at Worli. There they found others who had been arrested during the proceedings.

All Raids Without Violence.

Operations on both sides were carried on without violence. Other all-India National Congress volunteers returned to Matunga after a more successful raid against a part of the Wadalia Depot and showered handfuls of salt on the police, including their district commissioner, and those who had been arrested.

After arrival of the congress volunteers, the Matunga villagers, who had been mere spectators, became active participants. The villagers would rush to the salt pans and make raids at various unexpected points, removing large quantities of salt. A stream of persons of all ages and both sexes besmeared with mud and slime, returned home at noon carrying salt in their caps and shirts. Thirty of the villagers were arrested.

Two lorries full of Indian armed police finally arrived at Wadalla to reinforce the police who were already there.

Volunteers Outnumber Guards.

Though the police reinforcements managed at first to prevent any serious inroads on the salt pans at Wadala, large crowds of volunteers appeared in the evening and soon greatly outnumbered the guards. Keeping the police constantly on the jump, they made several raids and succeeded in carrying away a sizable quantity of salt.

The congress "war council" was reported to have met today and to have secretly determined to make another raid in force at Wadala tomorrow. This news was met by the police with arrangements for reinforcements.

From Mymensingh, where trouble occurred over a shipment of liquor last week, came the only report of mob violence today. A cart loaded with liquor and cigarettes for the European club was seized and set afire by a mob a few yards from a police station. One man was arrested.

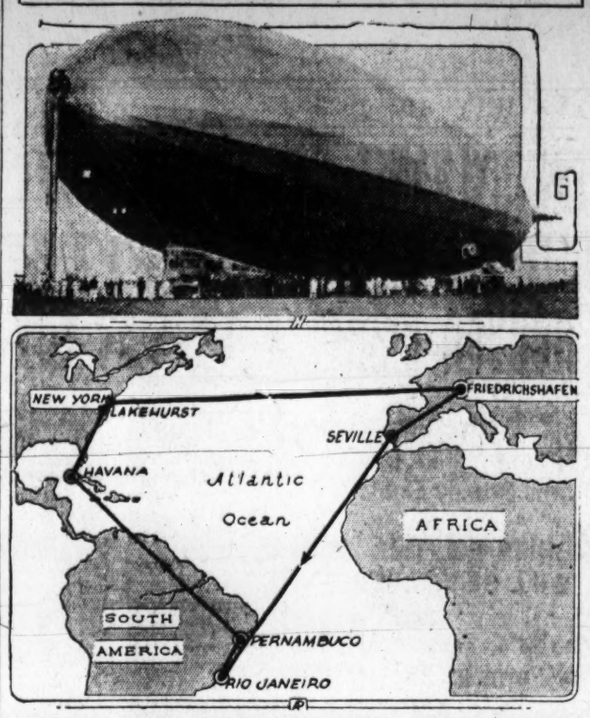
GRAF AND ROUTE OF HER FLIGHT



The huge German dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, took off from her home port yesterday on an 18,000-mile flight, the route of which is indicated on the map below.

GRAF ZEPPELIN OFF ON FLIGHT OF 18,000 MILES TO AMERICAS

tons of water ballast, the amount of which is to be greatly increased at Seville. These supplies were reckoned as being sufficient for 120 hours flying.

The ship also carried 35 tons useful load, including 1,200 pounds of letters and postcards. There were provisions weighing almost 2,000 pounds, including 120 bottles of wine, 6,000 eggs and 200 pounds of special Zeppelin bread. In anticipation of the hot weather crossing the Equator, there were 1,500 pounds of ice aboard.

Plans Menus for Voyage.

In preparing menus for the transocean journey the chef, Otto Manz, apparently made no concessions whatever to Spanish tastes. His menus all have a pronounced suabian character, and include such items as Lake Constance fish, pigs' ribs, veal fricandeau, "sauerbraten," fattened chicken a la Zeppelin, and thick suabian soups.

The present trip of the Graf Zeppelin, figuring its course roughly, should approximate 18,000 miles, just 1,000 miles less than its most ambitious venture thus far, the trip last year around the world, which took about 19,000 miles.

From Seville the Graf will fly by way of the Canary Islands to Pernambuco, Brazil, and head down the South American coast the additional 1,250 miles to Rio Janeiro, where a brief stay will be made. About four or five days is expected for this stage of the journey.

Will Stop in Havana.

Leaving Rio Janeiro, it will head back up along the South American coast and across the Caribbean Sea to Havana, where another stop will be made. From Havana it will go to Lakehurst, N. J., preparatory to the take-off on the return transatlantic journey, which will be its seventh crossing of the sea between Europe and the Americas. About four or five days are expected to be consumed between Rio Janeiro and Lakehurst.

Not since the Graf Zeppelin first began its longer cruises has there been a take-off accompanied with less ado than today. If it had not been Sunday, when the entire population of Friedrichshafen was out walking any way, there might have been few persons present except relatives of passengers and crew to see the ship off.

For the first time there were no special trains bringing spectators to the field. The departure seemed to attract almost no attention at all hereabouts, the general feeling being that the Graf and its trips are to be accepted now with as little questioning as if she were an ocean liner.

22 Passengers Sail On Long Graf Voyage

Friedrichshafen, Germany, May 18 (A.P.).—There are 22 passengers aboard the Graf Zeppelin, of whom six will be dropped at Seville to make room for others who will make the transatlantic flight to Brazil, four of the passengers are women and four are Americans.

The passengers are:

George Crouse, of Syracuse, N. Y., who has flown on the Zeppelin before, and his sister, Mrs. Laura Durston, also of Syracuse.

Gustav Kauder, German newspaper correspondent.

Karl Von Wiegand and Lady Grace Drummond-Hay, American newspaper correspondents.

Dr. Jeronomo Megias, personal physician to King Alfonso of Spain.

Fernando Sanchez, Spanish writer and lecturer.

Gonzales Herrero, Jeronimo Elias and Jorge Riviere, all of Spain. The latter two are booked for Seville only.

Dr. Martin Wronsky, a director of the Lufthansa Corporation.

Jacob Zwtcky, of Zurich, Swiss business man.

Prof. Licinio Cardos, of Rio Janeiro.

Corpus Barga,, representing La Nacion, of Buenos Aires.

Capt. Joachim Breithaupt, a German naval officer.

Dr. Badt, of the German transport ministry.

Alfredo Groeschel and Frau Groeschel, owners of a cafe of San Sebastian, who are going only as far as Seville.

Frau Docky Hammer, wife of Fritz Hammer, who has been requested by the Darnier Co. to pilot the DO-X on its projected transoceanic flight.

Lieut. Col. Garcia de Pruneda and Lieut. Ricardo Casa, Spanish aviation officials, both of whom are booked for Seville only.

Among those who will be picked up at Seville is Mrs. Mary Pierce, of New York, whose insistence on making the trip to America last May, when the dirigible had to make a forced landing in France almost brought brought diplomatic intervention to keep her from going aboard the ship.

Tardieu Urges Veterans To Upbuilding Program

Lyons, France, May 18 (A.P.).—France's World War veterans were given a new call to action today by Premier Tardieu, who told 3,000 delegates of the National Union of Combatants, with a membership of 600,000, that the "hour has come to sound an awakening" for a fifteen-year peaceful fight to develop France and her colonies into a great strong nation of 100,000,000 safe from attack, but ready for defense.

One Killed, One Hurt When Auto Turns Over

Norfolk, Va., May 18 (A.P.).—William M. Beachman, quartermaster, first class, attached to the Coast Guard cutter Mascoutin, was killed instantly this afternoon and Henry H. Peyton, seaman, first class, attached to the same ship, was seriously injured, when the automobile in which they were riding turned over four times on the Virginia Beach boulevard.

Beachman, who was driving the car, a light roadster, was on his way to Kitty Hawk, N. C., his home, to attend the funeral of a cousin. In some manner he lost control of the machine and it swerved off the road and turned over four times, finally landing in a field. Peyton suffered a broken left leg, a broken right arm and wrist, and severe cuts about the face.

Lincoln Furniture Added To Henry Ford Collection

Motor Magnate Convinces Illinois Family That Objects Are Too Valuable for Everyday Use and Carts Them Off to Dearborn.

Hillsboro, Ill., May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Furniture that Abraham Lincoln auctioned off on the lawn of his home at Springfield, Ill., before he left that two-story frame house in 1861 to become President, has just been bought by Henry Ford, who once said "History is bunk."

The purchases were made from Dick and Ben Wilton, of this town, whose grandfather, Henry Wilton, a United States marshal, who lived across the street from Abraham and Mary Lincoln, bought them from the Great Emancipator. For 70 years the household effects have been in constant use in the Wilton family.

Notable among the historical relics are the two shining green containers, Abraham Lincoln's cuspidors. The two dozen pieces of furniture include a massive old mahogany wardrobe, 8 feet tall and 5 feet wide, carved out of half a ton of solid wood; a small mahogany folding table, decorated with carved acanthus leaves and standing on brass claw feet; a long mirror in a gilt frame, the glass divided into two panels; a dozen straight-backed chairs, two heavy rocking chairs, a 20-inch clock, which still ticks; two rosewood footstools, a rickety little table, a hand washstand, and even a scrap of curtain material once used in the Lincoln home.

The negotiations culminating in the purchase have been in progress for six months.

The Wiltons had frequently refused to sell the furniture, although overtures had been made to them by several historical societies and at least three universities. How much Mr Ford paid for the relics remains a secret; the Wiltons will only say that it was "several hundred dollars," having been pledged to secrecy by Mr. Ford's agent.

The latest antiques acquired by Ford were at once packed for removal to Dearborn. There they will be placed on display in the chief building in Dearborn Village, the Lincoln Courthouse which Ford recently bought from Lincoln, Ill., and moved to Michigan over the protests of Illinois historians.

The clock which marked off the years which saw Lincoln rise from a State politician to a figure of world eminence, the chairs in which he stretched his gaunt frame while planning his presidential campaign, the wardrobe in which his neat wife kept his clothes—all the furniture which he used for fifteen years—was purchased by Henry Wilton at the request of his wife. She wanted the chairs to sit in, the tables to use in the manner for which they were built, and she and her descendants have so used them for more than three score years. It took Mr. Ford to convince Henry Wilton's grandsons that they were too valuable for everyday use.

TARIFF BILL RAPPED BY SWISS MINISTER

Higher Duties Are Threat to Economic Relations, He Declares.

CONCERN FELT AT HOME

A rap at the pending United States tariff schedule was taken by Marc Peter, Minister from Switzerland, in an address yesterday afternoon over the Columbia Broadcasting System from Station WMAL in the Conclave of Nationals series. The bill, if put in effect, "threatens to impair the economic relations of our two countries," he declared.

The Swiss Minister did not dwell on the tariff, however, explaining: "But I do not want to speak more of such matters, the purpose of these international broadcasts being to bring peoples to a better and more sympathetic understanding."

Switzerland exceeds all other nations in the tourist business, Mr. Peter said, but it is also highly industrialized, 47 per cent of its workers being employed in manufacturing industries. Because of the comparatively small population, the country has been forced to seek foreign markets, he explained, and thus she has built up a large trade with the United States.

"In order to be able to compete and sell her products in other countries," he said, "in spite of their custom walls, Switzerland was forced to adopt the principle of producing only articles of superior quality, made by skilful and well-trained labor.

"We ship an important quantity to the United States, whereas in return we purchase a great portion and for a greater amount the raw materials which we lack, as, for instance, soil products, machines for agriculture, automobiles and their like.

"It is not without concern they heard, in Switzerland, of the new American tariff with high and almost prohibitive duties, which threaten to impair the economic relations of our two countries, because it is not always possible to buy where one can not sell."

ARKANSAS TORNADO CLAIMS 16 LIVES

have been struck by a tornado, one struck the town of Somerville, Tenn., injuring seven persons.

The floods in southwest Arkansas followed by several days of heavy rainfall, which also has brought serious high-water situations in other sections of the State. Highways in many sections of the State are under water, bridges have been washed out and rail traffic in some places has been interrupted.

Highways in the Elaine section also are in bad condition which handicapped tornado relief work and made it difficult to determine whether there were any fatalities in addition to the sixteen Negroes or to determine the number of injured.

Three Killed Near Dallas.

Dalas, Tex., May 18 (A.P.).—Three Negroes were killed by a heavy rain, hail and wind storm which struck Dallas and Ellis Counties last night. Two were killed near Wilmer and the other near Crandall. Much crop and property damage was done by the hail.

The frame school building at Ovilla was wrecked by the wind and every business house was damaged badly. At De Soto a drug store was wrecked and several other business places damaged.

In a path a mile wide, between Ovilla and De Soto, virtually every residence and farm building was damaged.

Many Suffer Exposure.

El Dorado, Ark., May 18 (A.P.).—A flood, said to be the worst in south Arkansas history, late today had inundated an area of approximately 30 square miles, covering the towns of Griffin and Louann and was threatening the village of Smackover of about 1,050 population.

Thousands of residents of the Smackover Oil Field camps were homeless.

The Red Cross entered the flood area late today, establishing camps at Sunnyland, overlooking the flooded area. Many refugees were suffering from exposure.

Child Born on Raft.

A child was born to a woman refugee floating down the rain-swollen creek on a raft, while another mother and her three babies were swept away in a boat, which later capsized. All were rescued but the children were in a serious condition.

Workers have been unable to reach inland areas and a report of loss of life was not obtainable.

St. Louis, May 18 (A.P.).—R. N. Benson, chairman of the American Red Cross Chapter at El Dorado, Ark., advised division headquarters of the Red Cross here this afternoon that approximately 2,500 persons were affected by a flood in the vicinity of Griffin, Louann and Smackover, Ark. He said a refugee camp has been set up and is supplying clothing, food and shelter. No estimate on the possible loss of life was given.

Flood Comes Without Warning.

Benson told A. Winfrey, in charge of division disaster relief work, that the flood came up unexpectedly last night after heavy rains and that it was expected to recede soon, as the rise was local.

The Red Cross authorized expenditure of whatever funds are needed to cope with the situation.

HOUSE PLANS TO END WORK ABOUT JUNE 1

Tariff Legislation Viewed as Possible Block to Adjournment.

SENATE ACTION URGED

(Associated Press.)

With but few controverted pieces of important legislation to be disposed of by the House at this session, the Republican leaders in that branch have advised the administration followers in the Senate that adjournment of Congress would be welcomed about June 1, if the tariff bill issue is settled.

Speaker Longworth said the House would be able to conclude the session within two weeks after definite action on the tariff by acting on Muscle Shoals and deficiency appropriations legislation.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the House Republican floor leader, said it had been planned to bring about adjournment the first of June, but added:

"Adjournment now is entirely contingent on the action of the Senate on the tariff."

Urge Senate Action.

The other of the big three Republican House leaders, Representative Snell, of New York, takes the view that his branch has "done everything in the course of normal, logical procedure in passing the most important legislation."

"We feel the Senate should act on the partial conference report on the tariff and that it should bring its activities up to a par with those of the House, so that adjournment may be had early in June," the New Yorker added.

The House leaders have prepared a program to dispose of a large quantity of miscellaneous legislation during the coming week, including action on the Hawley bill to readjust the method by which the German government may reimburse the United States for expenses incurred by the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine.

Will Hear Reece Plan.

While waiting for the Senate to speed action on numerous measures already passed by the House, leaders plan to bring up the Reece plan for the disposal of Muscle Shoals through leasing to private interests. However, it has not been decided when the plan, which is a substitute for the Norris resolution to authorize Government operation, is to be brought to the floor.

Failure so far of the House judiciary committee to agree on a legislative program to carry out the Law Enforcement Commission's proposals to relieve Federal Court congestion, has led Representative Tilson to the belief that those proposals are dead for this session. However, the judiciary committee is to meet again today in an effort to arrive at a conclusion as to whether they will recommend broadening the powers of United States commissioners to handle minor dry law violations or to authorize additional Federal judges.

The second deficiency bill pending before the House appropriations committee will afford some interest in view of President Hoover's recommendation for $12,660,000 for the initial work on Boulder Canyon Dam on the Colorado River. Hearings are to begin on that item today, and Representative Douglas (Democrat), Arizona, said he would oppose the Boulder appropriation in the committee and on the floor.

Patrol Hearings Doubtful.

Representative Hoch (Republican), Kansas, in charge of the House interstate commerce subcommittee handling President Hoover's proposal to unify the border patrol, said it was doubtful if the committee could complete its hearings at this session.

Reorganization of the Federal Power Commission to set up an independent group also is pending before the House interstate commerce committee, with little prospect of action by the House at this session, although the Senate has passed the Couzens bill for this purpose.

Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee, expects to bring up his resolution to authorize an investigation into activities of Communists in this country, and there appears to be little opposition to this proposal, although the leaders are understood to have encountered difficulty in selecting a chairman of the proposed special group.

Chairman Williamson, of the House expenditures committee, expects to ask for privileged status on his resolution calling for an investigation by his group of postoffice leasings and contributions to the campaigns by professional lessors of facilities to the Postoffice Department.

Two Trainmen Killed As Stalled Car Is Hit

Hammond, La., May 18 (A.P.).—The engineer and fireman of the crack Illinois Central Railroad Panama Limited were fatally injured, a 14-year-old boy seriously hurt and three passengers, including a woman, slightly injured early today when the boy's automobile stalled on the track at Tangipahoa Station and was plowed into by the train, overturning the locomotive and tender, and derailing three cars.

The dead: Leon (Bud) Ford, 56, engineer, of Hammond; Harry Watts, Negro, fireman, of McComb, Miss. They died of steam burns en route to a McComb hospital.

J. P. Wall, jr., 14, of Hammond, driver of the car, was taken to a New Orleans hospital, seriously injured.

CHECK SUGGESTED FOR CAPITAL CENSUS

preliminary census report on Washington, although short of the expectations of our more optimistic citizens, shows substantial population growth in the city as a whole despite a drop in post-war Government employes of almost fifty per cent.

"This growth is still further enhanced when the enormous suburban growth in Maryland and Virginia is taken into consideration. The point of special interest, however, is the effect of this new and accurate total upon our calculations of the per capita tax burden on District citizens.

"The Bureau of Efficiency fiscal relations report, compiled at the request of Congress, bases its figures upon an estimated population for 1928 of 525,000, or almost 50,000 more than the 1930 total as currently reported by the Census Bureau.

"A hasty investigation indicates that the actual 1928 tax levy as spread over this smaller population represents an added burden of approximately $460,000. In view of this, it is eminently desirable that new computations be made to show the actual tax burden on District citizens."

PRESIDENT BLAMED FOR TARIFF MUDDLE

SENATE TEST DUE TODAY

(Associated Press.)

A charge that President Hoover "is absolutely responsible and has been for a long time for the muddled condition of the present tariff bill" was hurled by Democrats last night on the eve of the crucial test in the Senate today on the debenture and flexible tariff amendments.

Recalling that the President had asked for a limited tariff revision, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, in a statement issued through the Democratic National Committee, asserted both houses had disregarded this recommendation and during the sixteen months the bill has been pending "the President had stood by in silence, without the vision, leadership or courage to direct the Republicans in Congress to do what he had advised them to do."

"The President has not hesitated," he added, "to emphasize by reiteration his disapproval of the Senate's flexible amendment and debenture plan. Against the highest industrial rates that ever challenged opposition or threatened the family budget of the American people he has never uttered an audible word of protest or disapproval."

G. O. P. Defeat Forecast.

Senator McKellar said if the bill becomes a law "nothing short of a miracle can save the country from economic disaster and the Republican party from certain repudiation by the country."

Today's test in the Senate is expected to determine whether the measure will go to the White House or die on a conference deadlock.

It will come on a resolution by Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, chairman of the Senate conference committee, seeking authority to formulate a compromise on the debenture and flexible amendment taking away authority vested in the President since 1922 to raise or lower customs duties. The compromise would be worked out in further conferences with the House managers, who have refused to negotiate further unless the Senate group is freed from pledges binding them to the two propositions.

Separate Vote Sought.

The Democrats will ask that the resolution be divided so as to bring separate votes on the two proposals. They are confident of winning on at least one—the flexible amendment.

This would put it up to the conferees of the two houses to come to some agreement, but inasmuch as the House has gone on record overwhelmingly against the Senate's flexible clause it is apparent that an agreement would be virtually impossible.

Republicans have made no claims as to the outcome, but were striving hard over the week-end to swing four or five votes to their cause on each issue. When the bill was before the Senate the debenture won by eight votes and the legislative flexible amendment by five.

National Grange Urges Debenture.

The National Grange, long an advocate of the debenture plan, in an open letter to the Senate last night, urged it to stand by the Norris proposal as the "only provision in the bill that will enable the growers of our staple crops to carry the added burden of higher rates on industrial commodities without further mortgaging their farms."

During the last ten years, the grange set forth, farm values have decreased from $78,000,000,000 to $58,000,000,000, whereas the farm mortgage debt has trebled.

"Any settlement of the tariff question which would decrease the burdens of the producers of our surplus without correspondingly increasing their income would be grossly unfair to American agriculture," the letter read.

Charges on Power Site Are Sent to President

(Associated Press.)

In an open letter addressed to President Hoover, Judson King, director of the National Popular Government League, yesterday charged that the Federal Power Commission plans today to grant a license for development of the Flathead, (Mont.) power site.

A resolution has been introduced in the Senate, and several requests have been made by interested parties, asking that decision on this project, said to be the third largest power site in the country, be held up until a new power commission is set up, as provided by pending legislation.

Thousands Hunt Hills For Graft Trial Judge

Oakland, Calif., May 18 (A.P.).—Thousands of searchers today continued their hunt for Superior Judge Edward W. Engs, missing in the Oakland hills since Friday morning. Rewards totaling $1,000 have been offered to the person locating the jurist, who disappeared presumably during a nervous breakdown caused by strain during a graft trial involving Oakland city officials.

The possibility of a suicide due to a nervous breakdown was strongly hinted, only to be vigorously opposed by members of his family.

DULL TREND RULES TRADE CONDITIONS

Mixture of Soft Spots and Improvements Occur During Week.

FORWARD MOVE IS SEEN

New York, May 18 (A.P.).—The current of business developments was somewhat obscured by surface eddies during the past week, but most observers continued to agree that a strong forward movement is in the making, although it may be delayed somewhat by the seasonal quiet of the summer months.

The commodity price structure showed further signs of improvement, but steel and iron were a distinct soft spot. Prices of various descriptions of crude and finished steel products were shaded, some reaching the lowest levels since 1915, and signs of approaching stability were still lacking.

Steel mill operations for the country at large were estimated by Iron Age at 75 per cent of capacity, against 77 the previous week, but United States Steel continued to maintain its 80 per cent rate of the week before. Structural steel and gas and oil pipe line requirements were large, but railway buying was light, and there was some let-up in takings by farm implement makers.

One of the most encouraging developments of the week was enormous buying of copper. After touching 12½ cents a pound the red metal price was pushed up to 13 cents. Although the rush to buy copper must be expected to spend itself shortly, the fact that fabricators are now stocking up with the metal is interpreted as indicating expectations of large requirements for power line and electrification projects. Nonferrous metals generally showed a better price tone.

Commodity Prices Firmer.

Prices of some farm products showed a firming tendency as the week advanced, particularly grains. Wheat reached the highest levels of the month, with better export movement. Cotton also fared better, particularly the new crop deliveries, reflecting largely the reports of too much rain over the belt. The market for hides, however, which has been rather firm of late, turned soft, reflecting lessened takings by shoe manufacturers. Wool was decidedly more active, but the Boston market failed to firm up in sympathy with English and Australian markets.

One of the more favorable statistical barometers making its appearance was the Annalist preliminary index of business activity for April, showing a sharp gain at 92.5, as compared to a final figure of only 89.5 for March. The April figure, however, with the exception of March, February and December, was the lowest since December of 1927.

Gains were largely in frieght car loadings, electric power production and cotton consumption. The Annalist stated, however, that current indications do not promise a similar advance for this month. Cotton consumption, particularly, is falling off, as both New England and Southern mills are curtailing output, with numerous temporary shutdowns.

The volume of business as measured by the Department of Commerce's figures on check payments in the week ended May 10, showed a gain of 13 per cent over the week ended May 3, and 1 per cent over the like week of 1929. More recent figures on bank clearings, however, show a considerable falling off in the latest week. Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended May 3, showed a gain of 35,725 cars over the previous week, but were 109,836 under the same week of last year. There was a gain of 17,025 cars in the movement of ore, and substantial increases over the previous week in shipments of coal and manufactured goods.

The weekly mercantile reviews said that retail trade had shown renewed quiet, after the gains of earlier in the month, but that wholesale and jobbing activity continued moderately active. Dealers sales of automobiles were unofficially reported as showing moderate gains so far this month, particularly in the low priced descriptions.

The petroleum industry was a little unsettled by renewed difficulties with the production curtailment program at Santa Fe Springs, Calif., which prompted sharp crude price cutting by Standard Oil Co. of California, but this was viewed as primarily a local situation.

MAN SEIZED IN ACT OF BOMBING STORE

Vigil of Chicago Police Is Rewarded; Accused Says He Is War Veteran.

DANCERS' LIVES SAVED

Chicago, May 18 (A.P.).—A score of persons are believed by police to have been saved from possible injury and two of Chicago's 1930 bombings are thought to have been cleared up by the capture early today of a man in the act of touching off a boomb in the doorway of a sandwich shop.

The man, William Ortin, was caught by officers under Chief Investigator Patrick Roche after a four-hour vigil. A shot in the air frightened hm as he was about to touch off the fuse and he was sezed after a chas. A score of persons were dancing in an adjoining building.

Ortin, whose real name, according to authorities, is Frank R. Phillips, told Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks, the latter said, that he had learned about percussion caps while serving with the Second Canadian Engineers in the World War, and that he had done a bombing New Year's Eve for $150 and one recently for $100. Police are seeking the man he named as his employer. Brooks said Ortin had been released a few months ago from Ohio State prison.

Soldier Held in Theft At Bolling Field Store

A few hours after a report of the theft of a large quantity of cigarettes, a watch and two knives from the post exchange at Bolling Field, police late yesterday recovered the loot and arrested John H. Taylor, 23 years old, a private in the Air Corps attached to Bolling Field.

The arrest was made by Acting Capt. S. J. Marks and Detective J. J. Tolson, of the Eighth Precinct Station. The policemen picked up the soldier near a garage in Pleasant street near Nichols avenue. Police say that Taylor admitted the theft of the articles, which were valued at $250. Taylor was held on a grand larceny charge.

By JAMES HAY, JR.

OUT of the extraordinary muddle, mix-up and gay melange of 1930 politics has come nothing quite so amazing as the suddenly developed lung power of the wets.

How much strength is beind the proliquor hullabaloo that echoes across the Maytime meadows, remains to be seen; but there is no denying that, instead of being thoroughly whipped and hopeless, the wets nave unleashed their dogs and are riding high, taking the in-and-outs and water jumps in their stride, with the sun glinting hot and strong from the steel-shod hooves of their neighing steeds.

Only a few weeks ago the political experts, analysts and reckoners were excited to the remotest ends of their tittering and titillated nerves by the announcement of Mr. Frelinghuysen that he would run for the Senate nomination on a wet platform, although ten years ago he, then a senator, had helped to vote Volsteadism into law.

* * * *

BUT the Frelinghuysen flurry was merely the start of something whose ripples and repercussions are getting wider and louder as the days go by.

When Mr. Morrow, taking the field against Mr. Frelinghuysen, declared for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the wets sounded boots and saddles in other bailiwicks.

Down in Oklahoma former Senator Thomas P. Gore, Democrat, decided that he would like to return to the arena in which, like Mr. Frelinghuysen, he had cast his ballot for the Volstead act. Furthermore, again like Frelinghuysen, he deserted his gods of ten years ago and switched from the dry to the wet camp, asserting in clarion, stentorian and otherwise highly audible tones that, while the dry law had looked to him like a good wagon before Uncle Sam tried to drive it, it had pretty well broken down in axles, wheels, hubs, spokes and springs.

And this in Oklahoma, a State which went for the dry Mr. Hoover by a tremendous majority!

HARD on the heels of that about-face, boulseversement or political somersault, come the tidings that in Pennsylvania, where "the organization" and "the machine" toss precincts, wards and districts from man to man like a juggler pitching goldfish out of a thimble into a bowl—in Pennsylvania the wringing wet Bohlen-Phillips ticket, "without any organization to speak of," has imported rabble rousers like former Senator Wadsworth, of New York, has amassed a big war chest and is out to roll up a primary vote that will surprise the boys.

* * * *

ON top of all this is the gossip that Dwight Morrow will be put up as the wet candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1932, and that the Antisaloon League, once full of money and menace, has a tough time gathering in the dimes and dollars.

Obviously, if the wet barkers are not exaggerating what they have inside their circus tent, they are about to stage a show that will send the hicks, hoboes and high-rollers home with their eyes popped.

ADVERTISING CONVENTION ATTRACTS 2,000 TO CAPITAL

advertising has been crystalized into the theme of this convention: "Advertising Is the Servant of the Consumer." We carry no message of illwill; we bear no ultimatum to our neighbors; we do not seek to destroy. The dean of ambassadors plenipotentiary is advertising. We are ambassadors of good will from the empire of business to the peoples of the earth.

"We seek to construct and elevate. We tell of the better things of life, and of the better ways of living, to those who have the vision but lack of knowledge to secure satisfaction."

Following these addresses the United States Marine Band played in the patio of the Pan-American Building, after which the delegates took a trip down the Potomac River by boat, as the guests of the Advertising Club of Washington.

The general sessions of the convention will start today, when President Hoover will welcome the delegates on the south lawn of the White House at noon. Before going to the White House, the delegates are to be taken for a sightseeing trip around the Capital.

Will Hear Noted Speakers.

After the Presidential reception there will be a general luncheon at the Willard, at which Mr. Younggreen will preside and a number of noted speakers will address the delegates.

Commissioner Luther Reichelderfer and Ernest S. Johnston, advertising manager of The Washington Post and president of the Advertising Club of Washington, will deliver the addresses of welcome. Bennett Chapple, vice president of the American Rolling Mills Co., of Middletown, Ohio, will introduce President Younggreen.

Other speakers at the luncheon today will include Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, whose topic will be "Advertising Set Upon a Hill;" Earnest Elmo Calkins, president of Calkins & Holden, Inc., of New York, who will talk on "The Consumption Age;" Joseph H. Appel, vice president of John Wanamaker, who will discuss "The Consumer Is Boss, But—," and Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, whose subject will be "The Long Look Ahead."

The luncheon program is expected to last until shortly after 3 o'clock, after which a national conference on training for advertising will be held in the Fairfax room at the Willard.

Its purpose, as explained by Nathaniel H. Barnes, director of the bureau of research and education, is to bring about an exchange of views between employers of advertising personnel and business school educators on problems of major importance to both.

John Benson, president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies and a director of the federation, will preside. Among those who will participate in the discussion are Hugh E. Agnew, chairman of the department of marketing at New York University; Frank A. Black, publicity manager of William Filene's Sons Co.; A. E. Bryson, president of the Financial Advertisers Association; Ralph Starr Butler, vice president of General Foods Corporation; Paul T. Cherington, director of research for J. Lyon, of the Institute of Economics; Carl N. Schmalz, of the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard University; Harold Stonier, eduactional director of the American Institute of Banking, and James W. Young, past president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

"Basic Neds and Basic Aims; the Employer's Specifications and the Educator's Objectives," and "Is Centralized Training for Advertising Feasible?" are the topics scheduled for principal discusion at this session, which will continue through the dinner hour.

Tonight the delegates are to attend a performance of "It Pays to Advertise," by the National Players, at the National Theater.

Other sessions scheduled for today include the district governors' breakfast at the Willard, at which William R. Ewald, vice president of the federation, wil lpreside, and reports and recommendations of the district governors of the organization will be presented and discussed.

Among the topics to be discussed are the possibilities of organized advertising in promoting progressive, sane, economical and practical service in the establishment of standards of practice in advertising education; identifying and eliminating waste in advertising national interests and viewpoints with local interests and viewpoints, and other subjects.

The annual banquet and ball will be held in the Willard tomorrow evening. Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi; Francis H. Eastern Tariff Interests Back Grundy Battle in Pennsylvania.

MACHINES PLAY PART

ward leaders tell them to do so. A great number of them have only heard vaguely of the President of the United States. Yet their political force is beating around that very man, around him and other outstanding national figures.

Will Continue Work.

If Mr. Grundy loses he still insists that he will continue to work for a delegation to the 1932 Republican national convention that will tie up with all Eastern delegates for an old-fashioned Dingley or Fordney-McCumber tariff, what Mr. Grundy calls a real tariff.

The fact that any number of newspapers are now calling for the defeat of the pending bill, saying it is no tariff relief at all, shows indisputably how far Mr. Grundy would like to go in setting up about the country a tariff wall.

But whether Mr. Grundy in defeat would carry on in such wise is a question. He certainly will if he wins. And that gains something to the Republican party. It would seem to portend a very definite cleavage, such as has occurred in the past to get the Democrats in.

If he should lose, and despite his protestations that he will even then carry on, the best bet is that it will be his political end, not only his but that of the Mellons who are going along with him.

Atterbury Looms in Politics.

If he should lose, then a new figure will loom up in American politics, that of W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, of whom there are two very positive impressions in this country, one that he served the country well in France, and the other that he has bitterly fought organized labor.

There would seem to be no point in predicting what would become of William S. Vare, of whom much has been heard in the past. The gentleman has not so long to live. There are figures subordinate to him in the past who are now striving for political power. None of them seriously mean anything except Mr. Atterbury, a financial power not equal to, but never the less contesting the matter with the Mellons.

The strange thing about it all is that one does not envision Mr. Davis in this picture of the class of wealth, and yet he has millions himself. In this campaign he is, or at least he says he is, the poor man's candidate He is indisputably a gentleman who has come from the depths of this country's striving for happiness, but he has come to the millionaire stage.

But to repeat a statement made before, Mr. Davis is but a pawn in the game, as politically shrewd as he is.

Influence Behind Grundy.

One has no reason to believe, for example, that if Mr. Davis is elected, he would not vote for just as high a tariff bill as Mr. Grundy. The seemingly slight but very powerful difference when it comes to weighing the influence in the party, is that Mr. Grundy would work for a high bill. They are making the argument in this campaign that Mr. Grundy would not be as effective in the Senate as Mr. Davis, because he has not the knack of conniving with his fellow senators, putting it on that simple basis.

They are overlooking the influence behind Mr. Grundy or the importance of the crowd for which he speaks.

Much is being made here of the charges of corruption. It would seem certain that regardless of who wins, a senatorial investigation will be had, with the question arising again of whether Pennsylvania will get its second senator in the Capitol. Pennsylvania is just in for that sort of stuff now and with such powerful forces clashing as are in this campaign it would be surprising, indeed, if there is not found plenty of dirt.

It is most difficult to pick the senatroial winner and the gubernatorial one, and I will not attempt to do so. But Mr. Grundy will win over Mr. Davis, despite his organization support. Mr. Grundy also has support, a most intangible, but nevertheless influential kind.

CONFERENCE WAITS ACTION ON CANNON

Episcopacy Committee Due to Consider Charges Again Today.

BISHOP VOTING TO BEGIN

Dallas, Tex., May 18 (A.P.).—Swinging into what will probably be the last week of the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South here, the delegates tonight looked forward to action on the stock market speculation charges against Bishop James Cannon, jr., of Washington, D. C., and the election of three new bishops.

The Episcopacy committee of the church is scheduled to again take up the charges against Bishop Cannon Monday afternoon. Later that night the bishop is scheduled to preside at a mass meeting on temperance and law enforcement, which will be open to the public. He is chairman of the Board of Temperance and Social Reform of the church.

Among th espeakers will be Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, of Washington, secretary of the World League Against Alcohol, who has chosen as his subject "Prohibition After Ten Years."

Members of the Episcopacy committee tonight said an attempt would be made tomorrow to elect the three additional bishops authorized by the conference. Since their election will be by secret ballot, work of the conference will continue while the ballots are cast. The delegates will be called on to consider a proposal to unify the Epworth League, Sunday school and edumational departments of the church under a single board.

The special report of the committee on finance, recommending unification of church funds, will be presented Tuesday. Other subjects pending before the delegates include several important memorials for changes in conference boundaries, and the request of women for a place in the ministry.

Miner Kills Wife, Relative and Self

Estranged Husband, Pistol Flaming, Turns Party Into Tragedy.

Belleville, Ill., May 18 (A.P.).—Crazed over a six-week estrangement from his wife, John Cook, 45, a coal miner, shot and killed her and his brother-in-law and then ended his own life here last night.

Invading a family party in the basement of the home of his wife's sister, Mrs. William C. Dalhaus, Cook brought a tragic ending to the merry making by shooting his wife as she, six other adults and two children were gathered around a table engaged in a game.

He first fired through a window, and Mrs. Cook collapsed. Entering the room, he then started to fire promiscuously into the crowd when his brother-in-law, John Hart, 35, rushed forward to restrain hm. Cook emptied his revolver at Hart, who was instantly killed. Reloading the weapon, Cook raised it to fire again when some one switched off the lights. He then left the house and a moment later shot himself in the head, dying immediately. Mrs. Cook died a short time later in a hospital. She was the mother of three children.

20 Leap From One Airplane To Set Parachute Record

10,000 Spectators Jam Roads Around Field; Newsreel Man Takes Pictures of Others While Floating Downward for 2,500 Feet.

New York, May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A new world record for mass parachute jumping was established this afternoon over Roosevelt Field, Long Island, in connection with an air meet under auspices of Hempstead Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, when twenty men "bailed out" of a huge Curtiss condor in quick succession and floated easily to earth as the silken folds of their aerial life preservers blossomed above them. The best previous mark was made last November 10, when fifteen men and a woman jumped at the same airport from a Sikorsky biplane owned by the New York, Rio & Buenos Aires Line.

Nearly 10,000 persons are believed to have witnessed the spectacular feat, as the roads for miles around the field were crowded with cars which had parked to witness the jumps. So much traffic congestion resulted that Nassau County police spent the remainder of the afternoon untangling the jams.

Armand Lizotte, a newareel cameraman, was the nineteenth man to jump from the Condor and busied himself "shooting" pictures of his companions all the way down. Eugene Austin, the third out, gave the crowd a thrill by delaying the opening of the parachute until he had dropped 1,000 feet. The first man to go was Fred Cole and the last Henry Bushmeyer, both expert jumpers and instructors in the art of demonstration descents by parachute.

Three of the jumpers were United States Army Air Corps privates from Mitchel Field, all the others being civilians. It had been planned originally to take up 30 jumpers at one time, using one of the new Fokker four-motored transports, but this ship failed to show up at the field and the list was cut to 22 men. Oren P. Harwood, Department of Commerce inspector, declared against this number on the grounds of safety and required two of the would-be jumpers to get out. R. W. MacKie, pilot, then took off, climbed to an altitude of 2,500 feet, and manoeuvered over the prearranged jumping position. All but one of the parachutists came down in open fields along the old country road. The exception landed unhurt between two hangars on the field.

MAN FEARED AGENT CUT IN SPEAKEASY

Michael Curtain, Wounded, Is Found on Sidewalk by Passing Autoist.

HURTS ARE NOT SERIOUS

Spotted as a suspected prohibition agent or a tipster, Michael Curtain, 28 years old, of T street northeast near North Capital street, was attacked and severely cut by a group of Negro men in a Decatur street speakeasy near North Capitol street early last night.

Curtain, suffering from numerous knife slashes from his backbone to the middle of the abdomen, was found lying helpless on the sidewalk in front of the shop by a passing motorist, who removed him to Sibley ospital, where his conditoion was pronounced as not serious. He later was taken to his home.

Curtain was quoted by Second Precinct police as declaring that he walked alone into the speakeasy to obtain a drink and found the place filled with Negro men, who immediately centered their attentioon on him, apparently suspecting him of trying to obtain information for the police. Several approached him, an altercation ensued, and in a moment he was attacked and cut. Bleeding profusely, he was dragged to the sidewalk.

Responding to a telephone call from a resident of the neighborhood, police rushed to the scene and found the establishment deserted. Curtain having been removed in the meantime.

SENATOR WHEELER ATTACKS DRY LAWS

plish that, but, on the other hand, neither can it be held as the cause of the present business depression. The same, incidentally, is true of the opposite side of the question."

After referring to the claims of dry leaders that prohibition is a success, Senator Wheeler asserted that:

"The trust is that prohibition is not being enforced. You can't make me believe, when I can walk into a speakeasy, step up to a bar, put my foot on a rail and buy liquor, that the law is being enforced. It does not speak well for the enforcement officers that so many places are wide open, as they are, not only in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large cities, but in the small towns and cities in every State in the Union from coast to coast as well.

The "almost universal prevalence of graft" was declared by the speaker to be the "distressing thing" about the failure of the prohibition law. He cited conditions as uncovered in various official investigations, and charged that the trail of graft could be traced directly from the small bootlegger "right into Washington, and in a previous administration directly to the door of the White House."

Charging that "those in charge have not done their duty in enforcing the law," he pointed out that "you can't enforce prohibition by raiding a man who drinks a glass of beer in his home; you have to go after the source and get the men who deal in quantities."

Referring to the proposed transfer of prohibition enforcement from the Treasury Department to the Attorney General's office, Senator Wheeler remarked, rather sorrowfully, "I hope it will be for the better, but I'm fearful."

"The trouble is," he declared, "that the people themselves are not interested in enforcement of the prohibition law. They think only in terms of their own selfish pleasure, and wink at violations. It is a sad condition."

Although he insisted he was an optimist rather than a pessimist, Senator Wheeler recalled the fall of Rome, the dissolution of Russia, and particularly the decay of Chinese civilization and declared that just as those catastrophes were directly due to "greed, graft and selfishness," so will the United States decline unless the conditions brought about by prohibition are removed.

"These conditions," he declared, "are destroying the very foundation of our government with their resultant graft."

As Senator Wheeler concluded his address, Dr. Abernethy ascended to the pulpit and declared that "even if conditions are as bad as Senator Wheeler says, I do not believe that the removal of prohibition would make them any better."

Old Swimmin' Hole Closed to Nudity

Baltimore Doctor Tells of Girl Bathers Who Scorn All Habiliments.

Baltimore, May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Modern swimming antics have lowered the famous "old swimmin' hole" at Beaver Dam, near a fashionable country residential section in Baltimore County, into disdepute, and Police Marshal Carroll Stansbury has closed it. Dr. William Ensor and other residents in the neighborhood say that of late the goings-on there have been scandalous.

It wasn't so much that the modern daughters who went swimming in the quarry hole did their swimming unencumbered by bathing suits. It was the fact that they hung their clothes on hickory limbs so far from the water, and on bright moonlight nights, too, and then, as if that wasn't enough to keep the neighbors awake, the swimming parties began bringing portable phonographs along. There was dancing, and the next morning a littre of empty flasks, odd slippers and stray bits of ladies' wearing apparel.

In a vivid word picture painted by Dr. Ensor, he said: "Naked girls leaped from crowded autos and ran over the ground with ascandalous disregard for decency. Drinking and offensive language goes on all night until Sunday morning."

League Opens War On Parrot Fever

Geneva, May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Parrots are distinctly on the index of the League of Nations health section. Both as a family pet and as the provider of decorations for milady's hat they are taboo. The ban is the investigation into the recent epidemic of psittacosis, or parrot fever, that swept over South America, the United States and parts of Europe.

The league's health section gathered data from a dozen countries. Its experts dug back into medical volumes of the past century and made a complete study of the rare and deadly malady. It was learned that while there were recorded only abou t400 cases of the disease in the recent outbreak between 35 and 40 per cent of those afflicted died painful deaths.

Psittacosis took its toll in Germany, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Switzerland, Poland, Austria and Czechoslovakia in Europe. American statistics are incomplete, but scores are believed to have died in the United States, where the disease was not listed as one to be compulsorily reported.

Cardinals to Meet On Naming Saints

Vatican City, May 18 (A.P.).—Pope Pius XI will call his cardinals of Curia in solemn secret and in public consistory tomorrow morning, to pass on the proposed canonization of a number of holy men and women during the forthcoming month of June. Chief among them are the eight so-called Canadian martyrs, six French jesuit priests and two lay assistants, killed by Indians in Canada and northern New York State in the first half of the seventeenth century.

Another proposed for solemn sanctification is Cardinal Robert Bellarmine, distinguished theologian and writer, who died in Rome in 1631. He was the spiritual counsellor of St. Aloysius Gonsaga, long held up as a model for Catholic youth. Still another is Blessed Lucia Filippini, founder of the Order of Teaching Nuns that bears her name.

The Pope will hold a final, semi-public consistory on next Thursday, to which all the bishops resident within 100 miles of Rome, and others here on pilgrimage or for their "ad limina visits," will be invited.

PHILIPPINES LEADER HAILS HURLEY STAND

Quirino Says Independence Fight Aided by View Time Not Yet Ripe.

U. S. SUPPORT CLAIMED

Manila, May 18 (A.P.).—Philippine leaders commenting today on the sentiment of Secretary of War Hurley that there should be no diminution at present in control of the islands by the United States, reiterated their belief that America is committed to Philippine independence.

The administrative expression of opposition to immediate island independence took the leaders entirely by surprise, but they declared their intention of redoubling their efforts to obtain freedom. Secretary Hurley's sentiment was expressed in a letter to Chairman Bingham of the Senate territories committee. The Secretary said he believed immediate independence would be "disastrous" and also asserted that it would be inexpedient and hazardous to attempt to fix a definite date for ultimate independence.

Sergio Osmena, acting president of the Philippine Senate, advised of Secretary Hurley's pronouncement, said:

Capital Mission to Stay.

"With all due respect to the opinion of the Secretary of War, our stand remains the same. We believe the American Government and people are definitely committed to Philippine independence. The sooner it is granted the better it will be for all concerned."

Asked whether the Philippine independence mission will remain in America, Osmena said:

"The mission has done its duty well. It will remain in Washington as long as its services are needed. It has complete freedom of action."

Manuel Quezon, Senate president, who has been ill for several months, declined to comment, pleading indisposition.

Hails Open Statement.

Senator Elpidio Quirino, Nacionalista Consolidado party leader, however, expressed satisfaction at the war secretary's outspoken stand.

"I am glad the secretary of war came out openly with a clear and unmistakable statement," he said. "Because it will afford us an opportunity to meet his arguments.

"He lays down new and additional conditions as a prerequisite to the granting of independence, contrary to the provisions of the Jones law and the official pronouncements of other administrations. Now is the time for the Philippine mission to marshal all its forces in the belief of Philippine liberty."

Mate Is Charged In Wife's Shooting

Oscar Hibbard Is Accused of Assault With Intent to Kill.

A charge of assault with intent to kill was lodged against Oscar Hibbard, 30 years old, of Sixth street near E street northwest, by Carrie Hibbard, 21 years old, his wife, whom police say he tried to kill, and afterward attempted suicide, on the afternoon of May 11.

Both have been in Casualty Hospital since that time, but Hibbard was transferred to the Sixth Precinct yesterday pending his hearing in Police Court this morning. His wife is said to be improving at the hospital.

The man and his wife were found in their room on May 11, both shot with a .32-caliber revolver. It was learned from a statement of Mrs. Hibbard that the man had placed the gun to her head and fired a shot which went into her ear and came out of her mouth. Immediately after that he turned the gun on himself and inflicted a slight wound.

FLEET SAYS ADIEU TO NEW YORK CITY

Warships Head for Virginia Capes to Be Reviewed by President.

TWO ARE LEFT BEHIND

New York, May 18 (A.P.).—Uncle Sam's fleet and 30,000 sailormen said farewell to New York today. After a twelve-day visit to the metropolis, more than 60 ships of the combined battle and scouting fleets from the Pacific Coast and Atlantic ports will have steamed out to sea by sunset tomorrow.

While the sailing orders of the fighting ships instruct them merely to "get under way and proceed in accordance with orders," the vessels will turn southward after passing Ambrose Channel lightship. Pasisng down the Atlantic Coast at fifteen knots they will reach the Virginia Capes by Tuesday, where they will pass in review before President Hoover.

Tonight the great exodus of the trim gray ships was already under way. Two of them, the Argonne, submarine tender, and the Arctic, supply vessel, had led the long procession out of port. Aboard the others there was much activity as officers and men hurried back from shore leave.

Meanwhile, the visiting tars played host and more than 35,000 men, women and children took advantage of the last minute opportunity to go aboard the ships. From morning to night thousands of others took a farewell glimpse of the long gray line of vessels that for almost two weeks has stretched from Staten Island up the Hudson River to Yonkers.

Among the first of the ships to weigh anchor and pass out to sea tomorrow morning will be the Texas, flagship of Admiral W. V. Pratt, commander in chief of the United States fleet. Admiral Pratt returned to New York last night from Washington to resume command. Behind the Texas will stretch the long column of eight battleships and many cruisers, mine sweepers and auxiliaries.

Two of the 67 ships will be left behind when the others depart. They are the Arkansas and Wyoming, which are to remain at the naval yard pending decision as to which of them will be scrapped in accordance with the London Naval Treaty.

GOLD STAR MOTHERS PRAY BESIDE GRAVES

Pride Shows Through Tears of 17 at Last Resting Places of War Dead.

VISIT DEVOID OF POMP

Paris, May 18 (A.P.).—Seventeen Gold Star mothers whose sons sleep their last sleep on the slopes of Mount Valerien at Suresnes, just outside Paris, had their first real test of fortitude today when they knelt and prayed beside their graves.

Although plainly shaken with grief at first, many of them sobbing, pride for their soldier dead soon restored their composure.

The cemetery visited was devoid of all official pomp and speeches, the mothers wishing to be alone with their sons buried on the beautiful green hill, where every grave is marked with a white marble slab on which the name is engraved in black.

Col. G. G. Bartlett, who has been in charge of the pilgrimage, accompanied the mothers on their automobile trip from Paris to the cemetery, where the caretaker, James Duncan, a former A. E. F. lieutenant, gave each of them a huge wreath of flowers to place on the graves of their loved ones.

One of the mothers, Mrs. Elsie Anderson of Ohio, declared: "I never thought I would see this day." She carefully removed the pink and American flags Duncan had placed above each of the graves, and folding them, said: "These are going back to the United States with me."

Wreaths of white flowers were placed on each of six graves holding unidentified dead in the Suresnes Cemetery by Mesdames Katherine Brockman and Rosa Lorenz of Ohio, Clara Divine of Kentucky, Lulu Harbo Ryan of New York, Helen Simkin and Rose Stevens, of Iowa, Emma Taylor of Arkansas, Kittie Wood of Nebraska, and Cecilie Schmidt.

Relatives of the Schmidt family from Munich, Germany, accompanied Mrs. Schmidt to the grave of her son, who may have died fighting their own closer kin and his cousins who were in the German army.

Other mothers who were present at the Suresnes Cemetery were: Mesdames Mary Hughes Horn of Ohio, Alice Fletcher of Kentucky, Nola Durham and Amy Evans of Nebraska, Delia Golly of Iowa, and Ann Keiser.

3 Parishes See Marches as Honor Is Paid to Virgin Mary.

More than 1,800 children in three parishes scattered over the city marched in May Day parades in honor of Mary, Mother of Christ, yesterday afternoon.

At Holy Trinity, 3514 O street northwest, more than 500 children, led by officers of the Holy Name Society, marched from the parish school, at 1325 Thirty-sixth street, to the church, where exercises and the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was pronounced by the pastor.

St. Martin's procession was made up of more than 600 children, led by the parish band. The Rev. Michael J. Riordan, the pastor, administered the sacrament, and the Rev. Francis X. Cavanaugh preached a special May Day sermon. Miss Dorothy Parkhill was the May queen, with Miss Rita Kelliher and Miss Elenor Tillson as her attendents.

At the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, Sixteenth and Park road northwest, 600 children marched around the park in front of the church, led by Miss Catherine Lee, the May queen. The benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was pronounced by the pastor the Right Rev. P. C. Gavan.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

The old riddle—which came first, the hen or the egg?—is revived with the presentation of the play in the National Theater tonight. "It Pays to Advertise" is a national slogan used by supersalesmen to stir up trade. When Rol Cooper Megrew wrote the play with that title it ran a year so so on Broadway and then swept the country. Afterward, memory being what it is, no one seems to remember whether the title was first in the field or whether Mr. Megrew coined a new phrase for America. Whatever he did, he furnished a vehicle for entertainment that will probably be running in the long years to come. The National Theater Players, under the direction of Clifford Brooke, have rehearsed the same script directed by George M. Cohan in the original production.

* * * *

Last Saturday night marked the hurricane farewell from Broadway of many plays; more went out of business than on any previous Saturday night in the entire season. It means that the keepers of Cain's Storehouse, where all wornout plays rest their luggage, will have a busy week ahead. They start in early this morning to assemble the scenery in stalls spaced off for it; scenery that will be seen next season in other productions; brushed up scenery, renovated, and sent out on the road in the trial balloon sessions—when the new plays are a-borning.

* * * *

Among the plays that went out of business was "Journey's End." It left after a glorious career on Broadway—and with some six companies having played the script up and down the length and breadth of the land. In fact, there is only one play in the metropolis that overtops "Journey's End" in point of age. That is "Street Scene," which is still doing business.

* * * *

The only mystery play of the present crop that lasted long enough to count itself a huge success was "Subway Express"—and that went out with "Journey's End," reaching, so to speak, its journey's end. It never came to Washington, though there was some talk here of the National Theater Players having a whack at it.

* * * *

Beloved of all the plays that reached Washington in the past season was "Berkeley Square," the phantom play from the pen of John Balderston, whose London dispatches are featured—or were during the naval conference—on the front pages of The Washington Post day after day. It had its American premiere here in the Belasco Theater—in October. Leslie Howard and Margalo Gilmore were featured players, and Washington sent the play on to New York with the greatest recommendation ever given a play here. It, too, called it a run on Saturday.

Another play that got its start in Washington, and which left Broadway last week-end, was Turgenev's "A Month In the Country," which having left here about this time in March, had exactly two months in New York, or the Big City, as some call it.

Disciplined Employe Burns Self to Death

After worrying two days over disciplining given him by his superiors, Y. Nagasaka, 54 years old, a Japanese employe in the Great Northern repair shops, crawled into a roaring firebox and was cremated last night, Dr. I. S. Collins, deputy coroner, said.

GAYETY

Hinda Wassau, the beautiful blonde, holds the great light at Jimmy Lake's Gayety Theater this week.

Hinda, appearing much better than when she broke all attendance records at this theater three months ago, took yesterday's audiences by surprise, discarding her elaborate feathered costumes. Appearing in a typical soubrette costume she immediately brought down the house. Contending that blondes will draw them in, Jimmy Lake has that popular Bobby Nissen, Cheverly girl, whose splendid work need not be mentioned to burlesque fans here. Bobby and her "educate your feet" number brought much acclaim. "Tiny" Huff, whose voice is about the best burlesque fans have heard this season, continues for another week with her splendid work. When it comes to dancing, don't miss Bebe Almond. This light, petite Connecticut girl has them all stopped. Bebe put over a specialty yesterday which is seldom witnessed in burlesque. Charlie Goldie, Hap Fryer and a newcomer in the person of Costello give the fans plenty of laughs. Boots Rush and Sammy Rice, jr., both making their initial appearance this week, show much talent. The three big nights, auction, wrestling and amateur, are on deck again this week.

In a debutante it's Charm

in a cigarette it's Taste

MANY FINE QUALITIES make up the "charm" that is Miss America's, but her genuine wholesomeness appeals most of all.

IN A CIGARETTE, TOO, the real appeal is wholesomeness of taste.

WITNESS CHESTERFIELD'S popularity, growing every day. No flash in the pan, but enduring popularity, earned by giving smokers a cigarette of better quality, richer aroma and finer fragrance, blended and cross-blended to just one end . . ."TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

Sculptor, 91, Who Saw Poe Urged to Model His Statue

Richmond Man's Memory Goes Back to 1849 to Envision Poet.

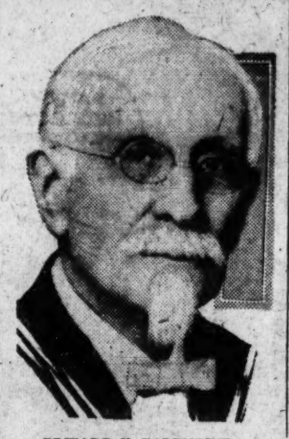
Richmond, Va., May 18 (A.P.).—Edward Virginius Valentine, although past 91, may take up his sculptor's tools again to model a bust of Edgar Allan Poe.

The creator of the famous recumbent statue of Robert E. Lee at Lexington, Va., is being urged to carve the bust for the Poe shrine in Richmond.

He is one of the few persons now living who saw the author of "Annabel Lee," and his vivid impression of the famous poet as he passed the Valentine homestead many years ago has never been forgotten.

That was about 1849, when Poe was lecturing in Richmond and young Valentine was left at home because of his youth. He has a remarkable crayon likeness of Poe to use as a guide.

Several of his statues dot Richmond's historic boulevards and his figure of James J. Audubon is in Audubon Park, New Orleans.



EDWARD V. VALENTINE.

Immediately following the Civil War he carved statues of Negro subjects typical of the times when brought high prices in the North.

PRINCE & WHITELY OPEN OFFICE TODAY

Stock Firm to Mark Fiftieth Anniversary of Entry Into Capital.

HAS NOTABLE HISTORY

In opening a handsome and spacious branch office on the second floor of the Washington Building today, the New York Stock Exchange firm of Prince & Whitely celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of its entry into this city. In 1880, Prince & Whitely occupied offices on the ground floor of the old Willard Hotel, moving in 1881 to new offices in the Corcoran Building, now the site of the Washington Hotel.

The firm was the first New York Stock Exchange house to introduce direct private wire service between Washington and New York. In 1887, William R. Travers, a special partner in the firm and the man who donated Travers Island to the New York Athletic Club, died, and shortly afterward Prince & Whitely decided to close their Washington office.

When the firm reestablishes its local office today, Eugene O'Leary, who was the original chief clerk of the Washington office, will be present to take part in the opening ceremonies. Mr. O'Leary, now with the Bureau of Etymology of the Department of Agriculture, is being pressed into service for this one day and arrangements have been made for him to handle the first buying or selling order coming from the local to the main office in New York.

When Prince & Whitely formerly conducted a Washington office, its board room was said to be the rallying point of a large number of senators and representatives. Old-time traders and correspondents recall occasions when the sergeant at arms of the House was sent to the board room to gather a quorum. Some of the most notable statesmen of the day were regular visitors to the office.

A resident partner of the firm was in the old Baltimore & Potomac depot on July 2, 1881, and heard the shot which resulted in the death of President Garfield. Realizing the importance of getting this information to the home office, he rushed back to the local branch and by means of its direct private wire, was able to flash the information to New York, thus enabling the firm and its customers to prepare for the shock which the stock market recorded late that day.

ALEXANDRIANS RAP INCREASE IN FARES

Meeting to Be Called With View of Presenting Case to Appellate Court.

KENNEDY LEADS FIGHT

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.,
Phone Alexandria 523.

The announcemet that the State Corporation Commission has granted the application of R. L. May, owner of the Washington-Virginia Electric Railway and the A., B. & A. bus line, an increase in passenger fare, has caused much unfavorable comment among patrons of these transportation facilities. While the increase granted is not so great as that originally asked, Alexandrians feel that their protest against any increase should have had more weight with the corporation commission.

Harry P. Kennedy, president of the Alexandria Commuters Association, did yesterday that he would immediately call a conference of the officers of the associatoion and obtain their views as to a general meeting, with the object of noting an appeal from the decision of the commission to the State supreme court of apeals. Mr. Kennedy believes that an appeal may be based upon two grounds: First, the existing franchise granted by the City of Alexandria to the electric line, proving for a flat rate of 5 cents between points within the city limits, and second, the lumping of the earnings of the two lines and granting an increase for the bus line, which showed substantial net earnings last year, to compensate for a slight loss last year by the electric line.

By reducing the overhead by using the same office force for the two companies, at an annual cost of between $14,000 and $17,000, Mr. Kennedy said, the present rates of fare would net the consolidated companies more than 7 per cent on a valuation of $500,000, and on the money actually invested the net return would be 21¾ per cent. The corporation commission, however, places the valuation of the two companies at $686,000, and would allow May a net profit of 7 per cent on this, or $48,000 a year. The figures submitted by Mr. May to the corporatoion commission, it is understood, showed that the bus line last year earned approximately $19,000, while the electric line lost approximately $1,800. According to Mr. Kennedy, Mr. May claimed that he would be entitled to an additional profit of $17,000 to give him a fair return on his investment, whereas the corporation commission is allowing him an estimated profit of $13,000 a year more than he claimed would be required.

There have been several rumors of competing bus lines, the statement being made that two operators were only awaiting the decision of the corporation commission before making definite plans for bus competition. According to Attorney Kennedy, no franchi e would be necessary from to transport passengers between Alexmission or the City of Alexandria, either the State corporation comandria and Washington or in the opposite direction, or from either Alexandria or Washington to intermediate points, such franchise being necessary only in case passengers were picked up between the Alexandria city limits and the Washington destinatioin, or between the highway bridge and Alexandria, southbound. However, should application be made to the corporation commission for a bus franchise, in competition with Mr. May's lines, it is claimed the commission could not consistently refuse to grant it, since the franchise granted Mr. May for his bus line was granted in spite of the strenuous opposition of the electric line, its representatives claiming that the ruin and ultimate junking of the bus line would mean the financial the granting of a franchise to the electric line.

Very little interest has been manifested so far over the coming election June 10, when three member of the city council will be elected. There are five candidates in the race, of whom three—Edmund F. Ticer, Clyde C. Lamond, and Arthur Herbert—are the regular Democratic nominees, while L. B. Alexander and O. P. Angelo have announced that they will run on an independent ticket.

A super and lawn party will be given by the Guild of Emmanuel Episcopal Church on Wednesday evening, May 29, on the church lawn.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will hold a meeting this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in the lecture room of the church.

The funeral of Lawrence Minnix, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident recently, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the Cunningham Funeral Home, 809 Cameron street. The deceased had lived in this city for several year past, coming here from Seattle, Wash. So far as known he has no relative.

ARTS LEAGUE TO AID M'DOWELL'S WIDOW

Organization Left $250,000 by Painter to Give Her $2,500 Annuity.

CULPEPER GIRL BENEFITS

New York, May 18 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edward McDowell, who got only $5,000 by the will of her husband, the painter, will receive a life annuity from the Art Students League, to which he left $250,000.

This step was taken, it is understood, in view of Mrs. McDowell's refusal to join her sister-in-law, Mrs. Beata Clayville Smith, of Baltimore, in contesting the will. Litigation based in the contention that Mr. McDowell left his wife only $5,000 because he suffered from insane delusions as to her fidelity, lasted for years and has just been decided in favor of the Art Students League by the United States Supreme Court.

The will provided that the league set up three traveling art scholarships of $2,500 each. Elbridge R. Adams, general counsel for the league, announced today that one of these scholarships had been awarded for life to Mrs. McDowell. He explained that it was in the nature of an annuity rather than a scholarship, since Mrs. McDowell does not paint, so far as he knows, and is not required to travel abroad.

The other two scholarships will go, for the ensuing year, to elizabeth Nottingham, 22, of Culpeper, Va., and Howard J. Ahrens, 20, of Brooklyn.

Mr. McDowell, who died in Montclair, N. J., in 1926, stipulated that the scholarships be founded in memory of his father.

THE TARIFF BILL.

The fate of the tariff bill may be decided in the Senate today. Every possible maneuver by the Senate coalition to avoid a showdown has failed. The Senate must face the alternative of yielding on its amendment to the flexible provision and the export debenture or defeating the bill. Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee, has reported that he will not ask for another conference until the Senate has released its conferees from their promise to stand pat on these two controversial clauses.

The Democrats, with the aid of the insurgent Republicans, may attempt to supplant Senator Smoot's resolution, asking that the conferees be authorized to negotiate freely on these issues, with instructions to reaffirm the Senate's stand on the debenture and flexible provision. Should this move succeed there would be a hopeless deadlock in the conference committee, since the House has formally rejected both these amendments.

The Senate is quite aware of the fact that the fate of the bill is at stake. As a matter of politics the Democrats are opposed to the bill, in spite of scattering Democratic votes for higher duties on products of their home States. Nevertheless, a sufficient number of Democratic yeas may be heard to allow the negotiations to proceed. Democrats do not care to incur the blame for killing the bill. Even the Republican members of the coalition may hesitate to cast votes that would destroy the proposed agricultural increases.

The latest tactics of the coalition is to charge the Republican party with conniving at the death of the measure. Senator Harrison glibly charges that the Old Guard has turned cold toward the bill and is trying to kill it before it reaches the White House. If this accusation were true, the coalition would be found rallying to save the measure, by compromising with the House.

If the tariff bill dies in conference it will be by the action of the Senate coalition, which has assaulted the measure throughout its career in Congress. The practice of the coalition politicians has been to obtain duties favorable to their own regions and to attack protective duties proposed for other regions. They have written into the administrative section of the bill two indefensible amendments, one of them a counterfeit sop to the farmers and the other an attempt to curtail the power of the President. The House will not tolerate either of these amendments. Therefore, unless the Senate coalition abandons its effort to bulldoze the House, the bill will fail, and the responsibility for its failure will rest upon the wreckers of the Senate.

PUBLICITY FOR AIR ACCIDENTS.

Senator Bratton's one-man campaign to compel the Secretary of Commerce to make public detailed findings as to the causes of aircraft accidents ended in victory last week when the Senate passed a resolution calling for "complete information with respect to each accident that has occurred since May 20, 1926, of which there is a record, including therein among other matters the names of persons involved, specifying whether pilots or passengers, the date and place, the make and model of plane, the name, model and number of engine, and the complete findings of the department as to primary and/or contributing causes of such accident."

The air commerce act requires the department to investigate the causes of all accidents, to record its conclusions and to make the findings public. When the act was passed in 1926 there were no precedents upon which to base legislation of this nature and, as a result, the act was faulty in certain aspects. It failed to empower the department, for example, to compel the attendance of witnesses at air accident investigations, and it failed to protect the officials of the department from legal consequences by making the findings privileged. Senator Bratton interposes no complaint against the administration of the act so far as the investigation and the recording of the causes of accidents are concerned. He does contend that the semi-annual statistical summary of causes as published by the department does not fulfill the requirement that findings shall be made public.

The resolution approved by the Senate will result in full publicity for the department's findings as to the causes of air accidents. It will compel the department to violate the confidence of those from whom it obtained information regarding accidents, and it threatens to result in a number of damage suits in which officials of the department will be called into court to justify their conclusions. As matters now stand, the Senate resolution promises to violate the primary purpose for which the law was enacted: namely, to promote air commerce. Operators, pilots and airfield attaches will not appear voluntarily to testify as to the possible causes of a crash when they know that their testimony will become public property to be used against them in subsequent law suits. The Government will find it difficult to obtain information which, although damaging, could nevertheless be passed on to the industry for the purpose of forestalling future accidents.

With the approval of the Bratton resolution, early action upon Senator Bingham's amendments to the air commerce act is desirable. These would give the department authority to subpena witnesses and compel them to testify, and would make the evidence taken in the investigation privileged matter so far as damage suits are concerned. Essentially, the Bingham amendments would afford the Department of Commerce protection and power in investigating air accidents similar to that possessed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in investigating railroad accidents.

RADICALS TRY TO ORGANIZE.

It is amusing to watch the struggles of the League for Independent Political Action and similar organizations of its kind. The league has as its chief aim and ambition the formation of a new political party, one that will usher in an era of government ownership, a dole for the unemployed and a peace policy that would give little or no heed to national defense. In short, this group sees the crying need of the hour to be a new radical party.

Most of the leaders of the political league are pleased to call themselves "liberals," but they have a difficult time concealing their radicalism from the public. It is apparent that they find no popular demand for a new party, and that they are merely seeking a more powerful medium through which to express their own rash views. But should fortune ever favor the league with enough radicals to form the nucleus of a new party, the wide diversification of views that is always found in such groups would probably bring its ambitions to naught.

The agitators of political revolution take note of the dissension in the ranks of the two major parties. They emphasize the weakness of the Democrats in the recent presidential elections. They charge that the interests of the two parties have been merged and that there is no longer an effective opposition. On the ground that both parties have sold out to the vested interests, they demand a realignment of "liberal" against conservative. But the project never gets beyond the stage of oratory calling the masses to revolt. Why?

The United States has no stomach for radicalism. The great body of people hold themselves aloof from proletarian revolts such as characterize modern times in some European and Asiatic countries. The causes of radicalism are singularly absent in the United States, and the impassioned pleas of fanatics fall upon deaf ears.

There are many indications that the country is in the process of a significent political evolution. Party lines will no doubt be redrawn, obliterated and drawn again. But the swing to radicalism is not in sight. It looks as if the League for Independent Political Action would have to worry along, nourishing itself on rabid oratory and recruiting here and there the disgruntled misfits in American life.

EXPANDING CONSUMPTION.

When supply exceeds demand prices are depressed. The fact that agricultural output is in excess of consumer demand, and has been for some years, offers a complete explanation of the so-called farm problem. The Government, through the Farm Board, may improve the agricultural marketing machine until it is a model of efficiency, but unless a way is found to accommodate production to demand the farmer's position will remain unimproved. Whether by restricting production, a project that is not universally approved by farmers, or by another means, a solution for the farm problem depends entirely upon decreasing production or increasing demand, or both, until the two approximately coincide.

The Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, cooperating with the Cotton Textile Institute, some time ago formed a "new uses of cotton" committee to consider means whereby the demand for cotton might be increased. The committee has accomplished much. At a meeting last week, it was reported that consumer packaging of farm products in cotton bags offers an important means of increasing cotton consumption. Increasing use of such bags for the packaging of Idaho and Maine potatoes in 10 and 15 pound lots was reported and the committee was told that experiments are under way looking toward the packaging of Florida oranges in colored mesh bags containing one-tenth of a box each. In addition, the committee was told that new types of cotton power transmission belting have been developed; that the South is making increased use of cotton fabrics in road construction, and that there seemed to be important possibilities for cotton fabrics weather-and-fireproofed by methods now being worked out by scientists.

The farmer, says the Farm Board, must curtail his acreage of surplus crops. He must plant thereupon crops for which there is a demand that exceeds the supply. But what are these crops? The country should produce more flax, but all the acreage that should be stripped of its wheat could not be devoted to flax without causing a flax problem no less serious than the existing wheat problem. There is a need for discovering and developing new uses for farm products. What the "new uses for cotton" committee is doing for the Southern staple should be done for the staples of other regions, and for crops that are not now planted by the American farmer.

RETIREMENT BILL SHOULD PASS.

After five weeks' delay, the civil service retirement conference committee has reported out a compromise bill. In its final form the bill is substantially the measure that was approved by the House. The Senate bill would have continued the present system of retirement, raising the maximum annuity to $1,200. The House measure, however, provides a basic annuity of $900 for 30 years' service, to which would be added the annuity that could be bought with the individual's contribution to the retirement fund as worked out by actuaries. Statisticians estimate that in some cases the annuity will be as high as $3,000. In no case will the annuity be less than it would have been under the Senate bill.

It is the duty of Congress to act without delay upon the retirement bill. At present hundreds of faithful Government employes are deferring their retirement because of the fact that they could not live on the pittance granted under existing law. They face the prospect of penury and want in the twilight of their lives unless Congress acts before their advancing years force them into retirement.

Neither the Senate nor the House bill offered a final solution of the difficult problem of Federal employe retirement. It is realized that the problem must be studied in its entirety by a corps of experts who will pay particular attention to it in connection with the problem of compensation. But the measure as reported out of the conference committee will afford temporary relief and will serve as a basis from which a comprehensive study can be carried forward. In justice to Federal employes who are approaching the retirement age, Congress should act upon the measure with dispatch.

BACKGROUND IN INDIA

From the New York Times.

It is certain that the progress of events in India since the World War has done something to bridge over the divisions and dissensions that characterize its more than 300 million inhabitants. But as serious factors in the present serious situation these divergencies are still to be reckoned with. We can not draw the same sharp demarcation line as twenty years ago between the British provinces and the native states; a former high judicial officer of the native state of Baroda assumed Mahatma Gandhi's place as leader of the civil disobedience movement. The separation between Hindu and Moslem is not so sharp as it was before 1922, when the British policy against Kemalist Turkey served to bring Hindu and Moslem together in India. There are not wanting Moslem supporters of the anti-British movement today. Nevertheless, it is well to keep in mind the variations which confront the British Government. There is no doubt that less ground for anxiety exists in the native states than in British India, less among the Mohammedan minority than among the Hindu majority.

On an area of 1,800,000 square miles in India there lived in the year 1921, the date of the last census, a population of 320 millions. Something less than 250 millions were under direct British administration. Something more than 70 millions lived under the rule of more than 550 native princes, ranging down from Hyderabad, with a population of nearly 13 millions, and Mysore, with half that population, through Gwalior and Baroda to fairly minute principalities. In all India the Moslems, with 70 millions, are outnumbered more than 3 to 1 by 217 million Hindus. The Moslem proportion is larger in British India, with 60 million Moslems against 163 million Hindus. But, oddly enough, the Mohammedans have a clear majority among the 47 million inhabitants of Bengal, the original home of the Nationalist movement in India and still its intellectual stronghold. Culturally, the Hindus throughout India stand far above the Moslems, and the antagonism between the two is not entirely religious. The village money lender to whom the Moslem peasant pays heavy toll is usually a Hindu.

In what may be called the technology of revolution, and particularly of revolution in modern times, a more important distinction than one between races and religions is that between urban or industrial and rural population. Revolutions are made in towns and often have their beginnings in labor troubles. A trolley strike in times of discontent is a symptom to be watched. Now India, while overwhelmingly an agricultural country, with an industry in its infant stage, nevertheless has so vast a population that even a small percentage of industrial workers mounts up impressively. In 1921 there were 16 million industrial workers, 2 million transport workers and half a million miners. India is fifth among cotton manufacturing nations, first in jute, and well advanced in iron and steel. In 1921 a League of Nations report listed India among the eight leading industrial countries of the world.

America is the playground of forces, tampered with, not tempered by, Government.

The one field in which all men are willing to admit superiority and pay homage is character. In democracies are the royal claims of Christ readily conceded.

The goods of life are constantly changing in our eyes, and we suddenly find that others possess them whom we least suspected of doing so and that we ourselves had and lost them without recognition.

Men are more moved by what is coming than by what is already here.

SERIOUS SIDE OF LAUGHTER

Miss Mary Ferguson, supervisor of social service at Johns Hopkins Hospital, writing in the current issue of The Family, has much to say of the therapeutic value of laughter, according to the Chicago News. It has, she says, a marked effect on the chemistry of the body and on the mind, brings about much deeper breathing, exposes every cell to an increased amount of oxygen, promotes digestion and in many ways leads to good health and mental well-being.

But Miss Ferguson cites the opinion of William McDougall that to those who laugh life is "not all beer and skittles." The things that cause laughter, says the famous psychologist, would annoy us if we did not laugh, and Dr. Cecil Reynolds traces the origin of laughter back to the sounds of wild beasts when they seize their prey.

Laughter, according to M. Bergson, is a social gesture, a corrective to that rigidity of body, mind and character which hampers the elasticity of the spirit and discourages sociability. The philosopher who gathers a handful of laughter to taste, says M. Bergson, may find that the substance is scanty and the aftertaste bitter.

This probably is the reason why philosophers do not laugh. They will not disturb the deep inner serenity of their lives by hideous cachinnation or parrotlike cacklings.

BROTHERHOOD

These things come to us one and all,
Sorrow and pain and care.
Master or servant out in the hall
Similar hurts must bear.
Wise man, dull man, great man, low—
Grief is something they all will know.

Once in a fever Caesar cried:
So shall the greatest whine.
Wealth and station, and pomp, and pride
Put by their raiment fine
And share the throbbing of temples hot
With the man who lies on a ward-room cot.

Whatever you know of pain or care
Or sorrow's ache and sting,
Brother are you by the hurts you bear,
To the world's supremest king.
The great shall weep as you weep today
And the poor have wept in the self-same way.

Why Neglect the Roast to Dream of Dessert You May Not Get?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE are two kinds of workers—those who work in the present tense, and those who burden themselves with the future.

A man of the first type, whether he is building a house or plowing a field, works placidly and efficiently, with his thoughts fixed on the thing he is doing at the moment.

The other kind of a man may be sawing a board or turning a furrow, but his thoughts race ahead to the framing, lathing, roofing and plastering of the house, or the harrowing, sowing and harvesting of his field, so that the work yet to be done dismays, harasses and tires him much more than the thing he is doing.

You can recognize the two types easily, for one seems to make every sure and effortless motion count for something, while the other lathers himself in a frenzy of haste that exhausts energy out of all proportion to the work accomplished.

One makes progress easily by the simple process of doing one thing at a time, while the other makes every simple task an exhausting labor by adding to it the work that will follow next day or next week.

Watching the second man as he squanders nervous energy under the whip of his imagination, you say to yourself: "Why doesn't the poor simpleton calm himself and do his work one detail at a time? If he'll quit looking ahead and quietly attend to the job in hand, he'll do much better work and get it done with less effort?"

That's what you would say to him; and yet, if you are no better philosopher than the ordinary man, you live your life much as he does his work.

You aren't content to live the present hour or the present day as best you can and let the future take care of itself.

You must live in a kind of daze, only half conscious of the present, because your mind is racing ahead to busy itself with tomorrow.

It is only at rare intervals—when you stop for a moment to enjoy the freshness of a spring morning or walk under the stars—that you are wholly conscious of the present and free of imaginary burdens.

The sanest life is the one that begins each morning and ends each night and refuses to burden itself with the past or future.

Since the past is done, the future a mere probability, and today the only part of life that is assured and real, why in the name of common sense don't you concentrate on it and live it?

A little liquor now and then
Is relished by the best of men,
And it is proper, so I think,
For certain congressmen to drink;
Home brewing is, it seems to me,
Okay if done with secrecy—
In short, I'm for the Volstead act
In theory, but not in fact.

The United States has sued the Radio Corporation, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Telephone & Telegraph, General Motors and General Motors Radio Corporation. If it wins we will presumably have to go back to the magic lantern, the horse and buggy and the vaudeville ventriloquist for diversion.

The suit should, of course, be broadcast, with Graham McNamee giving the play-by-play and Floyd Gibbons the summing up.

Commissioner Whalen is out to arrest the New York jay-walker.

"Say, where do you think you're walking?" the traffic cop may demand.

"Home," the pedestrian may reply.

"Well, back up, and don't move those shoes again till ya get the signal," will be the ultimatum.

What many pedestrians want to know is whether, if they are left standing in front of a department store by their wives for more than two hours, the police can tow them away and impound them?

President Hoover caught twenty trout in one morning recently. The Senate is powerless to veto a worm.

Senator Johnson's desk hasn't been robbed in the last 24 hours. Probably the culprit decided to save time by going to the drug store and buying a stamp.

There has always been unemployment this time of year; the only difference is that this year not so many of the unemployed are carrying mashie-niblicks.

A California man gave a blonde hitch-hiker a ride and she stole his automobile. This is the first recorded case in which the man had to walk home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Dwight Morrow's Legal Argument on Prohibition Combated by One Who Insists States' Rights Are Not Denied by Eighteenth Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your leading editorial in The Post on May 16, captioned "Morrow on Prohibition," is a mass of misstatements, and a queer example of reasoning. Let me quote:

"Mr. Morrow is convinced that the Constitution must be amended to restore to the States their police power."

I have been entirely unaware that the police power has been taken away from the States. On the contrary, the eighteenth amendment expressly confers upon the States concurrent power to enforce the statutes under the eighteenth amendment. Most of the States have enacted legislation under the concurrent power granted them, and which many had already exercised before national prohibition went into effect. I therefore fail to see where the police power of the States was destroyed.

There is not, and should not be, any conflict of police power between the States and the Federal Government. These States should enforce and can enforce all legislation of an intrastate character, and the Federal Government enforce Federal legislation of an interstate character. Is that plain? The States can not enforce interstate legislation and the Federal Government should not be made to enforce intrastate legislation dealing with the liquor traffic. The States can enforce legislation seeking to prohibit the manufacture of alcoholic liquors within their own borders. But one wet State can flood the entire country with beverage alcoholic liquor, and if we had no national prohibition the rest of the States would be practically powerless to stop the flood.

We speak of States' rights. That the States have certain inherent rights which the Federal Government can not take away. But when one State makes itself a nuisance to the other States then those other States should have some means of protecting themselves. We, therefore, have a Federal Government, which has received power delegated to it by the States, to enact and enforce legislation for the protection of all States. And when the several States grant the power to the Federal Government to enforce interstate legislation, that means police power. The Federal Government must have police power to prevent smuggling, either by sea or by land, even though that police power is exercised within the territory of certain States. The Federal Government must have the power to prevent diversion of industrial alcohol into beverage channels. The Federal Government must have power to prevent manufacture and transportation of alcoholic liquor in interstate commerce. But this power in no wise abridges the power of the States, counties and municipalities in local and intrastate infractions of the law. Therefore the statement of Mr. Morrow above quoted is purely "bunk."

The Federal Government possessed police power in the States even before prohibition, and apparently no one seemed to resent it except the moonshiner and his family. But it was all right then, because it protected the licensed distiller and brewer. With many of the States it was also a question of revenue. But when the revenue from this debasing and demoralizing traffic was withdrawn a number of the States immediately lost interest in the enforcement of their liquor laws. It was simply a question of the dirty dollar to them. Money gone, interest gone. It was not a question of the public welfare, which the prohibition of the manufacture, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverage liquor would promote, but a question of revenue, tainted with the blood and misery of thousands though it was. But who wants money to run the Federal and State Governments acquired at the price of debauch, misery, human wreckage and tears of the defenseless?

No States' rights are violated when the Federal Government and the States jointly banish liquor. The question of States' rights is but a smoke screen to hide the efforts to fasten the curse of the liquor traffic once more on the nation. No legislature has the moral right to permit its constituents to be preyed upon by the unscrupulous liquor traffic. The liquor traffic has no inherent right to exist. It is a public enemy and should be completely exterminated. The efforts of the press should be given unceasingly to the promotion of sentiment and the education of the people to the evils of beverage liquor and its traffic.

Mr. Editor, I hope you will see it as your duty and do your part in helping to stamp out the curse of the liquor traffic. SAMUEL R. BAUER.

Will Dr. McBride Indicate What Containers May Be Used to Hold Home Brew?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The only way in which F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, may now square himself with the Cannonites is for him to come out and frankly admit that he had both his fingers and his toes crossed during the entire time he was testifying before the Senate lobby committee on May 13, and thereby show to the world that he did not mean what he said at the time.

Notwithstanding his denial, the official record clearly shows that Mr. McBride was in perfect agreement with all that was said in the speech of Representative Fort, and that he further admitted, to use his own words, "I think that under certain conditions liquor can be made in the home without being a violation." This being correct, the big question now remaining to be solved is what kind of containers may these home brews be stored in, since barrels, bottles, corks and any other vessel that will hold liquids have been outlawed? Perhaps before he has completed his testimony Mr. McBride will be able to give us a ray of hope on this perplexing question.

THE TARIFF BILL.

The fate of the tariff bill may be decided in the Senate today. Every possible maneuver by the Senate coalition to avoid a showdown has failed. The Senate must face the alternative of yielding on its amendment to the flexible provision and the export debenture or defeating the bill. Senator Smoot, chairman of the finance committee, has reported that he will not ask for another conference until the Senate has released its conferees from their promise to stand pat on these two controversial clauses.

The Democrats, with the aid of the insurgent Republicans, may attempt to supplant Senator Smoot's resolution, asking that the conferees be authorized to negotiate freely on these issues, with instructions to reaffirm the Senate's stand on the debenture and flexible provision. Should this move succeed there would be a hopeless deadlock in the conference committee, since the House has formally rejected both these amendments.

The Senate is quite aware of the fact that the fate of the bill is at stake. As a matter of politics the Democrats are opposed to the bill, in spite of scattering Democratic votes for higher duties on products of their home States. Nevertheless, a sufficient number of Democratic yeas may be heard to allow the negotiations to proceed. Democrats do not care to incur the blame for killing the bill. Even the Republican members of the coalition may hesitate to cast votes that would destroy the proposed agricultural increases.

The latest tactics of the coalition is to charge the Republican party with conniving at the death of the measure. Senator Harrison glibly charges that the Old Guard has turned cold toward the bill and is trying to kill it before it reaches the White House. If this accusation were true, the coalition would be found rallying to save the measure, by compromising with the House.

If the tariff bill dies in conference it will be by the action of the Senate coalition, which has assaulted the measure throughout its career in Congress. The practice of the coalition politicians has been to obtain duties favorable to their own regions and to attack protective duties proposed for other regions. They have written into the administrative section of the bill two indefensible amendments, one of them a counterfeit sop to the farmers and the other an attempt to curtail the power of the President. The House will not tolerate either of these amendments. Therefore, unless the Senate coalition abandons its effort to bulldoze the House, the bill will fail, and the responsibility for its failure will rest upon the wreckers of the Senate.

PUBLICITY FOR AIR ACCIDENTS.

Senator Bratton's one-man campaign to compel the Secretary of Commerce to make public detailed findings as to the causes of aircraft accidents ended in victory last week when the Senate passed a resolution calling for "complete information with respect to each accident that has occurred since May 20, 1926, of which there is a record, including therein among other matters the names of persons involved, specifying whether pilots or passengers, the date and place, the make and model of plane, the name, model and number of engine, and the complete findings of the department as to primary and/or contributing causes of such accident."

The air commerce act requires the department to investigate the causes of all accidents, to record its conclusions and to make the findings public. When the act was passed in 1926 there were no precedents upon which to base legislation of this nature and, as a result, the act was faulty in certain aspects. It failed to empower the department, for example, to compel the attendance of witnesses at air accident investigations, and it failed to protect the officials of the department from legal consequences by making the findings privileged. Senator Bratton interposes no complaint against the administration of the act so far as the investigation and the recording of the causes of accidents are concerned. He does contend that the semi-annual statistical summary of causes as published by the department does not fulfill the requirement that findings shall be made public.

The resolution approved by the Senate will result in full publicity for the department's findings as to the causes of air accidents. It will compel the department to violate the confidence of those from whom it obtained information regarding accidents, and it threatens to result in a number of damage suits in which officials of the department will be called into court to justify their conclusions. As matters now stand, the Senate resolution promises to violate the primary purpose for which the law was enacted; namely, to promote air commerce. Operators, pilots and airfield attaches will not appear voluntarily to testify as to the possible causes of a crash when they know that their testimony will become public property to be used against them in subsequent law suits. The Government will find it difficult to obtain information which, although damaging, could nevertheless be passed on to the industry for the purpose of forestalling future accidents.

With the approval of the Bratton resolution, early action upon Senator Bingham's amendments to the air commerce act is desirable. These would give the department authority to subpena witnesses and compel them to testify, and would make the evidence taken in the investigation privileged matter so far as damage suits are concerned. Essentially, the Bingham amendments would afford the Department of Commerce protection and power in investigating air accidents similar to that possessed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in investigating railroad accidents.

RADICALS TRY TO ORGANIZE.

It is amusing to watch the struggles of the League for Independent Political Action and similar organizations of its kind. The league has as its chief aim and ambition the formation of a new political party, one that will usher in an era of government ownership, a dole for the unemployed and a peace policy that would give little or no heed to national defense. In short, this group sees the crying need of the hour to be a new radical party.

Most of the leaders of the political league are pleased to call themselves "liberals," but they have a difficult time concealing their radicalism from the public. It is apparent that they find no popular demand for a new party, and that they are merely seeking a more powerful medium through which to express their own rash views. But should fortune ever favor the league with enough radicals to form the nucleus of a new party, the wide diversification of views that is always found in such groups would probably bring its ambitions to naught.

The agitators of political revolution take note of the dissension in the ranks of the two major parties. They emphasize the weakness of the Democrats in the recent presidential elections. They charge that the interests of the two parties have been merged and that there is no longer an effective opposition. On the ground that both parties have sold out to the vested interests, they demand a realignment of "liberal" against conservative. But the project never gets beyond the stage of oratory calling the masses to revolt. Why?

The United States has no stomach for radicalism. The great body of people hold themselves aloof from proletarian revolts such as characterize modern times in some European and Asiatic countries. The causes of radicalism are singularly absent in the United States, and the impassioned pleas of fanatics fall upon deaf ears.

There are many indications that the country is in the process of a significent political evolution. Party lines will no doubt be redrawn, obliterated and drawn again. But the swing to radicalism is not in sight. It looks as if the League for Independent Political Action would have to worry along, nourishing itself on rabid oratory and recruiting here and there the disgruntled misfits in American life.

EXPANDING CONSUMPTION.

When supply exceeds demand prices are depressed. The fact that agricultural output is in excess of consumer demand, and has been for some years, offers a complete explanation of the so-called farm problem. The Government, through the Farm Board, may improve the agricultural marketing machine until it is a model of efficiency, but unless a way is found to accommodate production to demand the farmer's position will remain unimproved. Whether by restricting production, a project that is not universally approved by farmers, or by another means, a solution for the farm problem depends entirely upon decreasing production or increasing demand, or both, until the two approximately coincide.

The Departments of Agriculture and Commerce, cooperating with the Cotton Textile Institute, some time ago formed a "new uses of cotton" committee to consider means whereby the demand for cotton might be increased. The committee has accomplished much. At a meeting last week, it was reported that consumer packaging of farm products in cotton bags offers an important means of increasing cotton consumption. Increasing use of such bags for the packaging of Idaho and Maine potatoes in 10 and 15 pound lots was reported and the committee was told that experiments are under way looking toward the packaging of Florida oranges in colored mesh bags containing one-tenth of a box each. In addition, the committee was told that new types of cotton power transmission belting have been developed; that the South is making increased use of cotton fabrics in road construction, and that there seemed to be important possibilities for cotton fabrics weather-and-fire-proofed by methods now being worked out by scientists.

The farmer, says the Farm Board, must curtail his acreage of surplus crops. He must plant thereupon crops for which there is a demand that exceeds the supply. But what are these crops? The country should produce more flax, but all the acreage that should be stripped of its wheat could not be devoted to flax without causing a flax problem no less serious than the existing wheat problem. There is a need for discovering and developing new uses for farm products. What the "new uses for cotton" committee is doing for the Southern staple should be done for the staples of other regions, and for crops that are not now planted by the American farmer.

RETIREMENT BILL SHOULD PASS.

After five weeks' delay, the civil service retirement conference committee has reported out a compromise bill. In its final form the bill is substantially the measure that was approved by the House. The Senate bill would have continued the present system of retirement, raising the maximum annuity to $1,200. The House measure, however, provides a basic annuity of $900 for 30 years' service, to which would be added the annuity that could be bought with the individual's contribution to the retirement fund as worked out by actuaries. Statisticians estimate that in some cases the annuity will be as high as $3,000. In no case will the annuity be less than it would have been under the Senate bill.

It is the duty of Congress to act without delay upon the retirement bill. At present hundreds of faithful Government employes are deferring their retirement because of the fact that they could not live on the pittance granted under existing law. They face the prospect of penury and want in the twilight of their lives unless Congress acts before their advancing years force them into retirement.

Neither the Senate nor the House bill offered a final solution of the difficult problem of Federal employe retirement. It is realized that the problem must be studied in its entirety by a corps of experts who will pay particular attention to it in connection with the problem of compensation. But the measure as reported out of the conference committee will afford temporary relief and will serve as a basis from which a comprehensive study can be carried forward. In justice to Federal employes who are approaching the retirement age, Congress should act upon the measure with dispatch.

BACKGROUND IN INDIA

From the New York Times.

It is certain that the progress of events in India since the World War has done something to bridge over the divisions and dissensions that characterize its more than 300 million inhabitants. But as serious factors in the present serious situation these divergencies are still to be reckoned with. We can not draw the same sharp demarcation line as twenty years ago between the British provinces and the native states; a former high judicial officer of the native state of Baroda assumed Mahatma Gandhi's place as leader of the civil disobedience movement. The separation between Hindu and Moslem is not so sharp as it was before 1922, when the British policy against Kemalist Turkey served to bring Hindu and Moslem together in India. There are not wanting Moslem supporters of the anti-British movement today. Nevertheless, it is well to keep in mind the variations which confront the British Government. There is no doubt that less ground for anxiety exists in the native states than in British India, less among the Mohammedan minority than among the Hindu majority.

On an area of 1,800,000 square miles in India there lived in the year 1921, the date of the last census, a population of 320 millions. Something less than 250 millions were under direct British administration. Something more than 70 millions lived under the rule of more than 550 native princes, ranging down from Hyderabad, with a population of nearly 13 millions, and Mysore, with half that population, through Gwalior and Baroda to fairly minute principalities. In all India the Moslems, with 70 millions, are outnumbered more than 3 to 1 by 217 million Hindus. The Moslem proportion is larger in British India, with 60 million Moslems against 163 million Hindus. But, oddly enough, the Mohammedans have a clear majority among the 47 million inhabitants of Bengal, the original home of the Nationalist movement in India and still its intellectual stronghold. Culturally, the Hindus throughout India stand far above the Moslems, and the antagonism between the two is not entirely religious. The village money lender to whom the Moslem peasant pays heavy toll is usually a Hindu.

In what may be called the technology of revolution, and particularly of revolution in modern times, a more important distinction than one between races and religions is that between urban or industrial and rural population. Revolutions are made in towns and often have their beginnings in labor troubles. A trolley strike in times of discontent is a symptom to be watched. Now India, while overwhelmingly an agricultural country, with an industry in its infant stage, nevertheless has so vast a population that even a small percentage of industrial workers mounts up impressively. In 1921 there were 16 million industrial workers, 2 million transport workers and half a million miners. India is fifth among cotton manufacturing nations, first in jute, and well advanced in iron and steel. In 1921 a League of Nations report listed India among the eight leading industrial countries of the world.

America is the playground of forces, tampered with, not tempered by, Government.

The one field in which all men are willing to admit superiority and pay homage is character. In democracies are the royal claims of Christ readily conceded.

The goods of life are constantly changing in our eyes, and we suddenly find that others possess them whom we least suspected of doing so and that we ourselves had and lost them without recognition.

Men are more moved by what is coming than by what is already here.

Nobody wants to be helped in the particular way we want to help them.

SERIOUS SIDE OF LAUGHTER

Miss Mary Ferguson, supervisor of social service at Johns Hopkins Hospital, writing in the current issue of The Family, has much to say of the therapeutic value of laughter, according to the Chicago News. It has, she says, a marked effect on the chemistry of the body and on the mind, brings about much deeper breathing, exposes every cell to an increased amount of oxygen, promotes digestion and in many ways leads to good health and mental well-being.

But Miss Ferguson cites the opinion of William McDougall that to those who laugh life is "not all beer and skittles." The things that cause laughter, says the famous psychologist, would annoy us if we did not laugh, and Dr. Cecil Reynolds traces the origin of laughter back to the sounds of wild beasts when they seize their prey.

Laughter, according to M. Bergson, is a social gesture, a corrective to that rigidity of body, mind and character which hampers the elasticity of the spirit and discourages sociability. The philosopher who gathers a handful of laughter to taste, says M. Bergson, may find that the substance is scanty and the aftertaste bitter.

This probably is the reason why philosophers do not laugh. They will not disturb the deep inner serenity of their lives by hideous cachinnation or parrotlike cacklings.

BROTHERHOOD

These things come to us one and all,
Sorrow and pain and care.
Master or servant out in the hall
Similar hurts must bear.
Wise man, dull man, great man, low—
Grief is something they all will know.

Once in a fever Caesar cried:
So shall the greatest whine.
Wealth and station, and pomp, and pride
Put by their raiment fine
And share the throbbing of temples hot
With the man who lies on a ward-room cot.

Whatever you know of pain or care
Or sorrow's ache and sting,
Brother are you by the hurts you bear,
To the world's supremest king.
The great shall weep as you weep today
And the poor have wept in the self-same way.

Why Neglect the Roast to Dream of Dessert You May Not Get?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE are two kinds of workers—those who work in the present tense, and those who burden themselves with the future.

A man of the first type, whether he is building a house or plowing a field, works placidly and efficiently, with his thoughts fixed on the thing he is doing at the moment.

The other kind of a man may be sawing a board or turning a furrow, but his thoughts race ahead to the framing, lathing, roofing and plastering of the house, or the harrowing, sowing and harvesting of his field, so that the work yet to be done dismays, harasses and tires him much more than the thing he is doing.

You can recognize the two types easily, for one seems to make every sure and effortless motion count for something, while the other lathers himself in a frenzy of haste that exhausts energy out of all proportion to the work accomplished.

One makes progress easily by the simple process of doing one thing at a time, while the other makes every simple task an exhausting labor by adding to it the work that will follow next day or next week.

Watching the second man as he squanders nervous energy under the whip of his imagination, you say to yourself: "Why doesn't the poor simpleton calm himself and do his work one detail at a time? If he'll quit looking ahead and quietly attend to the job in hand, he'll do much better work and get it done with less effort?"

That's what you would say to him; and yet, if you are no better philosopher than the ordinary man, you live your life much as he does his work.

You aren't content to live the present hour or the present day as best you can and let the future take care of itself.

You must live in a kind of daze, only half conscious of the present, because your mind is racing ahead to busy itself with tomorrow.

It is only at rare intervals—when you stop for a moment to enjoy the freshness of a spring morning or walk under the stars—that you are wholly conscious of the present and free of imaginary burdens.

The sanest life is the one that begins each morning and ends each night and refuses to burden itself with the past or future.

Since the past is done, the future a mere probability, and today the only part of life that is assured and real, why in the name of common sense don't you concentrate on it and live it?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Dwight Morrow's Legal Argument on Prohibition Combated by One Who Insists States' Rights Are Not Denied by Eighteenth Amendment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your leading editorial in The Post on May 16, captioned "Morrow on Prohibition," is a mass of misstatements, and a queer example of reasoning. Let me quote:

"Mr. Morrow is convinced that the Constitution must be amended to restore to the States their police power."

I have been entirely unaware that the police power has been taken away from the States. On the contrary, the eighteenth amendment expressly confers upon the States concurrent power to enforce the statutes under the eighteenth amendment. Most of the States have enacted legislation under the concurrent power granted them, and which many had already exercised before national prohibition went into effect. I therefore fail to see where the police power of the States was destroyed.

There is not, and should not be, any conflict of police power between the States and the Federal Government. These States should enforce and can enforce all legislation of an intrastate character, and the Federal Government enforce Federal legislation of an interstate character. Is that plain? The States can not enforce interstate legislation and the Federal Government should not be made to enforce intrastate legislation dealing with the liquor traffic. The States can enforce legislation seeking to prohibit the manufacture of alcoholic liquors within their own borders. But one wet State can flood the entire country with beverage alcoholic liquor, and if we had no national prohibition the rest of the States would be practically powerless to stop the flood.

We speak of States' rights. That the States have certain inherent rights which the Federal Government can not take away. But when one State makes itself a nuisance to the other States then those other States should have some means of protecting themselves. We, therefore, have a Federal Government, which has received power delegated to it by the States, to enact and enforce legislation for the protection of all States. And when the several States grant the power to the Federal Government to enforce interstate legislation, that means police power. The Federal Government must have police power to prevent smuggling, either by sea or by land, even though that police power is exercised within the territory of certain States. The Federal Government must have the power to prevent diversion of industrial alcohol into beverage channels. The Federal Government must have power to prevent manufacture and transportation of alcoholic liquor in interstate commerce. But this power in no wise abridges the power of the States, counties and municipalities in local and intrastate infractions of the law. Therefore the statement of Mr. Morrow above quoted is purely "bunk."

The Federal Government possessed police power in the States even before prohibition, and apparently no one seemed to resent it except the moonshiner and his family. But it was all right then, because it protected the licensed distiller and brewer. With many of the States it was also a question of revenue. But when the revenue from this debasing and demoralizing traffic was withdrawn a number of the States immediately lost interest in the enforcement of their liquor laws. It was simply a question of the dirty dollar to them. Money gone, interest gone. It was not a question of the public welfare, which the prohibition of the manufacture, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverage liquor would promote, but a question of revenue, tainted with the blood and misery of thousands though it was. But who wants money to run the Federal and State Governments acquired at the price of debauch, misery, human wreckage and tears of the defenseless?

No States' rights are violated when the Federal Government and the States jointly banish liquor. The question of States' rights is but a smoke screen to hide the efforts to fasten the curse of the liquor traffic once more on the nation. No legislature has the moral right to permit its constituents to be preyed upon by the unscrupulous liquor traffic. The liquor traffic has no inherent right to exist. It is a public enemy and should be completely exterminated. The efforts of the press should be given unceasingly to the promotion of sentiment and the education of the people to the evils of beverage liquor and its traffic.

Mr. Editor, I hope you will see it as your duty and do your part in helping to stamp out the curse of the liquor traffic. SAMUEL R. BAUER.

Will Dr. McBride Indicate What Containers May Be Used to Hold Home Brew?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The only way in which F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, may now square himself with the Cannonites is for him to come out and frankly admit that he had both his fingers and his toes crossed during the entire time he was testifying before the Senate lobby committee on May 13, and thereby show to the world that he did not mean what he said at the time.

Notwithstanding his denial, the official record clearly shows that Mr. McBride was in perfect agreement with all that was said in the speech of Representative Fort, and that he further admitted, to use his own words, "I think that under certain conditions liquor can be made in the home without being a violation." This being correct, the big question now remaining to be solved is what kind of containers may these home brews be stored in, since barrels, bottles, corks and any other vessel that will hold liquids have been outlawed? Perhaps before he has completed his testimony Mr. McBride will be able to give us a ray of hope on this perplexing question.

Rheumatic?

Are you facing the fate of a rheumatic? Of course, the future looks black—it's pitiful to contemplate a lifetime of aches and pains. And it is easy to grow desperate in the face of such a fate—but it's much more sensible to keep up courage and benefit by the experience of others. "I give Mountain Valley Mineral Water credit for putting me on my feet after being laid up for three months with Arthritis"—is one of the letters we have received. The action of Mountain Valley Water is natural—scientific. It helps to neutralize the uric acid and promotes elimination through the kidneys. Don't continue to suffer. Phone or write for our booklet today. Met. 1062.

DON'T

Let an Old Mattress Rob You Of Rest .....

BEAUTY needs most of all sound, refreshing sleep. But sleep can be gloriously restful or irritatingly fitful, depending upon the bedding.

No one can relax on a mattress that sags—that is flattened out. Such mattresses, however, need not be thrown away. The inside felt or hair may be used to make a buoyant, new mattress with charming new ticking of your selection. The cost is only $4 to $9.

The germs and dirt that are certain to collect in an old mattress will be destroyed in an electric oven. The inside felt or hair will be thoroughly cleaned — its resiliency restored.

The mattress will be just as beautiful—just as comfortable as a new one could be. For it really is new when re-made the Zaban way.

DUAL REAR WHEELS and balloon tires

New features increase the value of the FORD TRUCK

LARGER BRAKES, all fully enclosed

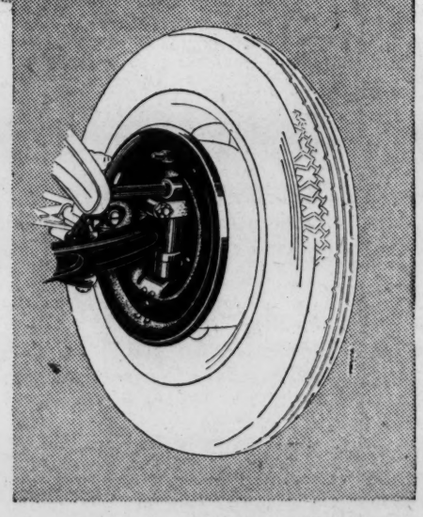
AN ESPECIALLY valuable feature of the Ford 1½-ton truck is the new wheel equipment. Dual rear wheels are available at small additional cost. Balloon tires of one size are used throughout with the dual equipment, so that all six steel disc wheels and tires are interchangeable all around. Only one spare need be carried.

Brakes on the front wheels have been enlarged to the same size as those on the rear, providing increased braking area and a high degree of safety. Brakes are of the mechanical type, internal expanding, and all are fully enclosed. Controls have been redesigned, and operate with minimum effort.

Other new features, adding to strength, reliability and performance, are the new three-quarter floating rear axle, which has a spiral bevel gear of special design; the two gear-ratios optional; the new front axle and spring which are heavier and stronger, as are front radius-rod, wheel bearings and thrust bearings; the 4-speed transmission which provides a wide, flexible range of speed and power; and the large-sized opening provided in the transmission for power take-off mounting.

These and other features combine to make the Ford truck a value far above the price.

In addition to the Ford 1½-ton truck chassis, there is a commercial-car chassis to meet light-delivery requirements. A wide range of body-types is available for each model.



1½-ton truck chassis, $520
With Stake body and closed cab $675
With Panel body $800
With Express body and closed cab $665
With Platform body and closed cab $660
(f. o. b. Detroit, plus freight and delivery.)
Dual Rear Wheels optional for $25.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

STRANGE as it may seem, one of the things which will not be broadcast will be the meeting of the broadcast group of the Advertising Federation of America tomorrow.

Harry C. Butcher, Washington representative, will stop dragging people to the microphone long enough to welcome the delegates upon behalf of Columbia. D. S. Tuttle, of New York, will extend the glad hand for the NBC.

Martin P. Rice, of the General Electric, who stuck out his tongue at the Radio Commission when they tried to throw WGY off its frequency and later beat them in court, will preside.

Among the speakers will be F. A. Arnold, the big question and answers man of the NBC; Hollywood McCosker, of WOR, Newark, whose cash register jangles merrily every time Dwight Morrow or Joe Frelinghuysen makes a political speech, and J. C. McQuiston, of Westinghouse.

When Joseph H. Appel, major-domo of John Wanamaker's, addresses the opening session of the Advertising Federation this afternoon (WRC-WMAL 2 o'clock) he might let us in on whether Grover Whalen has been sent for by Wanamaker's or is returning voluntarily.

SPEAKING of the above name so well known in New York and Philadelphia, if Washingtonians imagine they see Calvin Coolidge here today it is Duane Wanamaker, radio advertising man of Chicago, who every now and then is mistaken for the former President.

"Dis yere Amos," while in the popular mind a comedian, has the makings of a serious actor and unless we miss our guess will be heard from later in more ambitious roles. His dramatic possibilities were shown the night Ruby Taylor left. Also there was an undercurrent of real acting when he went to the Kingfish and demanded Andy's $15 back. The latter performance was all the more unusual because at that time Amos was taking both his part and that of the Kingfish.

GABRILOWITSCH, the pianist, son-in-law of Mark Twain, in his first program of any consequence over the air, tonight (WRC, 8:30) will play the Chopin D Flat Nocturne and A Flat Waltz, the Gluck-Brahms Gavote in A Major, Schubert's "Moment Musicale" and Brahms' E Flat Rhapsodie.

One of the most up-to-date transmitters south of the Mason and Dixon line has just been installed for WSB, Atlanta.

Herbert Hoover, jr., has been granted a permit for a portable station, the only one in the United States.

THOSE attending the advertising agents' dinner last week had a prehearing of the Crockett Mountaineers, hillbillies from Kentucky, who will make their first radio appearance late this afternoon (WMAL—5:15). Sam Pickard, vice president of Columbia, is said to have looked over their array of talent in New York, including a number of grand opera singers, and to have remarked:

"What we need are some good hillbillies."

Hence the Crocketts.

A funny stunt they pulled off when here was to get the audience to join in with them by clapping hands on the "pop' in "Pop Goes the Weasel." As a signal for this, a youngster in the outfit, whose sole duties were to grin and rattle a pair of bones, would jump into the air a couple of feet.

The diners quickly caught on with a resulting "pop" which caused guests in the hotel lobby to wonder what was taking place.

Mardi Gras, the pretentious new feature taking the place of Paul Whiteman, having its second appearance tomorrow night (WMAL—8 o'clock), could be considerably improved by weeding out some of the mediocre soloists.

The orchestral and ensemble numbers the opening night were tip-top, and "Anchors Aweigh" as the theme song gave the feature a lively swing.

The cost of broadcasting the Paul Whieman series, Variety estimates, was $1,000,000, of which $350,000 was paid by the sponsor to the leader himself.

THE short-wave set, which will be used aboard the dirigible Los Angeles tomorrow (WRC—noon) to broadcast a description of President Hoover reviewing fleet, requires only 7½ watts power.

Piano accompanist for the Landt Trio, Howard White, plays entirely by ear and can't read a note. For that matter, neither can Roxy or Irving Berlin.

In connection with the new "Hour With Shakespeare," soon to be heard over the N. B. C., Vernon Radcliffe, its director, says he expects to make a radio dramatization of all of Shakespeare's plays if the radio public demands it.

"FROM the demonstrations I saw in Chicago last week," Jack Rogers, radio editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, writes us, "I believe television is about ready to go. Receivers will be put on the market June 1 or thereabouts at $250, I think."

Dare Interprets the MODE

It looks as though "lightning struck" this frock and left jagged edges! The effect is charming on this black faille evening frock. (Courtesy of Martial et Armand, Paris.)

Paris, May 18.

ONE just can't see Mistinguette and not rave! My raving takes the form of abject admiration. For this interesting woman, although she does not admit to any age, is 63, no less—and this I have first hand from Foucret, the owner of the famous Moulin Rouge, which used to star Mistinguette before the Moulin Rouge devoted itself recently to talking pictures.

The Casino de Paris, another of Paris' famous revues, houses Mistinguette today. And women half her age go and sit to admire and envy a little this remarkable woman, who sings, and what is more extraordinary, dances as though she were 20, and whose face and arms one could swear belonged to a woman not a day over 32.

And those million dollar legs! One gets so fed up these days with the exaggerations of press agents that even the most gullible of us might be inclined to be skeptical—until we go and see and are conquered by a pair of legs, knees, ankles and insteps that are unquestionably the most beautiful of their kind in existence. They are just perfect, and there can't be anything beyond perfection.

* * * *

And if all this sounds as though I myself were unduly raving, well, I am. But not because this woman has beautiful legs, sophisticated charm, and international fame, but because she only proves, as did Bernhardt and Duse, as do Mary Garden and Cecile Sorel today, that age is entirely a matter of viewpoint.

* * * *

With just a little practice you can make him the most gorgeous pajama suit with matching dressing gown! There's a certain way to cut it, to be sure, and it has to be finished very well—but with this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope and get from The Washington Post, you can find out all about this cutting and finishing. Wouldn't you like to try it?

* * * *

There are square necks now and then in evidence in the new gowns, and Martial et Armand has seen fit to show one in black faille with its panels jaggedly edged. Wouldn't you like it for the "odd" frock in your wardrobe for the occasional mood that it best expresses? Thinking you would, I have sketched it for you today.

* * * *

You've noticed, haven't you, that a fur collar on any kind of a coat just doesn't seem to belong these days unless it is enormous? Well, Furrier Heim says that they are making some fur coats for next fall for their more youthful clients with a very tiny and jaunty flat fur collar that ties in bow effects either at the front or the side. Their reason for this is that youthful faces do not have to be hemmed about with loads of fur and that older faces do. Ah, me, I fear that my personal cue is bigger and better collars!

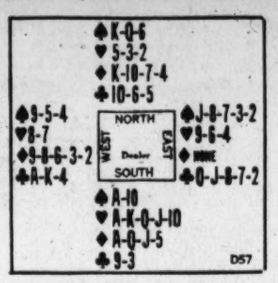
By the way, you'll find lots of other interesting pointers in the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Washington Post each Sunday.

Au revoir!

Dog Bites Child on Hand.

Paul Roberts, 5 years old, of 25 L street northeast, while playing near his home yesterday afternoon, was bitten on the right hand by a stray dog. The child was removed to Sibley Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations. The dog was sent to the pound.

WORK ON BRIDGE



The above hand was played in a game of Contract. South bid three Hearts which North jumped to four.

In Auction South might bid either one Heart or three, but would become the Declarer with Hearts the trump, regardless of the size of his first bid.

When the hand was played West led the King and Ace of Clubs, and East signaled by playing the Eight and Deuce. West led a third round of Clubs which South trumped and, after drawing the adverse trumps in three rounds, placed his cards face up on the table to show that he had the remaining tricks. He scored for making five-odd which in Contract, with a major suit trump and four the bid, would be 120 below and 50 above; he also had 150 honors.

The Correct Play.

Declarer took two of his tricks by virtue of an error of the defense. When West led the King of Clubs, East should not have started to signal for a continuation of the suit; what he needed was a Diamond lead that he could ruff. He should have played his Deuce instead of his Eight of Clubs. With the Deuce played, it would be evident to West that East was discouraging Clubs, and clearly the shift should be to Diamonds rather than to Spades. If West led a Diamond to trick 2, East would ruff and lead a second Club which West would win and follow with a second Diamond. This would make a total of four tricks won by the adversaries—a gain of two tricks for them and a saving of game.

Another system of bidding the hand at Contract would have produced a bid of two Hearts by South, raised to two No Trumps by North and followed by a bid of three Diamonds by South, jumped to five by North. That bid, however, would have hit the rocks due to the five Diamonds in the West hand.

The Goofus Fud

(Suggested by J. de F. K., Newark, N.J.).

How graceful is the Goofus Fud
Who drops the china with a thud,
And when you ask her to explain
Looks at you with a look of pain,
And says: "It must be made of sand—
It came apart right in my hand!"

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF May 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

The influences for this date will be stimulating, and there will be activity, but very little productiveness. Good time for outdoor sports and pleasures, personal happiness, and freedom from worry anticipateed.

The child born on this May 19 will have an adaptable nature, and a cheerful and friendly disposition. It will be self-possessed and self-reliant, and will always have "its wits about it." It will be keenly observant.

You are one of nature's simple folk, and for this fact you may be proud; simplicity is difficult of achievement, it is comparatively easy to be complex. There is nothing standoffish about you, and you do not surround yourself with false or snobbish barriers. You make other people feel at ease, because you feel at home with nearly everybody. You are not in the least introspective—you are too happy and too busy living to bother about what life is doing to you. To all outward appearances, you are unconscious of your own individual charms, of which you have many.

You are very practical in regard to your ideals, and you prefer to live them rather than to spin them in thought or to talk about them. You are not forever reaching for the unattainable. You are very philanthropic and obey the impulse of your heart when sympathy is concerned. You are able to combine the practical with the philosophical; and the ideal with the real; you are not materially ambitious. You are more greedy for the attainment of knowledge than for the possession of either fame, position or wealth. You are sociable and companionable, and do not like to live or to work alone. The lovely and the beautiful things in life appeal to you, and your character will grow noble as you grow older.

Successful people born May 19:

2—Georfe W. Whistler, civil engineer.

4—James O. Broadhead, U. S. Minister to Switzerland.

5—Arthur Eugene Bestor, president Chautauqua Institution.

6—Viscount Astor, husband of Lady Astor, M. P.

Anaconda, Mont., May 18 (A.P.).—More than 100 dogs died here over the week-end of poisoning, and a vigilance committee headed by Dr. Roy Brandt has posted a $250 reward in an effort to apprehend the person who scattered poisoned meat, candy, cookies and doughnuts about the city.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

Water in a Small Garden.

A LILY pool or a stretch of water doubles landscape possibilities. Even experienced gardeners seemingly fail to realize that water gives room for almost as rich a variety of plants and plant combinations as does the open ground. The presence of water helps any garden picture. It createst an atmosphere of repose that makes us want to linger.

Of course, a pool must be of such sturdy construction that it will hold water, which means that the sides and floor should be of cement. The exposed surfaces of the sides of the walls may be of native stone or brick, but keep in mind that the simpler the treatment the more pleasing the result.

A water garden should not be more than two feet in depth to grow water lilies. Amateurs are likely to make a pool three and sometimes four feet in depth. The walls of the pool must be three inches thick and the floor at least four inches. The walls must never slant in. Growers as a rule refuse to sell bulbs until all danger from frost is past, therefore, there is little danger of setting out the bulbs too soon.

A pool, while most pleasing in a natural setting, must be in full sunlight, as the sun assists in keeping the water pure. The boxes used to hold the lily bulbs should be, if possible, of cypress, as this wood does not decay under water. The lilies may be planted in muck soil or in good loam and bonemeal. They always do best in rich soil. During the summer they should be given two applications of bonemeal, which may be scattered on the surface of the water, allowing a handful to each plant.

Usually a lily blooms three weeks after growth starts. Keep some gold fish in your pool, as they will add to the beauty of the pool and destroy mosquitoes. They will also be found most useful in keeping the lily pads free from slugs or other pests. The hardiest lilies are the best for any garden. The Marliaccas are of easy culture. They can be had in three colors, yellow, pink and white.

A VOW MADE IN 1633

is still being kept this very day in Oberammergau. Stirred to deep gratitude by the lifting of a terrible plague, the villagers vowed to perform the Passion Play every ten years. This superb drama is one of the multitudinous relics of Germany's undying past: festivals, walled cities, shepherd dances, set in a rich beauty of mountain, field, and river. The gayest modern life enfolds the traveler in cabarets, opera and art galleries, musical comedies, theatres, health resorts, sports, fashionable avenues. Golden hospitality, moderate prices, and no visé charge in beautiful Germany.

"The First Thing in the Morning"

NATION FAR FROM SUFFERING OLD-FASHIONED HARD TIMES

Fisher Compares Depression Of Today With That of 1921

Like Thundershower to Tornado, Professor Says; Business Leaders Seen Fulfilling Pledge to Hoover to Maintain Programs.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.
Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., May 18.—It was early in December, last, that President Hoover moved to set up in Washington, under the auspices of the United States Chamber of Commerce, a committee of 72 "key" men called the National Business Advisory Council, with the intent of stemming the business recession after the stock market crash. The dollar had been rapidly appreciating in value, disturbing business contracts, throwing men out of employment and creating trade stagnation. During December the dollar's purchasing power declined by two-tenths of a cent, and during January still further by half a cent. Since then it has risen, with a reciprocal decline of the level of commodity prices, by 4.1 per cent within a little more than three months up to May 9.

Hoover's Plan For Recovery.

So rapid a drop in the commodity price-level means a continuance of business recession. Except for December and January, the fall has been accelerated, as compared with the prior decline in prices from July, 1929. For the entire period since August 1, 1929, the slump in the level of commodity price has been 9.6 per cent.

Have the measures taken by the President, then, proved futile? Mr. Hoover's chief reliance for restoring business confidence was in the power of the Federal Reserve System to lower interest rates. He felt that money released by the deflation of stocks last fall would be returned to business. The President spoke, especially, of the intended effect of cheap rates in strengthening the bond market and thus helping general business. With the assurance of available capital, business would have courage to proceed with uninterrupted programs. Public works and extensions and improvements by private corporations would be speeded temporarily, with a tonic effect on general employment. Dislocation produced by the panic would be prevented from destroying values in enforced idleness, in depreciated plant and product, and in lack of trade.

Has the administration, aided by the Federal Reserve Board, in permitting its New York agent to make successive cuts of the rediscount rate down to 3 per cent, wholly failed in its purpose to stem the business recession?

Opponents Point to Loans.

Opponents of the Hoover program point to this year's increase in stock market loans, as showing how the added funds released by low rates have been absorbed in speculative and investment channels rather than in business. By the middle of last month commercial loans outstanding were at their lowest since January, 1928, while loans on securities by member banks stood 12 per cent over those of mid-April, 1929—the highest on record, except for the panic period last fall. Brokers' loans, also, had risen by 26 per cent above January 1, while loans for the "account of others" had begun again to advance, but brokers' loans declined in the second week of May.

Apparently, business has not yet gained very much by the easy-money program of the President. The evidence of this is in the still declining level of commodity prices. But who can say how much further it would have declined had high money rates persisted, and had not the convocation of leading business men and bankers been called by the President? The assurances of continued industrial programs and of special efforts to keep up employment made by these leaders were of worth, and they are being largely fulfilled. Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the National Business Survey Conference, reported on April 29 that large-scale American industry, including the utilities and the railways, "are carrying out progressively the larger construction programs for the year 1930 which they reported at the first conference on December 5."

1921 Depression Worse.

Mr. Barnes pointed out other advantages secured by business prevision, in contrast with the gloomy apathy that had characterized the business depression of 1920-21. There was throughout all industry, he said, a "cautious merchandising in retail distribution;" whereas, in 1921, stocks of goods in inventory of wholesale and retail merchants and in process of manufacture and distribution were "exceedingly large and at very high values." The shrinkage in value of these huge stocks produced a "series of disasters" from which this period of business recession is free, with "no such hazards of excessive loss overhanging the business fabric of today."

This is undeniably true. The present situation, while serious, is not so grave as that of 1920-21. As showing this, the accompanying chart throws into perspective the present period of recession in commodity prices since last June, with fluctuations in price level in two previous periods, namely, 1913 to 1922, inclusive, and 1923 to June, 1929.

It will be observed that the period since 1922 has been remarkably free from the violent price-level fluctuations that characterized the earlier period. Thus the average or "standard deviation" in commodity prices from the mean of 102.9 for 1913-1922 (1926 equals 100) was 29.4 per cent. The most violent departure from this large average deviation ocurred in the war-inflation years 1916 to 1920, and in the great deflation of commodity prices bringing on the hard times of 1920-21.

The Stabilizing Period.

Then came the calmer period of a stabilizing price-level, which I have split into two periods, namely, that of the present recession from June, 1929, through May 2, 1930, in which the average deviation has been only 2.8 per cent from a mean of 94.2 on the same base year 1926; and the period of 1923 through May, 1929, with a mean of 98.2, and an average deviation of 3.5 per cent. The shaded portions of these two latter periods, indicating the fluctuations from average deviations, are small compared with the shaded areas showing tremendous departures from the average deviation during the years 1916-21.

It seems manifest that thus far the difference between the present comparatively mild business recession and the severe depression of 1920-21 is like that between a thunder shower and a tornado.

INDUSTRIAL SHARES RECORD NET GAINS

Position of Skeptical Stock Market Is Tested With Pleasing Result.

VALUES OF TRADING CUT

By H. B. BROUGHAM
(Irving Fisher Service).

The entire stock list and all groups within that list on the New York Stock Exchange were severely tested last week, as trading emphasized bad news and tended skeptically to disregard good news after the recent slump in prices. Yet the index of common industrial stocks rose to 155.4 on Wednesday, May 14. It was the beginning of the turn after a so-called "consolidation of gains" and, be it added, absorption of losses.

By Wednesday the list had recovered nearly one-half of the 12 per cent loss from 165.6 (1926 equals 100) on April 11, to 146.1 on May 5. The rate of change from May 5 to May 14 was 6 per cent, the sharpest rise over any period of equal length during 1930. Prices dropped on Thursday, and, in general, continued off to the week's close, with the all-industrials index at 152.9, showing a gain of 2.3 per cent over the week.

Of the 320 stocks in the Irving Fisher index, 58 per cent rose in price at last week's close, 13 per cent were off, and 29 per cent showed no change.

The groups followed the trend of the all-industrials index in general, with all the groups showing an increase over the week, despite the weakening tendency toward its close.

Values Drop 46 Per cent.

Average daily value of trading in all stocks on the New York Stock Exchange dropped by 46 per cent last week to $177,700,000, from $331,500,000 for the preceding week. From the largest volume in one day for 1930 of $460,000,000 on May 5, to the low of $125,700,000 on May 15, values traded have shown a steady decrease.

Value traded in common industrial stocks reached a record low since January 3 of $76,700,000 on May 15; average daily value dropped 50 per cent to $123,900,000 last week.

The decline was universal throughout the groups with radios and theaters taking the sharpest drop of $29,500,000. The utilities, steels, electrical equipment, oils and miscellaneous groups were off by more than $10,000,000.

Foreign Markets Hold Steady.

Berlin stock prices continue to show a steady trend, having varied but 2.1 indext points in seven weeks. A gain of 0.67 per cent last week brought the level back to 89.9, the high index since the break. This shows 8.3 per cent rise over the low of 83.0 on November 29.

Stock prices in London reversed their trend last week to register a gain of 0.32 per cent.

Paris stocks continue to sag. Last week's loss of 0.22 per cent brought the index to 135.0, only 0.67 per cent above the 1929 low of 134.1 on November 29.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

Aim at Money Stabilization.

We may, it would seem, look forward hereafter to stabilization of currency—that is, the avoidance of inflation and deflation—as a conscious aim of the great central banks of the world.

Rate of Interest Defined.

The rate of interest is the premium which present goods command over similar goods due one year hence.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Remington Arms.

C. T. E.—Being a constant reader of your column, I am writing for some information on Remington Arms.

Answer—Sales for 1929 aggregated $21,670,709, a gain of approximately $1,600,000 over 1928, while income for 1929 was equal to $1.38 per share of common stock. An increase in ammunition prices, which went into effect at the start of this year, should result in larger profits for the current twelve months. Funded debt as of March 30, 1930, shows a reduction of $3,859,000 since 1926, and through sinking fund operations the outstanding first preferred stock has also been gradually reduced. The company appears to have definitely turned the corner and is overcoming the difficult problems it had to face after the war. Remington appears to have favorable prospects for the long term.

Kelvinator.

V. R. T.—Can you give me some information regarding Kelvinator? How do you regard this stock for the long pull?

Answer—Kelvinator has turned the corner. Profits for the first three months of 1930 were equal to 74 cents a share, as compared with 23 cents for the same period of 1929. Net profits for the first six months of the fiscal year were $706,558, as contrasted with a loss of $140,156 for the preceding similar period. Earnings for April, it is estimated, will exceed those for the three preceding months combined. The greater part of the first quarter earnings occurred in March, and it is calculated that income for the first half of 1930 will be about $3 per share, while for the year they may be slightly in excess of $4.

Kelvinator has a contract to supply cabinets for refrigerators to the General Electric, the latter installing its own motors, &c., and will also supply Westinghouse Electric with similar cabinets beginning with September. While no dividend is paid on the stock now, the fact that the company has turned the corner makes it more attractive than it has been in some time.

Davison Chemical.

G.B.—I have held Davison Chemical for several months. What is the outlook for the company?

Answer—While nothing is paid on the common stock, Davison is in a stronger position than it has been in some time. Income last year was equivalent to $3.34 per common share, as contrasted with $1.42 for the eighteen months ended with June, 1928. The company marketed the largest amount of fertilizer during March in its history. Plants at Baltimore are running on 100 per cent schedule, and output is reported as being shipped as fast as it could be loaded on cars.

It is estimated that profits for the fiscal year to end June 30, 1930, will be about $5 a share, as earnings in the first half of the present fiscal year were $400,000 ahead of those for the same time last year. In addition to its larger domestic business, Davison's foreign business is progressing. Larger earnings the last year and the outlook has led to the belief that the stock may go on a dividend basis this year.

Eastman Kodak.

G. T. R.—I notice Eastman Kodak has been advancing recently. Do you know of any reason to account for its strength?

Answer—It is rumored that Eastman Kodak will be split 5 for 1. The company was recently granted a tax refund from the Government which probably will be tacked on to the earnings account. One of the principal reasons for its strength, aside from its larger film business, is the expected gain in earnings from a new container to be manufactured by the American Can Co., the raw material for which will be supplied by Eastman Kodak. Income last year is estimated at $11 a share, which compares with the current dividend of $8 per year, part of which is in the form of extras. The stock may be regarded as a gilt-edge investment for the long term.

Davison Chemical Co.

G. D.—I am a holder of Davison Chemical stock. When do you think it will go on a dividend basis?

Answer — Only the management knows when the stock will pay dividends, but judging from last year's showing, when $3.34 a share was earned on the common, and the intimation of the president of the company that something would be done along the lines of dividends, a payment may be made this year. The company is steadily strengthening its position in the chemical and fertilizer field. As a result, the stock would appear to possess speculative attractiveness.

NEW YORK MARKET BOND INDEX STEADY

Condition Held Favorable for Upturn in Price, With Brokers' Loans Cut.

NEW ISSUES POPULAR

Bond prices of the 70 selected bonds in the Irving Fisher index held steady last week, following a gain of 0.15 per cent during the preceding week. The steady decrease in brokers' loan account makes conditions favorable for an early rise in the bond market.

Last week's bond index was at a level which was 0.3 per cent above the high week of 1929, and 0.39 per cent below the high week ended March 28, 1930. Of the 70 bonds, 37 per cent showed rises in prices over the week, 33 per cent showed falls, while 30 per cent remained unchanged.

Since the week ended March 20, 1930, the average weekly value traded of the bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange has been sagging steadily. Last week it reached the lowest point registered since the week ended March 6.

In the reports of new securities issued bonds continue as favorites, reversing their inferiority to stock issues last year. New bonds issued last week amounted to $190,669,000, as compared with only $2,012,500 of new stocks. Of these, the bulk was in foreign, municipal and utility bonds.

Cotton Progresses Best in Texas Area

Crop Put to Fore Through Steady Rains; Corn Sown in Ohio.

A steady quota of rain has put Texas cotton to the fore for the time, at least. Last week heavy rainfall caused some washing of soil there, but the condition of the crop in southern Texas continues excellent. That in the Mississippi Valley improves with increased rainfall there, whereas general precipitation is needed in the Southeast, where dryness has slowed up germination and growth, and stands are irregular.

Too much rainfall is the complaint in the Great Plains corn-planting areas, where planting has gone behind normal for this period. There was little delay in the upper Mississippi Valley and north of the Ohio, however, and considerable corn was put in.

The easterly sector of the winter wheat belt has now been affected by drought, while evening up continues with better moisture in the Southwest. Spring wheat conditions are generally good, with weather favorable for stooling.

Meaning of Buying Power and Depression

Unusually heavy fluctuation in the buying power of the dollar causes trade fluctuation. When the buying power of the dollar diminishes—which indicates a rising price level—business is stimulated. When producers get high prices they do not at first have to pay correspondingly higher costs; consequently they have increasing profits until the costs catch up. The cost of living rises, preparing for the exhaustion of ultimate purchasing power of consumers.

When the dollar's buying power increases—as is the case at present—profits are diminished and business depressed.

COMMODITY PRICE FALL LESS SEVERE

FOREIGN MARKETS WEAK

Still in its downward trend, the commodity price-level index fell further last week, but this time the decline was much less severe. The index, with 1926 equaling 100, receded 0.34 per cent to a mark of 88.7. This is another low that brings the figure back to one corresponding with the autumn of 1916. It should be realized, however, that many times greater deviations took place between the years of 1916 and 1922 than have since occurred, in spite of the recent weakness in the price index.

Against an almost general decline of commodity prices the preceding week, several groups made conspicuous gains last week.

Dollars' Value Rises.

The purchasing power of the dollar in goods, of which the variation is the reverse of the commodity price index, rose last week to a new mark of 112.7, or 12.7 cents above the 1926 value. Dollar appreciation since last August 1 has been almost exactly 10 cents.

Week ended—	Price index (1926 equals 100)	Index of buying power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents)
May 17	88.7	112.7
May 10	89.0	112.3
May 3	89.7	111.5
Year ago	95.9	104.3
April average	90.6	110.4
March average	90.8	110.2
1929 average	96.3	103.9
1928 average	98.2	101.8
1927 average	94.2	106.2
1926 average	100.0	100.0
1925 average	105.2	95.1
1924 average	98.9	101.1

New Distribution Seen.

A new distribution of falls and rises entered the commodity price situation last week resulting in a further drama of slight decline, but with different actors. The nonagricultural products index, which has been the chief offender in the preceding week's heavy fall, last week turned about, and rose by 0.23 per cent to a mark of 86.3. (The index is computed with 1926 equaling 100.) Agricultural products, on the other hand, which had been steady for several preceding weeks, took a sharp fall of 1.06 per cent to 93.4.

The nonagricultural gain came chiefly in the metals group. Copper, lead and tin prices were up, after a long period of weakness. Other groups gaining were hides and leathers, chemicals and drugs, building materials and miscellaneous.

In the agricultural division, foods were off 0.84 per cent, the lowest mark since July, 1929. Farm products down 0.94 per cent, were still above the low index of March 28.

With agricultural and nonagricultural divisions reversing their directions, the purchasing power of farm products took a sharp drop of 1.28 per cent to 108.2.

Foreign Prices Remain Weak.

The indexes of wholesale commodity prices in European markets furnish no ground for optimism. English and Italian prices hold new record lows. German prices continue down, while French prices show a slight gain.

Conditions Are Reversed.

When the price level is falling as it is now the bondholder, who is in effect a money-lender, benefits from the fact that each of his dollars invested in bonds is increasing its buying power. But the borrower suffers.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, May 18.—General Motors dealers in the United States delivered 142,004 cars to consumers in April, compared with 123,781 cars in March and 173,201 in April, 1929. Sales to American dealers totaled 132,365 cars against 118,081 in March and 176,634 in April a year ago. Total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments, were 150,661 cars compared with 135,930 in March and 227,718 in April, 1929.

Operations of the export department of Sinclair Consolidated Oil last year returned a profit of $832,290 compared with $117,358 in 1928. The increase, despite a decline in shipments, was attributed to economics of operations and new sales policies.

Production by the Holland Furnace Co. during the first quarter was slightly ahead of the same period last year, John P. Kolla, vice president, announced today. Mr. Kolla said that production in two of the company's plants had been stepped up from four to five days a week, effective today.

Imports of hides at leading ports since the first of the year on May 17 totaled 1,417,027 as compared with 877,454 hides imported in the corresponding period in 1929, the New York Hide Exchange reported today.

Consolidated earnings equal to 42½ cents a share after all deductions are reported by the United States Electric Power Corporation, organized last September. This was based on a full year's earnings of Standard Power & Light and its subsidiary and affiliated companies, in which the United States Corporation acquired a 70 per cent interest last January, and earnings of the latter from other sources from September 10. Net income totaled $37,675,472 and total assets $1,281,536,000.

A study by the General Foods Corporation indicates that one-fourth of all the money spent by Americans is for food products. Out of an annual income of about $80,000,000,000 it is esimated $21,000,000,000 is spent for food.

Sharkey Hits Mates Hard In Drill

Boston Sailor Shows Cleverness in First Real Workout.

Grosso and Solomon Take Hard Punches From Bostonian.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., May 18 (N. Y.W.N.S.).—Real work for Jack Sharkey began here today when the Lith was witnessed in his initial boxing session in preparation for his fifteen-round title meeting with Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium on June 12.

Two rounds with the gloves comprised Sharkey's first appearance in a ring since his bout with Phil Scott at Miami last February, and it was the opinion of the large crowd of spectators that the Lith's work was highly impressive.

As Sharkey stepped toward Johnny Grosso, his first opponent, he appeared to possess all his cleverness and skill despite the layoff from boxing. A few seconds later the first impression was verified when Sharkey sent Grosso back on his heels with a vicious left hook to the head.

Grosso Begs Off.

Sharkey was anxious to travel another round with Grosso, but the latter begged off in view of the fact it was his first real day of training. King Solomon was next in the ring, and almost from the beginning Sharkey's left hand to the face caused the veteran to bleed from the nose. Sharkey landed a hard right hand to the head shortly afterward and Solomon almost went to the canvas.

Four rounds of floor exercises, consisting of shadow boxing, rope skipping and bag punching, concluded Sharkey's work, and his weight was announced at close to the 200 mark again.

In class B there was a tie between C. B. Kaufman with 103—38—65 and Aubrey Fisher, with 100—35—65. The third prize was won by M. Baum, with 104—31—73.

Dubois-Tresley Win Indian Spring Golf

The best-ball four-ball match played yesterday on the course of the Indian Spring Club resulted in a victory for W. F. Dubois and W. F. Tresley, who, with a best ball of 82 and a 14 handicap, had a net 68. There was a tie for second prize between A. von Steinner and Gov. E. P. Morrow, 83—11—72, and Roger Peacock and Elliott Spicer, 74—2—72.

Quadruple Golf Tie In Bannockburn Play

Members of the Bannockburn Club yesterday participated in a so-called "Lincoln" tournament. Each player was allowed a stroke or strokes on each hole to which he was entitled to a handicap. When all the cards had been figured by the golf committee there were four ties for winner, each of the players having scored all seven letters in Lincoln's name, as follows: Dr. T. J. W. Brown, 75; Martin McIrneney, 79; John T. McCarthy, 77, and John Thacker, 75.

U. S. GOLFERS PLAY WITH WALES

Prince, Duke of York, Meet Jones, Voigt in Matches.

LONDON, May 18 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales and Bobby Jones played 36 holes of golf together today, and, though rain fell during a part of the match, it did not interfere with either's game. The match was played on Sir Philip Sassoon's private course at Trent Park, High Barnet.

Just who won the match, how many strokes Bobby gave the prince and the totals for 36 holes could not be learned.

The Daily Mail says the match was an incident of a golfing party given by Sir Philip at which the prince, his brother, the Duke of York, and members of the American and British Walker cup teams were present.

A match of eight a side was played with singles in the morning and foursomes in the afternoon.

Voigt Among Players Participating.

The players included the prince, the Duke of York, and Jones, George Voigt, George von Elm, Harrison R. Johnston, and Don Moe of the American team, and Roger Wethered and Rex Hatley of the British squad. R. H. Baugh, American captain of Oxford's golf team, and Charles Sweeney of New York, another American "blue," also played.

Kid Chocolate Hurt In Automobile Crash

Nyack, N. Y., May 18 (A.P.).—Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight, was badly bruised in an automobile accident near here this afternoon. Dr. George Lightner, of Nyack Hospital, where the Cuban boxer was taken, said that Chocolate would have to remain there for thre or four days and probably would be able to fight again in about a month. Dr. Lightner said no bones had been broken, but an X-ray would be taken to make sure.

The car containing the Cuban featherweight and three companions, was hit at a turn in the road by another machine and knocked to the side of the road. All four were stunned by the impact.

Chocolate will be forced to ask for a postponement of his match with Fidel Labarba at Madison Square Garden May 28.

Werber, 4 Other Duke Stars to Join Majors

Durham, N. C., May 18 (A.P.).—Major league baseball scouts made a wholesale raid on Duke University's Baseball Club, coached by Jack Coombs, former big time star, by signing five graduating members to contracts.

The men signed, their positions and home towns follow: Bill Werber, shortstop, Berwyn, Md., by New York Yankees; Roland Farley, third baseman, Danville, Va., by St. Louis Cardinals; Henry Kistler, first baseman, Charlotte, N. C., and Ernest Jackson, southpaw hurler, Gastonia, N. C., by Philadelphia Athletics, and Gene Belue, Gaffney, S. C., another southpaw, by Pittsburgh Pirates. Coombs' Duke Club won the North Carolina college baseball championship this year.

Giants, Braves Divide; Zachary Wins Opener

New York, May 18 (A.P.).—It took eleven innings today for the Giants to gain an even split with the Boston Braves, losing the first game, 4 to 1, and winning the second, 3 to 2. Fred Leach's double sent Marshall home with the winning run.

After pitching 7 2-3 innings of perfect baseball, Carl Hubbell blew up and three singles in the eighth and two in the ninth tied the score.

Mell Ott hit his sixth homer, with Terry on base, in the fourth to give the Giants a two-run lead, only to have Hubbell blow it.

In the first game, the veteran Tom Zachary, a former Yank, though hit hard, tightened in the pinches and turned in his first victory for the Braves in the National League.

Bill Walker, on the other hand, allowed four hits, but the Braves were more timid. A homer by George Sisler tied the score, while Berger's sacrifice fly sent over the winning run.

Dodgers Lead In National League

Advance by Two Victories Over Phillies, 3-0 and 7-5.

Elliott, Bissonette in Star Roles Before 30,000 Crowd.

BROOKLYN, May 18 (A.P.).—The Robins gained the lead in the National League when they twice defeated the Phillies before a capacity crowd of 30,000. Aided by perfect fielding support, Jim Elliott scored a five-hit shut-out over the Phillies in the first game, which Brooklyn won, 3 to 0. Home runs by McCurdy, Sigman and Klein in the second contest failed to overcome an early Brooklyn lead and the Robins took that one, 7 to 5.

Coming from behind in the late innings of the second game, the Phillies knocked Babe Phelps out of the box in the ninth. Watson Clark relieved him and disposed of two Phillies pinch hitters, but Thompson walked, bringing up the dangerous O'Doul. O'Doul hit a terrific line drive, but Bissonnette ended the game with a diving catch.

French Netmen Beat British in 2-Day Play

Paris, May 18 (A.P.).—France defeated England, eight matches to seven, in their two-day intercountry tennis tournament concluded today.

France had taken five of the first nine matches yesterday and broke even in six matches today to retain its advantage of one match. Jean Borotra, the "Bounding Basque," defeated H. W. (Bunny) Austin, of England, 6—4, 6—8, 7—5, and Jacques Brugnon conquered H. G. N. Lee, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4, but the British evened the singles score when J. C. Gregory defeated Pierre Landry, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2, and Nigel Sharpe whipped Antoine Gentien, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4.

The two doubles matches were evenly divided, but French fans looked on in amazement as the highly touted French pair of Cochet and Brugnon were defeated by Gregory and I. G. Collins, 4—6, 6—2, 7—5. Cochet and Brugnon, who are to play the doubles for France in the Davis Cup challenge round, thus suffered their second defeat in as many days, Austin and Big Bill Tilden having beaten them yesterday, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4.

In the other doubles match today Francois B. Lanchley and Roger Guillimoit defeated Al Kingscote and M. J. G. Ritchie, 6—1, 6—3.

Johnson Plans Pitching for 6 Games With Boston.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON and his cohorts will be given a respite for the next two days, drawing blanks on the schedule. This afternoon they are booked to see action, but it will be in the nature of practice, for they journey to Annapolis to meet the Midshipmen in an exhibition affair. All of the regulars will be used part of the game except Second Baseman Buddie Myer, who will give way to Jack Hayes.

In view of Myer's recent sinus attack, Johnson believes that a day's rest will do him more good than would work. Irving Hadley and one or two of the rookies probably will divide the mound work for the Nationals.

Although the home team also draws a blank on Friday, plenty of work is just ahead of the Nats, as they are scheduled to take on the Boston Red Sox here in successive double-headers on Wednesday and Thursday and in single games Saturday and Sunday.

Johnson already is making his pitching plans for the coming series, realizing that victories over the Beaneaters mean just as much as do those over teams rated as pennant contenders. "Sad Sam" Jones is slated to see action in one of the Wednesday games, with either Irving Hadley or Adolph Liska getting the call in the other. On Thursday the one of the last two named who does not work on Wednesday will perform, with Bob Burke probably being elected as the other Washington starter.

Burke, Johnson believes, has the stuff needed to beat certain clubs, while others likely would make life miserable for him. Consequently, spots are being picked for the young southpaw and the Red Sox are believed to be one of them.

Myer Robs Dykes Of Hit.

Second Baseman Buddie Myer robbed Dykes of a hit and kept Pitcher Brown out of possible trouble in the first round yesterday when he

Schmeling Practicing To Guard Against Good Left Hand of Sharkey

By MAX SCHMELING.
(As told to Paul Gallico.)

ENDICOTT, N. Y., May 18.—Although a couple of my sparring friends had the bad luck to run into a few hard punches, I count that six rounds I did yesterday as only a light workout. In the six rounds, I was working at long range all the time, fighting little and boxing a lot.

I wish my sparring partners all had good left hands and would keep punching with them at me. To fight Sharkey well, I must know how to move easily under or away from a great left hand and come up punching sharply. That is why I am so careful about getting my eye and my judgment.

Sharkey Needs More Work.

I do only light work now. The fight is yet so far off. If I went at it heavy, I would be in condition in eight days. And then what do I do with myself? You see, I am young. I do not need so much time for conditioning.

Sharkey needs much more work than I do. He is older. It not only takes him longer to prepare himself, but he must work all the time to keep from getting heavy and fat. He has reached the age where if he ever stopped working he would soon take on weight. The older you grow the greater becomes the task of attaining condition.

After yesterday's workout, some newspapermen pointed out a fault of mine. They said that I came in to Vincent Babin doubled over and with my hands down at my side. That is true enough, but it was only to draw a lead from Babin, who moved only backward. He wouldn't come to me, and it is hard to hit some one who is going away all the time.

So I lure him. I expose myself a little. He thinks I am careless. He leads, hit, misses—and then I pick him up and ask him if he feels all right. Don't think I would do that with Sharkey. He is no fellow to come to with your hands down. He knows too much. But then Shar-

Babe's Homer Makes History at Park of Red Sox.

Pipgras Gives 3 Hits; Has 20 Scoreless Frames to Credit.

BOSTON, May 18 (A.P.).—George Pipgras pitched the New York Yankees to an 11-to-0 victory over the Red Sox at Braves Field here today.

A crowd of 25,000 saw Babe Ruth hit what was probably the longest and hardest home run in the fifteen years of the field's history while Pipgras held the Red Sox to three scattered singles and stretched his shut-out string to 20 consecutive innings. The Babe's homer, his sixth of the year, came in the first inning off Big Ed Morris and landed very high in the right field bleachers.

The Yankees hit three Red Sox pitchers hard, including Ben Shields, who made his debut with the Sox by finishing the game.

Cubs Win First, 9-6; Cards Take Second, 8-2

St. Louis, May 18 (A.P.).—The Chicago Cubs snapped the Cardinals' winning streak at nine by taking the first game of a double-header here today by 9 to 6, but the Red Birds came back to trounce the champions in the second contest, 8 to 2.

The Cubs, led by Hack Wilson, who got two home runs, bombarded Johnson, Bell and Frankhouse for sixteen hits, to take the first game. Root held the Cards in check until the eighth, when he was the victim of a rally that netted four runs, but fell short.

In the nightcap, Jess Haines won his third game of the season, striking out eight batters and allowing only six hits, while the Cardinals were hammering Sheriff Blake. Chick Hafey got a homer in the fourth with two on. Jim Bottomley played in the second game after having been out about ten days with a sore thumb.

GALLANT FOX HEADS EAST SEEKING MORE HONORS

Derby Winner To Race at Belmont

May Meet Whichone in Acid Test on June 7.

Must Win to Make Up for Loss to Whitney Horse Last Fall.

By GEORGE DALEY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Gallant Fox, commanding winner of the Kentucky Derby yesterday, is on his way home today, in search of Whichone, Flying Heels and further racing honors. He is in charge of George Tappan, who has watched over him so faithfully since leaving his Aqueduct stall to invade first Maryland and then Kentucky for the famous double of the Preakness and the Derby, a double scored only once before—by Sir Barton.

William Woodward and Jimmy Fitzsimmons, his proud owner and trainer, also are speeding East. The latter lived on one of the special trains while here to avoid the rush and clamor of the crowded hotels and left soon after the race was run. He will have everything ready for the reception of the good colt, which now looms as the possible champion of his age even with H. P. Whitney's Whichone about ready to give him battle.

Louisville Quiet After Great Race.

This city, at the gateway of the South, is comparatively quiet this evening, and settling back to normalcy after the upheaval of a race which brought thousands to historic Churchill Downs for the glowing spectacle. Those horsemen staying over for a day or two still are discussing the bold and easy way in which Gallant Fox raced to victory, but shaking their heads over his slowness of the time. That mile and a quarter in 2:07 3-5 was slow, even over a track that was a shade dull, more from recent soaking than from the drizzle which fell just before and during the race.

No abilis are needed for a horse which won so easily. He put in one fast quarter early in the battle and thereafter was little more than galloping except for one short flash near the home turn when Gallant Knight made a threatening move. That to me is the stamp of a great horse. Time has little bearing. The son of Sir Galahad III can run fast when needs must and the beauty of it is that he can keep on running when under high pressure, as proved in the Preakness.

One Fast Quarter Won for Gallant Fox.

An analysis of the Derby shows that he fairly tiptoed and discouraged Tannery, High Foot and others with early speed in the first half mile and then was able to gallop along with no fear of the early trailers, which, being off the pace, were running strongly through the stretch.

One fast quarter wherever put in will beat the average horse and one is led to believe by the running of the Derby that nothing better than average horses were chasing the winner home, with the possible exception of Crack Brigade and Gallant Knight.

Crack Brigade appeared to be suffering from an overdose of racing. One must not forget the battle he gave Gallant Fox in the Preakness. The latter, of course, is his master and horses are quick to know when dominated, even as humans.

Many still are withholding the mantle of greatness on the ground that Gallant Fox has not yet faced the acid test against Whichone and even Flying Heels. Whichone beat him decisively in the Futurity last September and his followers are legion. Fanciers everywhere are hoping they will meet in the Belmont Stakes on June 7, over one mile and a half, the true Derby distance.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL SHIFTED

Track Meet on Friday Forces Change in Schedule.

As a result of a change in the interhigh school baseball schedule, two games will be played on successive days this week. Due to the fact that the interhigh track meet falls on Friday, it has been necessary to move the Eastern-Business game, which many consider a "crucial" battle, up to Wednesday, the day after the Central-Western fray. Another change has shifted the series finale between Eastern and Western from June 3 to May 28.

Had Business beaten Tech last Friday, it would have gone into battle with the Lincoln Parkers on even terms, instead of half a game behind, as it is now. Should Eastern defeat the Stenogs, it could do no worse than tie for the title, having but one game left to play after Wednesday. A win for Business, however, would leave both teams deadlocked for first with two victories and one defeat.

Business Lacks Pitcher.

Although hopeful that their favorites might upset the dope, Business fans are looking forward to the Wednesday game with an extra amount of hope. They can see no pitcher in all of their squad capable of stilling the heavy bats of the Eastern Nine, which have murdered all opposition sent against it in two games. And Business has yet to find a hurler who is even mediocre.

Aside from Central-Western clash nine other ball games are listed for scholastic teams. Both Tech and Eastern will invade the Catholic University Stadium for return games with the C. U. Frosh, who defeated the former, but lost to the 1930 title aspirants.

Maryland Bike Mark Is Broken by Bieber

Edgar Bieber, champion cyclist of the District, and Anthony Horner, of the local Century Road Club Association, yesterday invaded Baltimore for the annual spring race meet of the Maryland Bicycle Club, which was held on the roadway around the Clifton Park Lake. They rode in two races, the 10-mile scratch and the 5-mile handicap.

In the 10-mile scratch, Bieber and Horner finished one, two, with Charles Zimmerman, of the Maryland Bicycle Club, third, in the time of 24:44, a new State record for the distance. In the 5-mile handicap, Gerard Hunt, of the home club, riding from a handicap mark of 1:15, won. Bieber was fourth, the first scratchman to finish. The time for this race was 11:24.

Tilden Seeded No. 2 In French Tourney

Paris, May 18 (A.P.).—William T. Tilden, of Philadelphia, will be seeded No. 2 in singles in the French hard court tennis championships which get under way at Roland Garros Stadium tomorrow.

Although the singles draw will not be completed until Tuesday morning, the Associated Press has learned that Tilden gets the place of honor immediately after Henri Cochet, French ace, and in preference to Jean Borotra. The seeded men thus far decided on in order are Cochet, Tilden, Borotra, Jack Crawford and E. L. Moon, of Australia, and Baron H. L. de Morpurgo, of Italy. Others will be selected tomorrow.

It is likely that Tilden will have Borotra and Crawford in his half of the draw, while Cochet probably will have to dispose of Moon and De Morpurgo.

Half Million Is Bet On Kentucky Derby

Louisville, May 18 (A.P.).—A track accountant computed that the customers bet $582,384 through the pari mutuel machines on the Derby alone and $1,641,949 on the seven races on the card. Many thousands more were bet through bookmakers in various cities.

Gallant Fox's victory enriched William Woodward, of New York, his owner, by $50,725. It also gave him a gold trophy on his mantelpiece and a twinkle in his eye. Earl Sande's share in the triumph was the traditional $10,000 paid to pilots of Derby winners and untold glory and honor.

Mangin Wins in Net Exhibitions at Columbia

Before a large and enthusiastic audience, Gregory Mangin, of Georgetown University, No. 10 in national singles rankings, participated in a pair of brilliant victories in exhibition tennis yesterday at Columbia Country Club.

Meeting Paul Heston, clever professional, the Hilltop star drew out a 6-4 decision in the first set after a hard battle, but in the second set he had an easier problem, winning by 6-1.

Paired with Tom Mangan, City of Washington singles champion, Mangin defeated Heston and Dooly Mitchell in a closely contested doubles match, 6-4, 6-8, 6-3.

Mitchell and Mangan met in a singles match and with the score 8-8, quit by mutual agreement to allow Mangan to play with Mangin in the doubles.

SAINTS OPEN BY TOPPING EAGLES

Aztecs, Mohawks and Columbia Heights Also Triumph.

ST. JOSEPH'S A. C. started off in defense of its Capital City League unlimited title by defeating the Skinker Bros. Eagles on nFriendship Field, 12 to 4. The Aztecs trimmed the Army Medical Center tossers, 3 to 2, at Walter Reed. Foxall A. C. gave the Mohawks a stiff battle before yielding, 8 to7, and the Burroughs A. C. bowed on its home field, 6 to 3, before the formidable Columbia Heights Business Men's Association Team.

The Aztec-Army Medico fray was probably the most interesting of the four District section games. Maguire and Woods engaged in a hurling duel which ended in the ninth frame. O'Neil, Colliere and Bush led the stickmen.

Hawks Bunch Runs

In Two Innings.

Two good innings brought victory to the Mohawks. A six run rally in the fourth was sufficient although the Foxall sluggers gradually whittled away the advantage as the game progressed but were unable to reach Hayes for the tying tally. Gold's homer for Foxall and the hitting of Dean, Tenneyson and Smith featured.

After a good start, the Skinker Eagles found the St. Joe attack too ferocious. Skinner and DeMarco were both treated roughly and neither received good support. Hilleary, Farrington and Buscher were the chief Saint aggressors. Tiller, Bennis and Glaser shone for the Eagles.

Rhodes Beats Bladen

In Mound Duel.

Reds Rhodes, of the Columbia Heights Team, and Bladen, of Burroughs, engaged in a spirited hurling duel with neither holding a safe advantage until the ninth, when the Prattmen shoved over two tallies to clinch the decision. Lewis and Tracey hit home runs. Shapiro, Ruppert and Ball led the stickmen.

Wisconsin Nine Near Title in Big Ten Race

Chicago, May 18 (A.P.).—Its string of victories still intact, Wisconsin tonight anticipated clinching its first Big Ten baseball championship since 1912 by the end of the week.

Wisconsin stretched its string from five to seven straight last week, defeating Illinois and Chicago, each for the second time of the season. This week the Badgers have two engagements. Minnesota, already once defeated by the leaders, will be met at Minneapolis Tuesday, and Michigan, 1928 and 1929 titleholder, which has fallen into lean days, will be tackled at Madison Saturday. Victory in both games would make certain a major championship for Wisconsin.

Illinois, still in second place, will meet Northwestern, Chicago and Ohio State during the week. Northwestern also will play Indiana. Purdue, which defeated Minnesota Saturday, virtually shoving the Gophers out of the race, also will tackle Indiana.

The single game on tomorrow's program will occur at Columbus, Ohio, where Ohio State and Michigan will meet for the second time of the campaign.

HYATTSVILL AND BOWIE VICTORS

Hiser's Homer Beats Mt. Rainier, 3-2; Pigs Win, 13-1.

ERNIE HISER'S home run over the right field fence at Mount Rainier yesterday broke up the best ball game played in the Prince Georges section of the Capital City League in the ninth inning. His clout gave Hyattsville a 3 to 2 decision over a stubborn and greatly improved Mount Rainier A. C. Nine.

Bowie A. C. found little opposition from the Brentwood Hawks and romped off with a 12 to 3 verdict, while Blackie Adair was pitching the Berwyn A. C. into submission for the Dixie Pig A. C., 13 to 1.

Mount Rainier Ties

Score in Sixth.

Mount Rainier tied the score at 2-all in the sixth and until Hiser's Ruthian belt in the ninth, the contest promised o go on indefinitely Tom Mudd, hurling for Hyattsville, and Waple, of Mount Rainier, waged a merry mound duel, with the former holding the slight edge. Hiser, Mudd and Frank Bowman led the hitting.

With Abigail, Dove, Radtke, Cumberland and Dunn hitting hard and often and Clapper and Stahl adding extra base blows, the Dixies had no trouble holding a safe lead with Adair hurling in mid-season form. Giddings and Dulin were touched freely.

Joe Freschi led the 14-hit attack of theh Bowie batsmen. Kopp and Ensor were unable to halt the slugging winners. Rennie was not pressed to show his best.

GROVE TAKES DUEL WITH BROWN

Macks Defeat Nats, 1-0; Rice's Batting Streak Ends.

again reached second in the seventh, but he and Judge were the only Nats to get farther than first base.

Nats Fail to Produce Punch.

Myer's single in the fourth came with two out and Spencer's in the fifth helped none, the Nats again being within a hit of scoring in the seventh when Bluege doubled with two out. Again it was put up to Spencer, but his best was a looper to Miller. The last hope died in the next frame. After Pinch Hitter Bill Barrett had fanned, Loepp singled This would have been a fine chance for Sam Rice to have prolonged his hitting streak, but he tapped into a force-play, going hitless after having registered at least one bingle in all of the 28 consecutive games in which he had participated. The round ended when Goslin followed suit and the Nats went down in order in their ninth.

Aside from their run-producing sixth, the Mackmen were almost helpless at the swinging block. Brown fanned four and walked three, passing two in a row with one dead in the third, but he never was in serious difficulty, although it must be admitted that three fine plays by Myer, Cronin and Goslin, helped him considerably, while neither of the two Washington errors did any harm.

Snappy Fielding Helps.

Besides Dykes' scratch safety in round 6, Haas got on with one out in the second and was a force-play victim, while some snappy fielding kept the A's from benefiting from Perkins' opening liner-single in the seventh. On McNair's intended sacrifice, Brown forced Perkins at second and then Spencer picked McNair off first when he made a break for second and couldn't get back in time, as Grove, who later fanned, missed his second strike.

Win or lose, however, the game undoubtedly was as good a one to watch as any that will be staged in the majors this season. It was a tough one for Brown to lose, but it would have been just as tough for Grove had his mound performance netted him a defeat.

Garland Braxton hurled the ninth against the Macks. He put one on when he fumbled Foxx's grasser, but simply breezed through the frame otherwise.

RED SOX TO MEET NATS WEDNESDAY

raced over toward first and snared a hard-hit bounder with his gloved hand, wheeling and forcing Haas, who had singled, at the middle sack.

One of the most remarkable features of the Washington Club's showing this season is that such results have been obtained with both Pitcher Fred Marberry and Outfielder Goose Goslin not traveling at the pace expected of them. There is a bright slant to the angle, however, for these athletes have proven by several years' good, work that they are top-notch players, and it likely will be just a question of time before they begin showing their true form.

With the rest of the team going so well, they have not been needed much, and it might happen that they will round to just in time to pick up mates who may be slumping. So far, the team has been benefiting at the bat in this manner, with the players taking turns breaking out in rashes of safeties.

Jimmy Dykes, Mack third sacker, turned in a fine play at George Loepp's expense to end the fifth round with Brown on first. He had to grab George's bad hopper with his bare hand and to make the peg to first while off balance.

Cronin Makes Great Catch.

In the sixth Joe Cronin made a sensational stop, when he tore over almost behind second to take Dykes' grounder with his gloved hand. He was in no poistion to make the out at first, however, but the play stopped Bishop from scoring for the time being and might have enabled Brown to have pulled out of the hole had not Simmons charged into Myer later in the frame and prevented a possible double play which would have ended the round.

It will be a long time before fans will see a better catch than that turned in by Goose Goslin ending the eighth. The "Wild Goose of the Potomac" came tearing in and toward the left field foul line to dive for Dykes' liner. He snared the ball back-handed with his glove, coming up with it after a complete somersault.

Adele Ahrens Annexes Fairmont School Title

Adele Ahrens won the tennis singles championship of Fairmont School, 1711 Massachusetts avenue, by defeating Mary Gostlin in the finals of an interesting tournament, 6—4, 6—3. Miss Ahrens will receive the Edward L. Montgomery trophy, a beautifully engraved loving cup, during commencement at the school. The runner-up received a miniature tennis racquet.

Miss Gostlin started off in the championship match like a winner, taking the first three games, but in doing so she appeared to lose her strength, for Miss Ahrens came right back to win the next five games.

key will not run from me all night. At least, I hope he won't.

Schmeling Slow, Due To Cold.

The first two rounds I worked badly. I was cold. The wind whistled through the little arena. I should have known enough to wear more clothing—at least a full-length suit. George Neron was smarter. He came out wearing a sweater. I was nearly frozen. As a result, I was slow and my distance was very poor. I did not warm up until the fourth round.

I see where my opponent, Sharkey, gave out an interview in which he says that I am very lucky to be in the ring with him for the championship and make so much money. Ja, I think he is lucky, too. He has me, otherwise he will not make so much money himself.

If together we draw $1,000,000, then he will get $250,000, which is more money than he ever made before in a fight. I do not thinks he draws so good by himself. No, it takes two. With Phil Scott he draws a flop. I guess when it comes to luck we both have some.

Will Be Good Fight as Long As "She" Lasts.

I hope he takes good care of himself until the night of June 12. I do not know of any one else in the country except Dempsey who would make such a good match for me. One thing I promise you. I can not tell you who is going to win, but I can tell you you'll see a fight, as long as she lasts, no?

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BLOOD TREATMENT OF SHINGLES.

RARELY is shingles of any importance except for the pain and inconvenience it causes and its duration. The man who develops it expects to have a good deal of pain, to be inconvenienced by sores in inconvenient locations, and to be uncomfortable for more than a week, but he does not expect to die, or even to quit work and take to his bed. He expects to need some doses of salicylates to ease his neuralgic pains and to be under the necessity of wearing bandages over ointment-covered gauze, but in spite of that he anticipates pain and ulcers which will be weeks in healing.

Some physicians are using a method with which Dr. B. B. Beeson gives his experience. It consists of drawing one-third of an ounce of blood from the sick man and injecting it immediately into his muscle, not near the ulcers. In some cases one such injection cures. In others a daily injection is given for about three days. The claim is made that the first injection ends the pain in most cases and that in less than a week the sores are no longer troublesome.

This method of treatment has been in use for almost seven years, and there are a small number of physicians with reports of results that satisfy. The use of similar blood injections for somewhat related skin troubles has had some vogue for nearly twenty years. None of the physicians who use this method claim to know how it acts or why. Nor do they claim it to be a perfect treatment. All they say is that it gives the promptest relief and the speediest cures of any proposed method.

The proper name for shingles is herpes zoster, the first word referring to the kind of ulcers and the second to their location. Underlying it is some change in the roots of the nerves serving the areas where the ulcers are located. It is the common belief that all forms of herpes are the result of infections, though this theory does not satisfactorily explain all the stomach sores on the lips. The infecting microbes are those of pneumonia and malaria and maybe some others. Some cases are supposed to be due to viruses of unknown nature. The best treatment will be some serum which will be specific for the microbe or virus which causes the trouble. But since there seem to be several possible causes we may wait a long time for such a specific treatment.

NOT FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Mrs. H. M. writes:

1. Can a fibroid tumor be reduced or cured by the electric treatment?
2. Are electric vibrators beneficial?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Not for that purpose.

LAX PARENTS FACE SCHOOL WARRANTS

Fairfax County Prosecution Planned for Persons Violating Law.

VOTERS MUST QUALIFY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson states that he is planning to have warrants issued against persons in this county who persistently keep their children out of school. They will be prosecuted under the Virginia compulsory education law.

This move was started last week when three warrants were issued by A. C. Ritchie, of Fairfax, judge of the Juvenile Court of Fairfax County. Action was taken only after Superintendent Woodson had officially notified the parents on several occasions. The notices were ignored and the teachers had reported the continued absence of the children. The action was continued against two of the defendants when they promised to keep their children in school regularly and the third was referred to Mrs. Louise S. Manghum, the county welfare worker.

The Fairfax Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, have unanimously reelected Mrs. Franklin Williams, of Vienna, as regent for a fourth term. Other officers elected for the coming year were Mrs. Katherine Walters, of Washington, first vice regent; Mrs. George E. King, of Vienna, second vice recent; Mrs. Lizzie Council Rucker, of Clarendon, recording secretary; Mrs. Carlotta Corey Zirkle, of Alexandria, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George W. Hawxhurst, of Falls Church, treasurer; Mrs. Cornelius Shear, of Rosslyn, registrar, and Dr. Jessie Thornton Scott, of Vienna, historian.

The chapter will hold an all-day lawn party at the home of the regent, Mrs. Franklin Williams, at Woodford, on June 6.

Tomorrow is the last day on which the residents of the Town of Falls Church can qualify to take part in the town election June 10. Persons whose poll taxes were paid at least six months before June 10 must first qualify as State and county voters by registering with the registrars of their magisterial districts and by registering before the town clerk. As the Town of Falls Church lies in two counties and four magisterial districts it is necessary that the residents of the town register before the proper registrar. The major part of the town is in Falls Church district of Fairfax County, for whom the registrar is Harry Birch, who lives on Broad street. He has announced that he will sit tomorrow for the convenience of the citizens. The citizens of West Falls Church, in Providence district of Fairfax County, must register with Benjamin I. Clock at Idlewood. The residents of Washington district in Arlington County will register with R. B. Turner at at East Falls Church, and those in Arlington district of Arlington County with the registrar at Ballston. Town Clerk Thomas Probey has announced that he will be in his office on Maple avenue tomorrow afternoon from 1 until 7 o'clock to register all qualified voters within the corporate limits that have not registered prior to this time.

The Northwest Citizens Association of Falls Church will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. Anne Bryan and Miss Virginia Reed on Great Falls street. The coming town election will be one of the chief topics for discussion.

Newly elected officers of the Floris Forestry Club are: Wilson Smith, president; Allan McLaaren, vice president; Henry Leith, secretary; Mary Rogers, reporter, and Louis Kirkpatrick, cheer leader.

There will be an executive meeting of the Fairfax-Loudoun Epworth League Union this afternoon in the Herndon Methodist Church. Miss Rebbie De Butts, vice president of the Union, will preside in the absence of Miss Agnes Orrison of Andrew Chapel, president.

George S. Tate has been appointed first assistant chief of the Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department, Fred W. Hollis, second assistant chief, Elmer I. Dove, chief engineer, with Charles L. Smith, John C. Robey has been elected general chairman. The chairmen of the various committees have been appointed as follows: automobile tickets, John M. Whalen; advertising, F. P. Sagendorf; publicity, W. F. Carne; aluminum ware, Charles L. Smith; blankets, Lewis Coyner; candy, Elmer Dove; nail driving, James Wiley; ice cream and soft drinks, W. H. Beistle; dancing, James E. Nickell, Allan Williams, Roy Hollis and Fred Hollis. The Ladies Auxiliary will take charge of the food and lunch counter. The chairmen of committees will be responsible for erecting their own stands.

The alumni association of the Franklin Sherman High School at McLean has elected Mrs. Helen Preston Sauder, class '25, as president; Miss Elizabeth Berry, '29, vice president, and Miss Mathilda Berthume, '27, as secretary-treasurer. The executive committee was elected as follows: Miss Clark Phillips, Miss Pauline Moffett, Miss Elione Follin, Miss Doris Haines, Miss Elsie Downey, Miss Audrey Lowe and Mrs. Katherine Kadel. MARQUIS LAFAYETTE RECEPTION PLANNED

Monticello Guard to Greet General's Descendant in New York.

TO ARRIVE NEXT MONDAY

Special to The Washington Pos.

Charlottesville, Va., May 18.—The Monticello Guard, the local National Guard unit, is preparing to go to New York next week to take part in the reception in honor of Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert du Motier, Marquis de La Fayette, who will come to America on the maiden voyage of the new motorship Lafayette.

When the marquis arrives on Monday, May 26, the Monticello Guard plans to be part of the welcoming party. The soldiers will act as his escort while he is in New York, and will attend the costume ball of the Revolutionary period to be given Thursday night, May 29, on board the Lafayette in honor of the marquis.

The Monticello Guard was organized more than a century ago and members of the original company acted as escorts to Gen. La Fayette several times when he visited Thomas Jefferson at Monticello. They were present on that November evening 105 years ago when Jefferson gave a dinner to the distinguished French general in the rotunda of the University of Virginia.

The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation has invited the Monticello Guard to act as escort to this descendant of Gen. La Fayette when he comes over on the first voyage of the new motorship of the French line. The City of Charlottesville has made a generous contribution to help defray the expenses of the soldiers on their trip to New York.

If plans go through as they are now being prepared, the Monticello Guard will arrive in New York Sunday night, May 25. They will have their headquarters in the New Yorker Hotel. Four days full of activity have been arranged for the soldier boys.

After meeting the marquis at the Battery upon his arrival Monday morning, he will be escorted to the city hall, where Mayor Walker will welcome him. The next afternoon there will be a reception in his honor on board the Lafayette. Wednesday morning there will be patriotic exercises at the Lafayette Statue in Union Square, and Thursday evening the costume ball will be given.

Windorf was arrested by County Policeman Lloyd Whipp, of Rockville police headquarters, and charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was released on bond of $250 for his appearance in county police court.

RKO-KEITH

"THE CUCKOOS." Radio Pictures' screen version of stage play "The Ramblers," by Guy Bolton, Harry Ruby and Bert Kalmar, featuring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, supported by Dorothy Lee, Jobyna Howland and Mitchell Lewis. Directed by Paul Sloane. Reviewed Sunday evening (second week) by J. F. Brady.

"The Cuckoos" is right, and if they can not convulse you with laughter you must be cuckoo too. Here is a—well, what would you call it—a comedy-drama-musical revue with many specialties thrown in. Suffice it to say that any one can certainly get enough laughs and enjoyment to satisfy.

"The Cuckoos" moves fast, has many wise-cracking shots—just a few one may object to—plenty of songs, a number of Technicolor scenes, beautiful girls, handsome costuming, kidnaping, shooting parties and a touch of the old-time slap-stick comedy business.

Although the plot of the story is not outstanding, there is sufficient to keep that part of the interest alive, especially when two pretty girls are concerned.

The comic pair—Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, who were seen to such advantage in "Rio Rita"—form the center of the scene throughout. It is around their capers that the struggles of an aunt to get her niece married to a baron, the hopes of a gypsy ward to hold the love of one of the "cuckoos," and the other "cuckoo" to save the niece and marry the aunt's money revolve.

Quite a few song and dance ensembles are scattered through to lessen the comedy tension and to add pictorial splendor, for these are mainly in Technicolor.

Supporting the feature picture are the Radio News, the Pathe Audio Review and Freddy Clark and his R-K-Olians, with their overture specialty well done.

LITTLE THEATER

"DAMAGED SOULS." Public Welfare Pictures Corporation Production, starring Corliss Palmer, supported by Dave Finley. Reviewed Sunday night, fourth week. (For women only.)

Capacity crowds of women have been the rule at the Little Theater, Ninth and F streets northwest, ever since the management decided to continue the run for women only of "Damaged Souls."

This picture has been creating considerable comment in Washington, due probably to the straightforward manner in which it handles a delicate subject of social hygiene. Never before has an attraction of this type attracted the attention of the women of this city as "Damaged Souls" has done.

Corliss Palmer and Dave Finley are the star and leading man of the major feature, in addition to which the bill includes several informative reels produced exclusively for the enlightenment of women.

EARLE

"THE MAN FROM BLANKLEY'S." Warner Bros. production, based on a play by F. Anstey, starring John Barrymore, supported by Loretta Young, Emily Fitzroy and Albert Gran. Directed by Alfred Green. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Long before John Barrymore essayed the "Peter Ibbetsons," the "Jests" and the "Hamlets," he was a light comedian of renown. More than one of his earlier frolicsome adventures on the stage was in association with the late Tom Wise and many, of course, were as an individual star. It is to this field with which he was familiar prior to his excursions into the realm of the romantic and the classic that he returns, by way of the articulate screen, in the somewhat surprising, but none the less delightful, farce which the Earle Theater is currently offering.

I very much doubt whether "The Man From Blankley's" will exert any great appeal as a superlative box office attraction. It is a trifle too British, perhaps, to strike the popular fancy of the casual American movie trade—especially the hip flask and cigaret, rumble-seat element—a bit too much after the manner of Dickens in its character drawing and a mite too subtle in its strongly tinctured travesty of the pomposity of middle-class English life to be what the sheiks and shebas will cry for. There are, nevertheless, a large number who will find it continuously and consistently amusing, quaintly conceived and, in the main, extraordinarily well acted.

Mr. Barrymore, in the role of the pleasantly jingled Lord Strathpeffer, who strolls into a dinner party being given for dear, old fabulous Uncle Gabriel Gilwattle, by his niece and nephew, Mrs. and Mr. Tidmarsh—in the order of their importance—when he was supposed to be dining next door with a collector of scarabs, who, like himself, was tremendously interested in Egyptian beetles, is the finest bit of sustained comedy characterization that the audible screen has revealed. This is emphasized by the fact that through the suavity, the finesse and the incisive humor of his portrayal of a well-born, but slightly blotto, urban gentleman, Barrymore relegates to a position of virtual obscurity Mr. William Austin, who heretofore has generally been looked upon as one of the screen's conspicuously able delineators of broadly burlesqued Britons. Mr. Poffley is not even a faint tenth carbon copy of Lord Strathpeffer in any of the qualities that make for substantial merit.

It is not important that Lord Strathpeffer is mistaken for a hired guest engaged to avoid thirteen at table, or that he finds present among the group of social monstrosities a young tutor in whom he has previously been interested and whom he determines to marry. The fantastic and wholly farcical plot is subordinated to the matter of satirical and expository limning of bizarre types of diners out. With these Mr. Barrymore has a tremendous lot of fun.

Foremost among the long list of supporting players are Emily Fitzroy, who does ample justice to the role of Mrs. Tidmarsh; Albert Gran, a mountainous and bombastic Gabriel Gilwattle, and little Angela Mawby, a precocious youngster, who does marvelously well as the meddling mischief-maker of the Tidmarsh family. Loretta Young brings nothing of distinction beyond her youth and attractive appearance, to the role of Margery Seaton, the sole object of Lord Strathpeffer's interest at the party. Edgar Norton, as the butler; Dale Fuller as a giggling nit-wit, and Louise Carver as Uncle Gabriel's Chicago wife, are most advantageously cast of the rest.

The surrounding bill will prove of scant interest to the judicious show-shopper. The overture of Friml melodies supplies a pleasant interlude, but "Getting a Raise," a Vitaphone variety, is a pointless comedy in "The Potters" series, and the tedious lecture on bridge etiquette convinces me that Milton C. Work should stick to the columns of The Post and forget all about the talking screen.

METROPOLITAN

"THE BIG POND." Paramount production, from a play by George Middleton and A. T. Thomas, starring Maurice Chevalier, suppported by Claudette Colbert. Directed by Hobart Henley. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by C. Ransom.

Maurice Chevalier's gentle, good-humored, but deft and pointed comedy, with the support of an able cast and an understanding director, makes a pleasant and thoroughly satisfying entertainment of "The Big Pond," which in less capable hands might easily have turned out but a futile piece of foolishness. It is a fluffy bit of satire that seems in constant peril of turning flat and silly but never does so. Here is a director who knows how to make the most intelligent, even artistic, use of the least promising material. An outstanding instance of noble restraint in this production is the fact that Chevalier has only three songs, and these are introduced with perfect appropriateness of time and place. Those of us who much prefer this player's acting to his singing may rejoice accordingly, and yet whoever is charmed with his warbling will find ample satisfaction.

One of the biggest helps to the success of the piece is the work of George Barbier as a wealthy manufacturer of chewing gum, as easy and convincing a picture of the self-made American business man as you will often see. Both in his domestic contacts with wife and daughter and in the rule of his office he produces comedy that is rich and savory, with just the right farcical touches.

Faced with the problem of a romantic and wilful daughter in love with a French courier at Venice, the sly father's scheme is to transplant the Frenchman to a chewing gum environment and show him up. But the suave and sophisticated youth proves his stamina, withstandnig all the trials of hard labor and hazing, till his bright thought of imparting rummy flavors to the output brings him to the top of the heap. He almost gets to be too much of a big business man for his romantic-minded sweetheart, but even there he wins out with another brilliant idea.

Claudette Colbert is a charming heroine and there are a number of well-acted minor parts. Standing out vividly are the brief appearances of a little girl as a boarding house slavey. Her name has escaped but will be heard again if nobody spoils her.

Among the short films is a comedy, "Dad Knows Best," in which Taylor Holmes, who has achieved a favorable standing in footlight farces, struggles deplorably with still more deplorable material. There is an animated cartoon with all the old tricks in an Hawaiian atmosphere. Graham McNamee comments on the week's news pictures.

FOX

"HIGH SOCIETY BLUES." Fox production based on story by Dana Burnet, starring Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, supported by William Collier, Sr., Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda and Lucian Littlefield. Directed by David Butler. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

A slight modification of the story of Romeo and Juliet, with a few tuneful ballads added, has been utilized in this one with highly entertaining results. Two warring families of wealth, who in time become neighbors in an exclusive suburban colony, are impelled to patch up their differences when the daughter of one elopes with the son of the other, rather than be bothered about pawning the paternal fortune for a title, as mother insists, it is a long familiar formula, but one which seems to me to have been done particularly ample justice here.

"High Society Blues" in continuity and directness of narrative, believability and a good old quality of human interest is in every way superior to "Sunny Side Up," the earlier musicalized vehicle for Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. There is no such number in it as "Turn on the Heat," but there is infinitely more common sense and plausibility and a truer type of character drawing and portrayal.

Miss Gaynor and Mr. Farrell are, needless to say, the daughter and son, respectively, of the embattled families. These over-rich households by the way, mar an otherwise authentic reflection of a familiar American scene by carrying rudeness toward each other to a degree that is not countenanced even by the less punctilious of our social boors. Otherwise, the incidents depicted during the brisk movement of the story might happen to any of us.

No matter to what extent the highbrow critics may disparage the vocal endowments of either Janet Gaynor or Charlie Farrell, to these flapping ears their singing is uniformly and unwillingly agreeable. The present instance is no exception. "I'm In the Market for You," "Eleanor," "High Society Blues" and "Just Like a Story Book" are pleasantly lilting songs that are rendered quite well enough for any practical purpose other than a display of lyrical pyrotechnics.

In fact, I do not recall ever having seen either star in any more natural or more genuinely likable a role than is provided by this unimportant but diverting picture. This ingratiating quality seems to have been contagious. William Collier, sr., and Hedda Hopper are splendidly cast as the socially prominent parents of Eleanor Divine, and Lucien Littlefield and Louise Fazenda are no less happily assigned the parental roles in the Granger family. Joyce Compton is an ingenuous younger sister of Eddie Granger's who is perfectly satisfied to catch on the rebound the bibulous Count Prunier, outsmarted by her brother and hilariously impersonated by Gregory Gaye. Brandon Hurst is an austere butler.

On the stage, the "Jazz Temple" revue boasts a bit of novelty by presenting a group of fourteen "line girls" who turn out to be a competent and versatile syncopated orchestra that relieves Mr. Brusiloff and his men of their responsibilities for a considerable period. Wally Jackson, ostensibly the star of the troupe, leaves much to be desired as a comedian and nothing whatever as a dancer. Gus Elmore's notion of what is laughable also seems a bit confused, but Nora Schiller, Klinger, and Sylvia Doree salvage the proceedings well on the right side of propriety.

The Fox Movietone News completes the program. N. B. B.

PALACE

"HELL HARBOR." United Artists picture, adapted from Rida Johnson Young's novel, "Out of the Night." Lupe Velez, Jean Hersholt and John Holland featured under the direction of Henry King. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

A type of picture is before us once more that was given a long and undisturbed rest from the time the talkies came in until their recently achieved ability to make themselves heard in fast and constant motion, be it outdoors or in, or at sea. Who does not remember the films of yesterday, set in colorful, far-away places, and peopled with unshaven cutthroats and thieves—films in which fights and murders curdled one's blood, and heroes rescued helpless heroines, and hulking brutes of men beat little girls with whips 10 feet long? It is of such things as these that "Hell Harbor" is made, and it comes to us now as a well-done melodramatic novelty, agreeable or otherwise, according to one's ability to stand harrowing scenes.

The atmospheric detail of the piece is almost perfect. Particularly noteworthy are the shots of the little port in the Caribbean Sea, where wickedness runs riot among the descendants of a group of pirates, and the great-grandson of the grandson of the chief pirate of them all attempts to force his motherless daughter into a hideous marriage, against her will. Before a character is introduced, the spectator is taken, via the camera, for a stroll through the quaint old town at dusk. Palms blow in the breeze against soft, lowering clouds. The sea stretches out in the distance. A dog barks. A baby wails. The short, uneven steps of a peg-legged man are heard. Gradually, the cripple comes into view and is followed to a mysterious den. There is an artistic quality about this and other scenes that is worthy of a truer drama than "Hell Harbor" pretends to be.

Lupe Velez is the shining ray that lights the ugliness of the happenings about her. Barefoot and unrestrained, she is a primitive little creature, whose emotions are believable. You will remember her vividness and the music of a native orchestra and the beauty of the clouds and sea along with the knife throwing and the murders and the eyes of evil men.

Jean Hersholt gives another of his splendid characterizations as the man who sought to buy the girl for his bride, and John Holland is acceptable as her American savior.

Benny Davis brings to the stage his "Stars of the Future" revue. He has assembled a talented and pleasing group of entertainers and the jollity and intimacy of the performance is enhanced considerably by their sitting upon the stage in night club style before and after their individual bits are done. Bemis and Brown, with their hilarious collegiate antics are the particular stars of the company, though Jack Heller, "the little boy with the big voice," has a personality that makes him their rival. May Joyce is notable chiefly for her beauty. Dorothea James, Alfred Browner and Addie Seamon offer different varieties of the dance, and the California Crooners win rounds of applause with their "Chant of the Jungle" and "Lazy Louisiana Moon."

Mr. Davis, for his own part, renders song hits of his composition, old and new, and introduces Mrs. Davis, a vivid little woman who doesn't mind doing her bit to help the show along.

The newsreels are shown and "Never Dreamt" is the overture, especially well played by the orchestra under Mr. Borjes.

COLUMBIA

"PARAMOUNT ON PARADE." Paramount all-star revue, featuing the entire list of contract players, directed by the entire corps of Paramount directors. Supervised by Elsie Janis. Dance ensembles staged by David Bennett. Reviewed Saturday night.

Had this been the first, instead of the last, of its kind to reach a Capital screen, it would have been hailed a masterpiece. As it is, it is just another revue—in some respects better, in others worse, than those that have gone before it.

There can be no quibbling about the personnel or material that have been employed here. The entire roster of Paramount contract stars and players has been utilized, a dozen noted directors have lent the picture their skill and originality and Technicolor has been generously employed to add spectacular beauty to scenes that would not always be sure-fire without it. A great number of skits are introduced with famous stars for their principals. Some are pithy and pungent; some are pointless. Many songs are scattered through the multiplicity of scenes and numerous gorgeous ensembles are introduced. There is not an essential element of successful musical entertainment—save, of course, plot—that has been omitted from this pretentious offering.

If it were a bounden duty to pick the high spots of the elaborate and spirited goings-on, I should unhesitatingly express a personal preference for Ruth Chatterton's "My Marie" postwar skit, with Frederic March, Stuart Irwin and a singing ensemble; George Bancroft's lusty sketch depicting contrasting modes of behavior at a party that was dying on its feet; little Mitzi Green's imitations of Charlie Mack, of Moran and Mack, the "Two Black Crows," and Maurice Chevalier singing "All I Want Is Just One Girl;" the "Mystery Story" sketch, participated in by Jack Oakie, Warner Oland, William Powell, Clive Brook and Eugene Pallette as victim, Dr. Fu Manchu, Philo Vance, Sherlock Holmes and Sergt. Heath, and Maurice Chevalier's all-color novelty number, "Up on Top of a Rainbow, Sweeping the Clouds Away."

These, as I say, are merely, and perhaps solely to me, the high spots. Chevalier and Evelyn Brent disclose the origin of the Apache dance in amusing fashion, Nino Martini sings effectively in a Venetian gondolier number in natural colors, Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Lillian Roth sing and dance "There's a Time for Everything," Clara Bow is "True to the Navy," Jack Okie, Skeets Gallagher and Leon Errol are all over the place as masters of
